Harvest Handiwork Honors Historical Husbandry But...

The contrast in methods of harvesting wheat can be seen in these two scenic photographs of neighboring Lancaster County farms Wednesday afternoon.

The shocks of wheat tell a story of peace and tranquility to those who are uninitiated in the old way of doing things. But you can be sure that a lot of sweat, toil, scratched arms, and prickly skin went into the making of this pretty picture. And a lot more labor will go into getting the sheaves through the threshing rig and the storing of the grain in the granary and the straw in the mow. The Aaron S. Fisher Amish farm, located at the corner of Strasburg Pike (Route 896) and Paradise Lane, provides the setting for this photo.

BVD Creates Confusion For Producers, Uncertainty For Shows

VERNON ACHENBACH JR.
Lancaster Farming Staff

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.) — There are many dairy cattle and beef cattle breeders, adults and youth, who are uncertain as to whether they will show animals this year, in light of the recent announcements of a new type of bovine virus diahrrea (BVD) and widespread calls for increased biosecurity around all cattle operations.

Recommendations to the numerous county fair boards from the state are for requiring owners of cattle to have their animals vaccinated according to label directions (including giving a booster shot within the specified time) against BVD prior to taking animals to any fairgrounds this year.

Also they should turn away any animal appearing to display sypmtoms of the disease.

Prior to that, a judging school for youth was cancelled in the western part of the state because of reports of herds suffering significant losses caused by the new form of BVD.

In the meantime, some additional geographical locations of incidents of the disease have been reported by the state, but apparently not all from several unsubstantiated rumors about several additional cases being discovered in additional areas of the state this past week.

The state is not actively collecting data on the spread of the disease, but rather relying on reports from veterinarians.

This week a number of people in the local dairy community have said they don't understand the situation:

• On one hand, reports are that the disease BVD 2 is a new, very virulant form which can kill an animal within 48 hours, and has been responsible for abortions, calf death and significant herd losses of 2-year-olds, and other inadequately vaccinated animals.

• On the other hand, there are no official quarantine measures being placed on farms with diseased herds, the state isn't closing down any cattle shows or restricting trade or travel, and no herds are being condemned, such as was the case with bovine tuberculosis.

Reports and cautionary warnings about BVD 2 were published within the past two weeks and news releases were made by the state Department of Agriculture

Modern Dairy Housing One Aspect Of Tour At Expo

ANDY ANDREWS
Lancaster Farming Staff

NORTH CORNWALL (Lebanon Co.) — Visitors to this year's Animal Housing Expo, scheduled July 12-13 at the Lebanon Fairgrounds, can take a tour of an extensively renovated and modernized dairy farm in Lancaster County.

The tour, which leaves the fairgrounds at 3:45 p.m. on Tuesday, July 12, will include a look at an 88-foot by 100-foot, 150-capacity freestall barn built by Craft-Bilt Construction, Inc., Manheim, in December 1992 for Hershey Brothers Farm in Penryn, Lancaster County.

To maximize efficiency, dairyman Steve Hershey can milk cows at his extensively modernized facility and, at the same time, conduct business using a cordless phone.

Some might say the mere phone pales in scope to the modernized dairy facilities. The barn has an alley scraper, manure pit, two precast double-wide bunker silos, and a double-eight milking parlor.

One of the five maternity pens within the Hershey brothers farm includes a sawdust-bedded pack stall area. Plastic curtains on the open walls of the 150 freestall building roll to the middle from the top half and from the bottom up. This allows better control of ventilation to the cow while she is lying on her bed.

All facilities ensure maximum cow comfort, which translates into better milk production.

"We've gotten the herd size up to where it belongs," said Steve Hershey, who farms in partnership with brothers Dale and Clair. Official herd size is 185, according to Steve, with a milking size of 170. Replacement size is about 120.

June DHIA averages are 21,146 pounds with 753 pounds of fat and 662 pounds of protein.

The brothers keep careful track of breed and production records using a recently purchased computer.

"The tour will include everything — the feed storage and milking facility and cow housing facilities," said Hershey.

In the future, according to Steve, the business would like to renovate an older barn to make room for

ANIMAL HOUSING EXPO

The threat of a new strain of bovine virus diarrhea has been a cause of concern for many wishing to know more about the disease and what precautions may be necessary to protect beef and dairy cattle herds.

In light of that, as of Wednesday, some changes were made to the Animal Housing Expo, set to be held July 12 and 13 at the Lebanon Area Fairgrounds, according to Lebanon County Extension Agent Kenneth Winebark.

Winebark said that a late addition to the two-day program is to have a lunchtime speaker discuss the disease.

According to Winebark, during lunch, Dr. Lynn Sammons, a veterinarian with Willow Creek Animal Hospital, in Reading, who works with a number of dairy and cattle producers in the area, is to discuss the disease both days.

Sammons is to share information on the status of BVD and what can be done to control its spread and minimize the risk of getting it on the farm or its effect.

Details of the expo appear in this issue and include program schedules, messages from exhibitors, and demonstration topics.

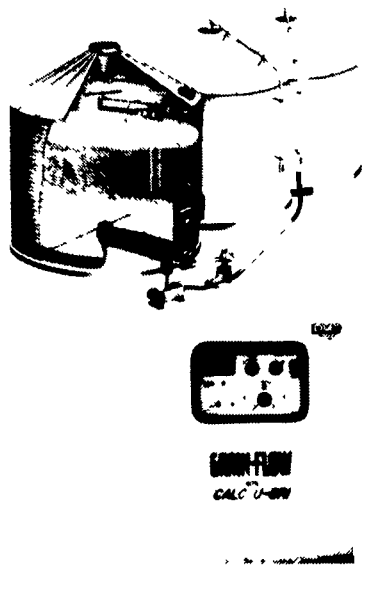
OVERDRYING GRAIN WASTES MONEY



Grain Flow with Calc-U-Dri Saves It

Grain Flow with Calc-U-Dri is the most accurate and simple to use continuous flow drying and removal system on the market today. Accurate to within 0.3% over the moisture desired, there is no longer a need to overdry grain. The result — money saved. To operate, simply set the moisture desired. Grain Flow with Calc-U-Dri does the drying for you - automatically. Make this harvest season more profitable with a Grain Flow with Calc-U-Dri.

Northeast Chicken Parts

Wednesday, July 6, 1994

Buying interest ranged good to very good. Supplies of boneless skinless breasts were tight with buying interest for immediate needs not filled. Trading was reported at the $1.95-$2.00 level with asking prices for additional product trending higher. Whole breasts were very tight. Very little additional product traded today but prices trended higher and supplies were in firm hands. Dark meat items cleared well at current prices. Yellow skin wings were balanced with trade needs at steady prices. A few white skin wings were available.

National Grain Market

Wednesday, July 6, 1994

NATIONAL EGG - AT A GLANCE: Prices for mediums were unchanged to lower in the Midwest, and all other prices were unchanged. The market tone was generally steady for the large sizes, and mediums were cautiously steady to steady. Demand ranged light to good, and had slowed following rapid post-holiday restocking in cartoned channels; food service demand remained fairly good in resort areas. Supplies of jumbo and extra-large were seasonally tight to barely adequate, large were generally adequate, and the light sizes were adequate to long. Breaking stock supplies remained adequate for the fair demand, and the trade sentiment was steady. Live hen supplies were at least adequate for the no better than moderate demand.

Delmarva Broiler/Fryer Market

Wednesday, July 6, 1994

Movement of ready-to-cook whole birds remained good and offerings were generally well cleared, particularly on over 3 pound sizes which were in short supply. Live supplied just moderate volume; weights were desirable to light. Processing schedules remained very heavy and consideration was being given to reducing some operations due to lighter than desired weights. Less than trucklot asking prices were unchanged at 52 to 60 cents. Trade sentiment was firm to higher. In the parts complex, all items continued to clear well. Breast items, mainly, bone-in were short of current inquiry.

Take this PRIME Opportunity to GROW With Us!

As a business person, you recognize the importance of providing supplemental protein, vitamins and minerals to your dairy cows on a daily basis. That's why Agway has teamed up with Mol-Mix® Liquid Supplements and can now offer you Free-Choice Prime and Prime with Bovatec® products.

Balance.

Mol-Mix Free-Choice Prime Liquid Supplements are formulated to provide protein (from both natural sources and non-protein nitrogen) plus vitamins and minerals to balance your livestock's rations --- especially when pasture quality is down.

Growth.

Mol-Mix Free-Choice Prime Liquid Supplements with Bovatec were the first FDA-approved Bovatec-medicated free-choice liquid supplements. They are used for increased weight gain of dairy and beef replacement heifers by enabling them to utilize energy and protein more efficiently.

Mol-Mix.

These Mol-Mix Liquid Supplements are also guaranteed to give you:

- Safety
- Convenience
- Palatability
- Consistency

Call us at 1-800-GO-AGWAY or contact your local Feed Sales Specialist today for more information.

The OLD FARMER'S ALMANAC THIS WEEK WITH

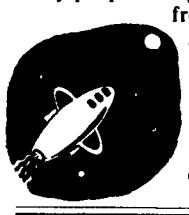
BASTILLE DAY, JULY 14.

DETENTE IN SPACE

On July 17, 1975, Soviet cosmonaut Aleksei Leonov and American astronaut Thomas Stafford shook hands in space. The historic meeting was the result of three years of negotiations and was the first U.S.-Soviet joint space project. Apollo 18 and Soyuz 19 remained linked together for 47 hours while the crews visited each other's space crafts and performed experiments together. At a time when the cold war between the two super powers was still in full swing, many people thought the cooperative venture was doomed from the start. But the men proved that Americans and Soviets could work together, at least under certain circumstances.



Men and nations behave wisely once they have exhausted all the other alternatives. — Abba Eban

TIP OF THE WEEK

EARTHWISE

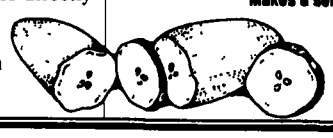
Here are a few poison ivy pointers: Wearing washable gloves and long sleeves for protection, dig out the plants. Bury them in an out-of-the-way place. Never compost poison ivy — urushiol, the element that reacts with your skin, remains after the plant has decomposed. Never burn the plants — the irritant is dispersed by the smoke. When you are finished handling the plants, strip off your clothes directly into the washing machine, gloves last, and wash them in hot soapy water.

SHELLY'S CUCUMBER SALAD

1 large cucumber
1 small onion
1 teaspoon vinegar
½ cup mayonnaise
1 pint cottage cheese
2 cups non-dairy whipped topping
1 11-ounce package lime gelatin dissolved in 1 cup water

Wash cucumber well to remove wax coating. Grate cucumber (with skin) and onion into large bowl. Add remaining ingredients and mix well. Chill until set.

Makes 8 servings.



The OLD FARMER'S WEATHER FORECAST

NORTHEAST: Clear and hot, then rainy and cool.

SOUTHEAST: Clear and hot, some showers Deep South, thunderstorms Florida, then clearing.

MIDWEST: Showers and mild, clear and warm north and east, then cold, heavy rain, flooding central.

NORTHWEST: Showers and mild, cold in the mountains, seasonable coast, turning hot.

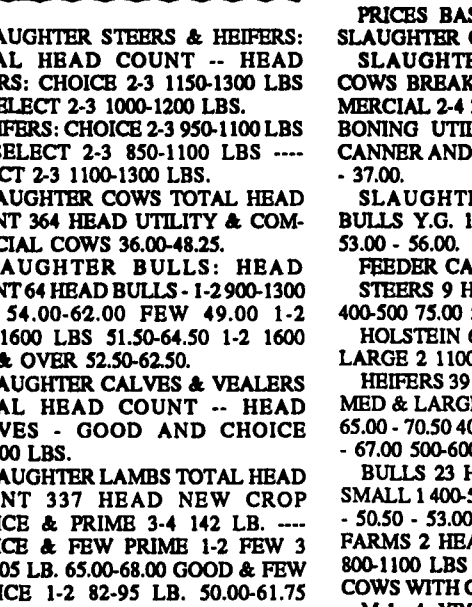
EXTENSION AGENT-
Baytan® 30
For extended protection. Extended, healthier roots.



Baytan 30 is the first registered seed treatment fungicide that gives you protection against seedborne, soilborne AND foliar diseases. So you not only get protection against diseases like smuts and seedborne Septoria glume blotch; you also get effective early season protection against powdery mildew and rusts. Even better, the extended protection of Baytan 30 can often reduce or eliminate the need for a foliar fungicide application.

All of the above makes Baytan 30 well worth the money. But it gets even better:

Seed treated with Baytan 30 produces healthier, more fibrous roots; produces better tillers and YIELDS MORE. In nearly 200 field trials over the past 10 years, seed treated with Baytan 30 has out-yielded untreated seed by an average of 5.7 bushels an acre.

For a healthier wheat crop, and a healthier bottom line, plant seed treated with Baytan 30. For more information, contact the certified Baytan 30 conditioner near you, or Gustafson at 800-248-6907.

OPINION

Make Urban Population Pay For Water, Too

Water resources have become the limiting factor for both the expansion of agriculture and the development of the land into residential and commercial use. Often the finger is pointed at agriculture's use of water. And the recent proposed fees for water use in the Susquehanna River Basin emphasize this public thinking.

In our report last week, a complaint was aired that said a good farmer had pulled a stream dry from irrigation. This would indicate that the farmer was using more than his share of the water. But at this time of year there should have been plenty of water in this stream for the farmer and everyone down stream--except that in the last few years, a very large residential development has been installed in the upper part of the aquifer that feeds this stream. Authorities who know about the situation believe it's these urban dwellers that are the culprits in the lower stream levels, and not the farmer. But no one is ready to point the finger at this real source of the problem.

Why not? Management of water sources has become necessary. Most people realize that water, like air, is a natural resource that must be shared by everyone. But agriculture should not be singled out to pay the price of overuse. If development is put into proper perspective in water conservation, we may very well eliminate the need for farmland preservation efforts. Stop development where water resources cannot support it. That would take care of many of our environmental problems.

It's certainly more environmentally sound to use the water to grow food and keep the open space of farmland than to cover the earth with concrete and development.

Editor:

There it was — a time consuming, labor intensive and colorful display consisting of a summer table, chairs, opened umbrella with checkered tablecloth all on a raised platform between the frozen food cases and the dairy case. A hand written sign hung suspended from the ceiling said, June National Dairy Month (even though it was July 1 when I stopped into the busy, large supermarket).

What shocked me as I neared the display was all along the base (both sides facing the aisles); margarine and processed cheese spreads. Every major brand one could imagine!

The feelings I had at that moment? Anger and disappointment. We as dairymen work too long, too hard for a quality product and share our hard earned money for advertising to be confronted with this ignorance. Trying to regain my composure I asked to speak to the Dairy Case manager. "I would like to make a comment." The assistant manager approached and asked if he could help me.

I stated that I noticed the June Dairy Month display and the margarine everywhere. "Margarine is not a dairy product!" I told him. He proceeded to mention that the display being in the middle of the main aisle . . . I acknowledged the fact that no refrigeration unit was present. So I suggested a different location of the sign might be better. Granted it was no longer June, but I asked him if he realized July was National Ice Cream Month. His reply before he turned away was "March is Frozen Food Month."

As I travelled home the more I thought on the meeting the angrier I became and the reality kick in the mid-section prompted me to share this experience with others in our industry: dairymen, wives and families. We must speak up and educate not only the consumer, but the ones responsible for selling our products in a favorable light. Personally I am not a vigilante, on the contrary, but I will not forget this experience for a long time.

To Say It Is Hot

I was amazed this week when a poultryman told me we were not in the hot weather season yet. This was in reference to how he was managing his ventilation fans in his poultry house.

Once hot weather arrived, he was going to clean the fans and open the louvers all the way to move more air.

He was correct about cleaning the fans and opening the louvers, but I thought we had been experiencing hot weather for at least a month!

Talking with the service person on the way back to the office, he told me many farmers manage their houses by the calendar instead of the thermometer. To be excellent farmers, you need to understand the weather and anticipate what it is going to be.

Seasons, calendars, etc. are poor indicators of the weather. Experience, weather forecasts, and weather in other parts of the country are better indicators of the conditions you will need to manage.

We know hot weather brings thunderstorms and possible power outages. Thus, standby generators should be tested more frequently and be ready for a power failure. Temperatures above 85 F. mean we need to move as much air as possible through confinement housing and cool the house down to 65 F. at night so animals will want to eat feed and continue to produce.

Let the thermometer and the weather we are having dictate your actions, not the dates on the calendar.

To Cool Milk Fast

Glenn Shirk, extension dairy agent, reminds us that to preserve the quality and flavor of milk, it needs to be cooled down from body temperature to less than 40 F. within one hour of milking. Similarly, at milking time, when warm milk is added to cold milk already in the tank from previous milkings, the blend temperature should not exceed 40 F.

As you can see, a lot of heat must br removed from milk at milking time. To help the cooling compressor accomplish this big task on hot, humid days, follow these ideas:

• Install a pre-cooler to reduce milk's temperature before it enters the bulk tank, allowing you to use this captured heat to preheat water before it enters the hot water heater. You save energy in cooling milk and in heating water.

• Put the compressor in a breezy location and, if necessary, use fans to blow air over the compressor.

• Install a larger compressor.

To Practice Food Safety

It is summertime, and with summer comes chicken barbecues, sizzling steaks, and grill-cooked hamburgers, pork, and veal.

Along with summer heat and food preparation comes increased risk of microorganisms that may cause food poisoning.

Following a few precautions will help reduce food poisoning risks.

Keep all food refrigerated until preparation or grilling time. Prepare all foods in a clean area with well-washed hands and utensils. If meats are to be marinated, do so in a plastic or glass container in the refrigerator.

Keep the grill clean and free of food particles. To prepare the grill for cooking, rinse in warm water, then coat it with a nonstick vegetable spray or vegetable oil to keep food from sticking. Thoroughly wash the grill in hot water and soap after each use.

When building the fire, be sure it is hot enough to properly cook the meat. A good rule is to use 30 briquettes per one pound of meat. Be sure food is fully cooked before serving. The time it takes to cook the meat or poultry depends on the position of the grill, weather, temperature of the coals, and degree of doneness desired.

When food is fully cooked, place it on a clean plate or serving dish, not on the same plate used to bring raw food to the grill. Thoroughly wash all plates used to carry uncooked food before using again. When the meal is over, promptly refrigerate all foods and leftovers.

GOING IT ALONE
July 10, 1994

GOING IT ALONE
July 10, 1994

Background Scripture:
Exodus 18
Devotional Reading:
Exodus 18:1-12

Moses had what I call "the Pastoral Syndrome," an affliction that seems to particularly strike clergy with the same disturbing frequency with which the general public is bothered with sinus and the common cold. Unlike those two maladies, however, "the Pastoral Syndrome" includes episodes of hallucination. Pastors are frequently under the delusion that they and they alone must do it all if it is to be done at all. "It" may mean converting the neighborhood to Christ, solving the problems of all their parishioners, securing justice in the community, and making certain the church makes strides which are recorded in heaven.

Of course, clergy are not the only ones to be afflicted with these delusions. Lots of people I know believe that the world rests squarely on their shoulders and that they must hold it up all by themselves. I can understand that attitude, for it was mine for all too long. Unfortunately this attitude dooms one to disappointment, defeat and perhaps even bitterness. At first, it is kind of flattering to think that we are holding up the world all by ourselves, but after while we get a bit weary and begin to wonder why others aren't doing their share.

To be sure, people like this do tend to get a lot accomplished. But they also often discourage other people from shouldering their share of the burden, leading them to conclude that they have nothing to contribute. They sense that we think that they can't do it right — we're the only ones who can! — and so they never do learn to do it at all.

A FAITH PROBLEM

Most of all this is a faith problem. When we assume that it all depends upon us, it means we are not willing to trust God. Just as God taught the people to live one day at a time and trust to him for the rest, so Moses had to learn to share responsibility and trust that God had given abilities to others beside him. Yes, we need to do whatever we can with all the power and devotion that we can, but we also need to trust God to pick up where our effort ends. A clergyman associate of mine preached a sermon on this text from Exodus 18. He exhorted his congregation to learn to trust God and share responsibility with others. I was amused because this clergyman had a chronic and acute case of "the Pastoral Syndrome." He assumed that if he didn't do it, it would not be done or, at least, not done rightly. Yet, although he understood the meaning of this text for his congregation, it never occurred to him to apply it to his own life and ministry. Maybe I was so amused because I had once shared his delusion.

TAKING ADVICE

There are lots of times in our lives when we need someone like Jethro to come to us and say: "What is this that you are doing . . .?" Fortunately, Moses was willing to listen to his father-in-law and because he was willing, he was able to make an important change in his life. Jethro encouraged him to trust in the Lord and share the responsibility. "What you are doing is not good." (If someone said that to you, would you listen?) "You and the people with you will wear yourselves out, for the thing is too heavy for you; you are not able to perform it alone" (18:18). It is "not good" for Moses and it is "not good" for the people. When someone tries to do it on their own everyone is negatively affected.

But Moses was able to take advice from his father-in-law and he was able to share the burden, two great achievements for any person. Moses learned that he didn't have to — couldn't — go it alone, Have you?

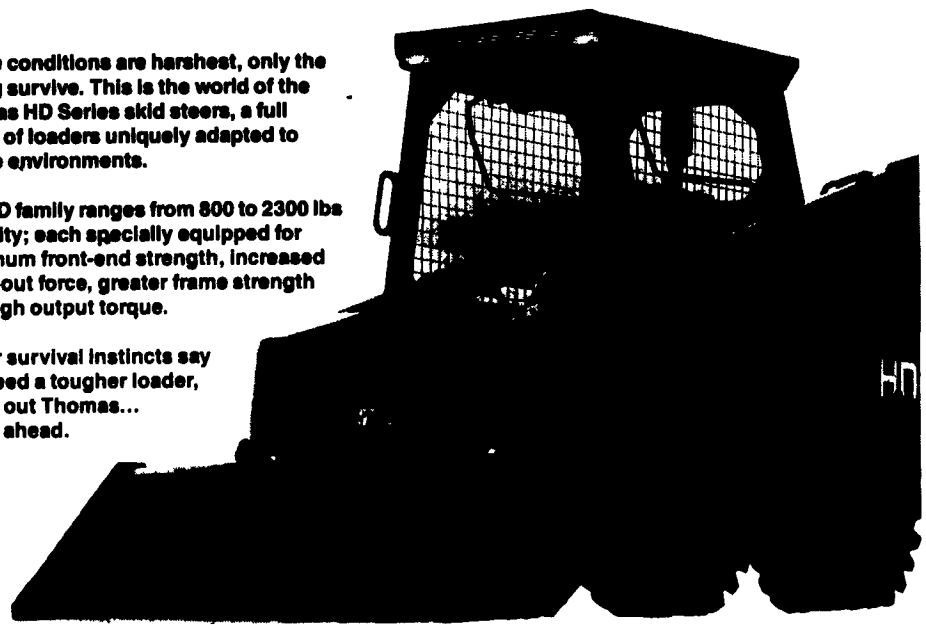
THE STRENGTH TO SURVIVE

Where conditions are harshest, only the strong survive. This is the world of the Thomas HD Series skid steers, a full series of loaders uniquely adapted to severe environments.

The HD family ranges from 800 to 2300 lbs capacity; each specially equipped for maximum front-end strength, increased break-out force, greater frame strength and high output torque.

If your survival instincts say you need a tougher loader, check out Thomas... a step ahead.



More than just a loader, Thomas gives you more standard features. And with a full selection of quick-change attachements, Thomas offers a model to suit all your construction, utility and rental needs. Available optional equipment includes: turbo precleaners; in-line engine water heater, catalytic purifiers; back-up alarm, horn kit; low hydraulic oil level alarm; heavy duty lift cylinders; cab enclosure; sound insulation; lifting lugs; draw bar; counter weights; hydraulic oil heaters; top window; foundry and fertilizer packages.

Dr. Terry M. Schettini, right, and associate core team member Jonda L. Crosby, RISA project associate at the Berks County Cooperative Extension, are helping to guide a $2 million, 3½ -year, 23-member project to its ambitious goal — that of setting up contacts with farmers and community leaders to ensure that agriculture remains a viable, powerful economic force in the 10-county southeastern Pennsylvania region.

RISA Unites Farmers, Regulators, Consumers To Ensure Ag's Future

ANDY ANDREWS
Lancaster Farming Staff

LEESPORT (Berks Co.) — Regulations on water use. Regulations on nutrient use. Regulations on spraying. Regulations on cropping. Regulations on where to farm, how to farm, or whether to farm at all.

Isn't it any wonder that farmers could desperately use some help to free their hands brought by the increasing regulations that keep them from doing their job?

One program recently established by a consortium of educators and industry is taking steps to ensure that agriculture is not lost to regulation, development, and other pressures.

The program, called the Regional Infrastructure for Sustaining Agriculture (RISA), has been established with a grant from the W.K. Kellogg Foundation to Penn State University and the Pennsylvania Association For Sustainable Agriculture (PASA) to bring people together from the community to educate leaders, farmers, and consumers about the importance of keeping agriculture viable in the southeastern region of the state.

Penn State and Rodale, for the purposes of the RISA project, work through an umbrella organization called the Penn State/ Rodale Center For Sustaining Agriculture and Natural Resources in Urbanizing Environments, or SANRUE.

The grant was awarded in spring 1993. When all is said and done, RISA will help promote, document, and disseminate information gathered from groups representing agriculture, industry, and communities as a whole. Eventually, the information could be used to work out a plan to ensure the future of farming.

"People being willing to sometimes just talk to each other is a barrier," said Dr. Terry M. Schettini, associate director of research in horticulture at Rodale and RISA core team member. "Someone may have information, and if the other person doesn't want to listen, who suffers? Agriculture suffers."

ANIMAL HOUSING EXPO

July 12, 13, 1994 Lebanon Fairgrounds

A show for Northeast livestock, dairy and poultry producers

PENNSTATE
College of Agricultural Sciences Cooperative Extension
Penn State is an affirmative action, equal opportunity university

Dairy, livestock, and poultry products are a significant part of Pennsylvania agriculture. While several farm shows are held throughout the Commonwealth, few concentrate on the needs and issues of animal housing. The demonstrations, speakers, and exhibits at the Animal Housing Expo will focus on proven, state-of-the-art ventilation, feeding, watering, manure handling, and housing systems.

Dairy, livestock and poultry producers may spend as little as a few hundred dollars for renovations or up to several hundreds thousand dollars for new facilities to provide adequate housing for their animals. At the Animal Housing Expo, these producers will have an opportunity to investigate available options, talk with industry experts, and select the system and services that best meet their needs.

additional animals, Also, the renovated facility could be used to house dry cows, heifers, and calves.

Another tour is planned for the same day and time at Farmer Boy Ag in Myerstown. Tours of the facility will begin after buses transport visitors from the Animal Housing Expo at approximately 3:45 p.m. Included is a cookout at the Lebanon Fairgrounds at 7 p.m. Cost for the tour and cookout is $15 and reservations are required. For reservations, contact Dan McFarland, York County Cooperative Extension, 112 Pleasant Acres Rd., York, PA 17402-9041, (717) 757-9657.

The tour is only one aspect of the Housing Expo, which includes a wide array of information for producers.

The event, conducted by Penn State Cooperative Extension and local agribusinesses, will help producers learn more about building and remodeling farm structures and about proper care and handling of livestock, poultry, and dairy cattle.

On July 12, Dr. David Kohl, professor of agriculture finance, small business management and entrepreneurship at the Virginia Polytechnic Institute and State University, will discuss tools for financial planning. Kohl is a national leader in establishing financial guidelines and in standardizing financial reports and analyses for agricultural producers. Gary Snider, farm business consultant for Farm Credit of West New York, will address the same topic on July 13.

Dr. Lynn Sammons, a veterinarian from Reading, will talk about functional cattle treatment facilities.

Dr. Douglas Reinemann, assistant professor of ag engineering at the University of Wisconsin, Madison, will discuss milking system management. He will also demonstrate methods of cleaning and checking milking systems.

Dr. Howard Person, assistant professor of ag engineering at Michigan State University, will talk about designing buildings for rodent and bird control.

Dr. Charles Pitts, professor of entomology at Penn State, will discuss fly control in confinement housing. Dr. Lynn Sammons, a veterinarian from Reading, will talk about functional cattle treatment facilities.

The event, which opens at 9 a.m. each day, will also feature a door prize drawing for a gas grill. Exhibits and demonstrations continue all day both days until 3 p.m.

HPOCA Goes Rough And Tumble

KINZERS (Lancaster Co.) — The Hart-Parr Oliver Collectors Association moves east this year for their National Summer Show.

Rough and Tumble Engineers Historical Association will be the host show during their 46th Annual Threshermen's Reunion, August 17-20, at their show grounds in Kinzers, 12 miles east of Lancaster.

Kinzers is in the heart of the beautiful, bountiful farm lands of the Pennsylvania Dutch Country. Visitors to this most complete Steam and Gas Show in the East should allow plenty of time to see the tourist attractions in the area.

Oliver did a lot of business over the years in the territory that is served by this Show. Visitors can expect to see one of the largest groups of Oliver Wheel and Crawler Tractors and equipment ever assembled. The association is planning to show the smoke and steam of a Farquhar Pennsylvania stem traction engine, a rugged Ann Arbor baler withi a wooden bale chamber, and one of the early New Holland balers built by Oliver dealer, Arthur S. Young.

Featured will be Cletrac and Oliver Crawler tractors and the versatile little green giant HG-68 will be the feature tractor. Jim and Fulton Owensby will have many of their nicely restored Cletracs there, including Jim's Cletrac 80. Jerry Leib plans to bring his big OC-18. Landis Zimmerman will display his hefty OC-156. Shuey Sales and Service will bring their OC-96 and their pretty all white Orchard HG. There will be many more crawler and wheel tractors, both agricultural and industrial, on display.

Sam W. White, Jr., retired president of the Oliver Corporation will be there at showtime. He will be the keynote speaker at the banquet at Harvest Drive Restaurant on Saturday evening.

The huge Ford New Holland manufacturing complex is just seven miles north of the Rough and Tumble Show grounds. Special arrangements have been made for plant tours to be conducted Thursday, August 18 and Friday, August 19.

Virginia Holstein Assn. Field Day Set

TIMBERVILLE, VA—The Virginia Holstein Association invites everyone to attend their field day on July 22 at Windcrest Holsteins. They say, "Come early and join us for a full day of activities which will be informational and fun."

Registration begins at 10 a.m., allowing time to view the cattle and facilities before lunch and the afternoon meeting. The commercial exhibit tent will be set up all day and includes many long-time Virginia Holstein Association supporters. Some new products will be in action on the farm. Activities are also planned for the children and ladies.

Following the field day, "one of the top" Holstein sales will include a number of consignments from Virginia farms. A finger food supper and square dance in the barn will conclude the day's activities.

Part 3 Of Silo Safety Series

Preventive Measures Ensure Farmer Safety Around Silos

This is the last of a series.

Editor's Note: The previous two articles in the series examined farmers' experience with exposure to silo gas and molds. Reporting of the incidents and the actual incidents themselves have decreased over the years. The final installment examines safety measures farmers can use when working with silos.

ANDY ANDREWS
Lancaster Farming Staff

COOPERSTOWN, N.Y. — Silo safety should be simple.

Now there is an organization that wants farmers to know how to protect themselves while filling or unloading silos.

"Respiratory Hazards In The Farm Environment" is a little brochure that you can keep in the back pocket of your jeans. While it may be too small to swat flies or to act as a good fan on sweltering summer days, the information inside is extremely valuable for protecting your life.

The brochure, available from the New York Center for Agricultural Medicine and Health, indicates that a person's lung is particularly sensitive to environmental dangers.

When a silo is filled, forage begins to work — to ferment. As a result, oxides of nitrogen begin to build up and accumulate in pockets in the silo. The reddish-brown gas can be seen, but often is odorless and powerless.

A small amount breathed in deeply can be deadly, because it robs the lungs of oxygen. Oxygen can't get to the heart. The heart stops beating.

A silo, once filled, should be immediately leveled off. Many experts agree there is no excuse whatsoever to wait, even a short length of time. If for some reason it cannot be leveled off right away, then a blower should be activated and run for about 30-45 minutes before anyone enters the silo to level off silage or haylage.

Many fire departments, according to silo gas victim Rodney Martin, have self-contained breathing units. These must be worn, even if the farmer will only open doors in the chute to vent the gases.

All people and animals should be kept completely clear of the chute — only the operator, wearing the unit, should enter, and only then for a brief period of time.

If in doubt about any procedure, the operator should wear a respirator — not a dust mask or an air filter, but a self-contained, oxygen-supplied breathing apparatus.

If the silo must be entered before the 45 or so minutes of running the blower, it should be entered only wearing the self-contained oxygen respirator.

Other hazards which the respirator can protect against include exposure to the toxic molds from baled hay and in silage, and unloaders' syndrome, which is exposure to dust from silage. Often, the mold and dust exposure over a long period of time can cause a syndrome known as "farmer's lung." A good respirator will prevent that.

"The fact that there are a lot of hazards out there is just accepted by most farmers as part of farming," said Dennis Murphy, Penn State professor of ag engineering. According to Murphy, farmers should consider wearing protection devices such as the respirators a lot more often — an investment that will pay off, over the long run, in better health.

But even some conditions can be too dangerous. Murphy said that even a self-contained apparatus may not be sufficient if a farmer enters directly into a silo without some kind of pre-ventilation of the silo.

"Obviously we don't want people in that atmosphere, because it's too dangerous," he said. A leak in the mask could occur and the farmer could still be overcome and "end up with serious injury."

Murphy said that "risk can be managed. There's a lot of evidence that we can educate and increase awareness and knowledge about hazards," he said.

Making that education translate into farmer action is another challenge.

But Penn State is pursuing a study to see what kind of educational approaches really make a difference out on the farm to change the hazards and risks of the farm to prevent more injuries and death as a result of silo gas and mold exposure.

For now, farmers can do the following, courtesy of the New York Center for Agriculture Medicine and Health, to prevent breathing troubles on the farm:

• Avoid cigarettes and encourage co-workers to quit.

• Stay out of freshly filled silos for two weeks.

• Always run the blower before entering a recently filled silo.

• Keep forage and straw dry in the barn.

• Use a dust mask (NIOSH- or MSHA-approved) when working in dusty situations.

• Keep ventilation fans running in the barn.

• If you use a bedding chopper, always wear a mask.

• Never attempt a rescue into a gas-filled situation. Always get help.

• Avoidance of breathing hazards may save a life.

For farmers who want to start a silo safety program, keeping up with the latest information on safety is a good start. The International Silo Association, based in Lafayette, Ind., has available an updated version of its "Silo Operator's Manual," which includes a section on silo gases and diseases. This is one of the most comprehensive and extensive compilation of facts and figures available regarding what silo gas is and how farmers can protect against it. Much of this information is highly recommended by ag engineers and silo specalists from around the country. For more information, contact Drew Freeman, International Silo Association, 219 N. Fourth St., Lafayette, IN 47902-0560, (317) 742-0083.

Many silo safety signs are available from silo manufacturers across the country, free of charge. Contact your silo manufacturer for more information.

Also, Penn State has an array of information on silo safety. Contact Penn State Agricultural Engineering Department, 246 Agricultural Engineering Building, University Park, PA 16802, (814) 865-7685.

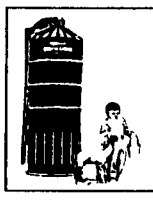
Protect Your Lungs When Working Around A Silo

The following chart details the protection necessary for working in different conditions on the farm. Note that different masks are required for different tasks.

RESPIRATORY HAZARD	REQUIRED PROTECTION
Pesticide dusts, mists, vapors, and gases	• A NIOSH-approved chemical cartridge respirator or gas mask with added pre-filter. For extremely high concentrations, where the oxygen level may be low, wear a supplied-air respirator. Refer to pesticide container label for additional requirements.
Mold dust, grain dust, manure dust, dust from poultry operations, road or field dust, and untreated sawdust	• A NIOSH-approved mechanical filter respirator or dust/mist mask approved for use with toxic dusts.
Ammonia	• A NIOSH-approved chemical cartridge respirator or gas mask approved for use with ammonia.
Hydrogen sulfide (manure gas)	• Supplied-air respirator approved by NIOSH.
Nitrogen dioxide (silo gas)	• Supplied-air respirator approved by NIOSH.
Welding fumes	• A NIOSH-approved mechanical filter respirator approved for use with fumes.
Spray paint mists	• NIOSH-approved mechanical filter respirator approved for use with spray paints or organic vapor cartridge with paint pre-filter on chemical cartridge respirator.
Carbon monoxide (gas-powered vehicle or machinery exhaust)	• NIOSH-approved gas mask or supplied-air respirator.
Fumigants	• CAUTION: Fumigants are highly penetrating and some can penetrate the rubber and plastic parts on respirators. In addition, some are colorless and odorless and give no warning or exposure. Many respirators approved for pesticides are NOT approved for protection against fumigants. For the best protection, completely avoid fumigants and treated areas yourself, and leave entry into treated areas to trained professionals.

General Tips For Preventing Breathing Troubles

Rx



1 Keep children away from the silo and adjoining area for at least two weeks after silage has been put in silo

2 Close the feed room door to the barn

3 If entry into a silo becomes necessary you should
- Ventilate all silo areas
- get the help of a second adult, and
- wear a dust mask

5 If you use a bedding chopper always wear a mask

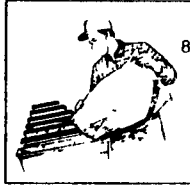
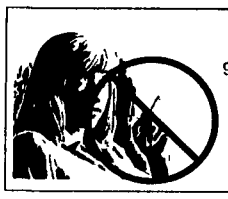
7 Keep forage and straw dry in the barn



8 Use a dust mask (NIOSH or MSHA approved) when working in dusty situations



9 Avoid cigarettes and encourage co-workers to quit

Regional Christmas Tree Growers Meeting Set

SCHUYLKILL HAVEN (Schuylkill Co.) — Christmas tree growers and individuals interested in growing Christmas trees are invited to a program sponsored by Penn State Cooperative Extension and Pennsylvania Christmas Tree Growers Association.

Dr. Paul Heller, Penn State University extension entomologist, will discuss the research being conducted on Cooley Spruce Gall Adelgid. Also, a spray coverage demonstration will be held with water and oil sensitive paper.

Rayanne Lehman, Pennsylvania Department of Agriculture entomologist, will give an update of the latest insects found on Christmas trees in Pennsylvania.

Philip Staudt, Pennsylvania Department of Agriculture pesticide program, will give an update on pesticide rules and regulations pertaining to Christmas tree production.

Jeff Hill and manufacturing representatives will demonstrate equipment needed to operate a modern Christmas tree plantation.

A representative of the Pennsylvania Christmas Tree Growers Association will give an update on the activities of the association.

The meeting will be held Thursday, July 21, starting at 1 p.m. at the J.C. Hill Tree Farms, Rt. 895, RR 1, Orwigsburg, Pa. This meeting will qualify for credits toward pesticide recertification.

For more information, contact George P. Perry, Jr., Extension Agent/Horticulture, Penn State Cooperative Extension - Schuylkill County, 199 University Drive, Schuylkill Haven, PA 17972-2201, (717) 385-3431.

Schettini and associate core team member Jonda L. Crosby, RISA project associate at the Berks County Cooperative Extension, are helping to guide a $2 million ($1 million from Kellogg and another $1 million in matching funds), 3½ -year, 23-member project to its ambitious goal — that of setting up contacts with farmers and community leaders to ensure that agriculture remains a viable, powerful economic force in the 10-county southeastern Pennsylvania region.

"What is the common language of all the groups?" said Crosby. "It's there. You just really have to dig for it."

Crosby, Schettini, and others in the 23-member group, including a consortium involving SANRUE and PASA, Atlantic Dairy Cooperative, League of Women Voters, and the Reading Terminal Farmers' Market Trust, have held a series of meetings involving 120 people from various industries and associations. Included were marketing professionals, policy makers, support professionals, and consumers. Forty-seven of those attending were farmers.

One of the purpose of the meetings is to assess the needs of farmers.

One survey conducted by RISA measured some of the long-term concerns and goals of dairy farmers. With the help of the Atlantic Dairy Cooperative, 1,400 questionnaires were mailed out. About 500 were returned.

"That's a phenominal return rate," said Schettini.

"The key is to get them to tell you everything they possibly can," said Crosby. "Once they are comfortable and start talking, you wouldn't belive the similarities between the focus groups."

Crosby spoke about how much "passion" the responses contained. The information, according to Schettini, is still being analyzed, coded, and documented. It will be available, according to Rochelle Kelvin, project leader with Rodale's Metro-Farmer Networks, in early August this year.

Also, a vegetable survey, sent to about 400 producers in the state, is under analysis. The results will be available in a few months.

For now, the focus of RISA is on obtaining information about farmers' needs and to focus information-gathering on what the public's perceptions of farming are.

For that, a survey was conducted to examine consumers' attitudes about "farm-fresh" produce. Information about product availability and impressions were also provided by more than 1,400 people at 23 different supermarkets in the region. Data will be released by RISA later this year.

One of the ways RISA has made its presence known and has had an immediate effect on local farming is through the creation of additional outlets throughout the city of Philadelphia from one of the RISA partners, the Reading Terminal Farmers' Market Trust. The Trust has created direct marketing agreements with produce farmers in the region.

"There are certain neighborhoods in Philadelphia, particularly around housing projects, where there is not adequate access to fresh produce," said Schettini. Two more locations were added in the city, home to about five million people, to bring fresh produce to inner-city residents.

In the long run, according to the core team members, RISA will help focus attention on the huge market available here for produce and other farmers.

RISA wants to find out "why the market is being served disproportionately from California or Mexico or Florida or wherever," Schettini said.

The "master report" of all the RISA activities, including what influence the information has had on planning community reaction and regulations, will be documented and made available to the public. The format, according to Schettini, will be "user-friendly."

And finally, at the community level, the information has to be accessible and used, said Crosby.

"We're asking the community to guide us on how we should best use the money that Kellogg has given to us, rather than us saying this is the way it should be done," said Crosby.

RISA is also looking for proposals from dairy and vegetable farmers for on-farm research or demonstrations "that address an aspect of sustaining agriculture," said Leon Weber, Rodale Institute. Issues such as nutrient management, marketing, intensive grazing, water quality, soil improvement, pest control, farm management, and alternative crops will be considered.

RISA will provide some technical and financial support to the project, according to Weber. Deadline for proposals for projects to begin this fall is July 20. Proposals for projects that begin in 1995 are due by October 1.

Proposals can be obtained from Jonda Crosby at the Berks County Extension Office, P.O. Box 520, Leesport, PA 19533-0520, (610) 378-1135.

According to the core team, the spirit of the RISA project, once the research and documentation are complete, will continue in the relationships fostered.

"They'll probably continue to talk," said Crosby. "It's not going to stop. The rings will stay in place."

One result could be a farm changing from one commodity to another to meet the needs of the community.

A potential use of the RISA information is about how legislators make regulations, such as regarding nutrient management, how agencies create water use fees, or how townships create ordinances. The more the lawmakers know about farming, in general, according to the core members, the better the laws could be for farmers.

"If that is the only thing it does, then it will be successful," said Crosby. "If that one single thing happens, I would be ecstatic."

By Using Quality Adjuvants, Herbicide Rates, Costs Can Be Reduced

ANDY ANDREWS
Lancaster Farming Staff

HOLTWOOD (Lancaster Co.) — Pesticide applicators may be able to save as much as $8-$9 per acre on herbicide costs by using quality forms of adjuvants, according to information provided during a field day held at the Steve Groff Farm last week.

About 15 farmers and agri-industry representatives viewed the test plots on Groff's 175-acre vegetable and cash grain crop farm.

Sponsored by Groff, the Pennsylvania Association for Sustainable Agriculture (PASA), and Agri-Basics Soil Service, the field day showed how using adjuvants can contribute to weed reduction and improved stand on no-till corn.

In a summary provided at the field day, Groff stated, "I know that chemical companies spend millions of dollars to come up with acceptable rates for their products. I feel that with a little common sense and a few other tools such as adjuvants and proper timing, you can cut herbicide rates and reduce costs."

Adjuvants are applied with the herbicide at spray time to do a number of things. They vary by type and include:

• Compatability agents. These adjuvants help certain herbicides combine to promote improved effectiveness.

• Buffering agents. These lower or raise the pH of the water in the spray tank to make the herbicide more effective.

• "Applicator" or "sticker" adjuvants. These allow the pesticide to adhere more precisely to the leaf surface in post-emergent applications.

• Surfactants. These decrease the "surface tension" of the water. This tension makes the water "bead up" on the leaf surface. The adjuvant spreads the water out over leaf surface and also helps distribute the herbicide over a wider area and with more penetration in the soil.

Groff used APSA-80, an adjuvant available from Amway. With no-till corn, Groff indicated he had "good success" with the early preplant program, spraying 2-3 weeks before planting. On a fact sheet, records indicate that he sprayed 1.25 quarts per acre of Bicep with the adjuvant the first week of April, then planted the last week in April. He then followed up with 1 quart of Prowl as corn emerged to kill lambsquarter.

By spot-checking the fields at the beginning of the season, Groff said it looked like using the adjuvants helped.

"That was the intent of this project," he said. "What we're doing is making the herbicides more active in the soil."

Through calculations supplied by Groff and PASA, on plots 1-6, rates of Bicep were cut in half, from 2 quarts to 1 quart, reducing costs from $14.55 to $7.25 per acre. The rates of Prowl were cut from a quart to a pint, from $5.96 to $2.98 per acre. The adjuvant was supplied at a rate of 5 ounces per acre at a cost of $1.15 per acre.

On plots 7-10, Bicep rate was cut from two quarts to about 1.25 quarts per acre. Adjuvant was applied at the same rate.

Using the dual herbicides, savings came to $9.13 per acre.

Groff cautioned that there was more to the equation than simply the adjuvants. Another factor included the timing of the herbicide (he said he applies the chemicals right before a rain). "It has a lot to do with management," he said.

Also, choosing a quality adjuvant is essential. Some adjuvants include alcohol as a stablizer. But a quality adjuvant will have the adjuvant material at about 80 percent or more of the active ingredient.

Farmers can profit from trials such as these. Savings can be substantial.

"An $8 savings per acre, I think, is worthwhile talking about," said Edgar Rits, a consultant from Honey Grove at the field day. "That's less herbicide you need to put down. That's the big issue."

Harvest data on the corn yields as a result of using the adjuvants will be provided in the fall.

Groff said that about 75 percent of his corn is in no-till and the rest in slit till. A rotation of his corn every two years at maximum also helps to cut down the incidence of weeds and insects.

"I generally don't have a problem with insects in corn because of rotation," he said.

Other studies included the use of calcium with the spray, which had little effect on weeds and showed a slight adjustment of the pH. What Groff found is that water pH will directly affect the performance of the herbicides.

"It would be good if you would check the pH of your water," he said. He spoke about a chart that lists the most effective pHs for several different types of herbicides. "There is a difference," said Groff, indicating that some require a neutral pH and others require more acidic levels.

For atrazine-based herbicides, the half-life at a water pH of 8 is only a half hour. But a a pH of 5 or 6, the half-life extends to 8 or 9 hours. It's not uncommon to get a 7 or 8 pH in water supplies.

Other fields include corn incorporated into oat stubble in reducing herbicide use. The oat material stopped the weeds, according to Groff.

Dramatic results were achieved after a hay field was plowed in the fall and only harrowed to two inches deep in the spring. The fall plowing got rid of the weeds that germinated, cutting off seed production. A light disc harrowing in the spring only removed the seeds that sprouted on the top.

"An $8 savings per acre, I think, is worthwhile talking about," said Edgar Rits, a consultant from Honey Grove, left. He reviews application information with Steve Groff.

There are no weeds where the tomatoes are growing.

"I credit it to the fact that it was plowed in the fall," he said. "We took care of it by harrowing twice."

Groff said that it "really pays to plow in the fall for late-planted tomatoes. We've just had no weed problems.

"You have to try this yourself on your own farm," said Groff. "I think that's what this demonstration shows — there are some things you can try on your own farm and tell people about."

No 'Magic Bullet' In Controlling Weeds In Herbicides

ANDY ANDREWS
Lancaster Farming Staff

LANDISVILLE (Lancaster Co.) — There may be no "magic bullet" to take care of all a farmer's long-term weed problems in soybeans, especially in reduced tillage situations.

But that doesn't stop many manufacturers of herbicides and seed varieties from at least trying.

One attempt is being made by a manufacturer, Monsanto, to develop a variety of soybean that is resistant to its own herbicide, Roundup. Research is under way at Penn State to study how effective the new biogenetic gene is to not only the Monsanto herbicide, but to a variety of other herbicides from other manufacturers.

More than 100 agri-industry representatives were on hand to see some results of this and other soybean and corn herbicide trials conducted at the Penn State Landisville Research Center during the annual Weed Tour on Thursday morning.

Dwight Lingenfelter, Penn State graduate student and extension assistant, spoke about the effectiveness of Roundup for perennial weed control in transgenic soybeans. He said the trials are looking at long-term control of the warm season perennial weeds, such as hemp dogbane, Johnsongrass, bindweed, and others.

Conventional tillage has helped control weeds. But with conservation compliance, reduced tillage is necessary, which has presented unique problems for growers in controlling weeds.

For reduced tillage, postemergent herbicide treatments are necessary, especially the grasses. But for most applications, the solution only lasts one season, not long-term.

"Effective control programs do not exist," said Lingenfelter. "We need long-term management for rotational crops."

While there is no magic bullet to solve long-term weed problems, a concerted effort involving the right soybean variety, good herbicide treatment, timing, and rotation can go a long way, according to the graduate student.

Other herbicides compared in the long-term Penn State study, at Landsville and at Rockspring, will look at a variety of other herbicides with the new variety. According to Bill Curran, assistant professor, weed science, the new Monsanto variety won't be available for commercial use until at least 1996.

"We need this research in order to better utilize effective control measures and, for the importance of conservation compliance, it's necessary to integrate weed control approaches in order to manage these problem weeds we have," said Lingenfelter. These methods include "biological, chemical, mechanical," and other means.

Canada thistle is a predominant weed in soybeans, according to Curran. Curran provided detail about reduced herbicide treatments at various timing and incorporation rates, including using diphenyl ethers for broadleaf weed control, for treating thistle and other broadleaves.

Corn herbicide treatment information was not observable at the field day because of severe weather the night before. Wind damage cut corn standability by up to 10 percent in one field at the research center, sheering off stalks. In one plot, a power line went down.

John Yocum, manager of the research farm, spoke about studies that proved that weed germination in full-season beans peaks about the first week of June. But one finding was that there was considerably less weeds in no-till ground than in conventionally tilled soil. But stands depend on a lot of factors, including the weather and other conditions.

Also, research continues to indicate that without a canopy, and with sunlight hitting the soil surface, according to Yocum, producers are losing yield on soybeans.

Also at the field day, Ed Werner, Penn State research technician and graduate student, spoke about his work with a weed economic threshold study in corn. Rob Parks, graduate research assistant, agronomy, spoke about his work on trials involving triazine-resistant lambsquarters, the most common annual broadleaf in the state.

Dwight Lingenfelter, Penn State graduate student and extension assistant, spoke about the effectiveness of Roundup for perennial weed control in transgenic soybeans. He said the trials are looking at long-term control of the warm season perennial weeds, such as hemp dogbane, Johnsongrass, bindweed, and others.

Lebanon Produce Auction To Open

VERNON ACHENBACH, JR.
Lancaster Farming Staff

LEBANON (Lebanon Co.) — Just north of the city of Lebanon, along Rt. 72, Paul Horst has created a meeting place for local producers and buyers. It's called a farmers market.

On Thursday, the 6,000-square foot market site is getting an added dimension — a 4,000-square foot produce auction.

The reason Horst has started the business is mostly because he said he sees a need for the facility and an opportunity to provide a reliable market for area vegetable and fruit growers and a place for local retail businesses to purchase fresh, locally grown produce.

It is not without a little risk. Horst said he sees the risk, but feels strongly that it will work; that local producers, from Lebanon, Lancaster, Berks, Dauphin and Schuylkill counties, will be able to benefit from having a facility where their home-raised goods can be offered for sale.

Local businesses will also be able to know that the goods they buy are not day-old rejects from a grocery vegetable bin.

In fact, that's why Horst said the auction doesn't start until 3 p.m.

"That's so the farmer has time to pick fruit or vegetables in the morning when the moisture content is higher. The freshness is better and it is better for handling than if picked the night before and let sit until the next day," he said.

That means added value for the producer, a chance to market his produce at its peak. And it means a better product for the buyer.

"We have a lot of professional growers in the Hegins Valley, and in the Berks area, etc., and there just is no operation like this in the area. None that is a farmer's market and auction," he said.

He said he believes in it and he is working to make it happen.

"What are all the tobacco growers going to do?" he said, referring to the severe drop in security in a tobacco crop, which has historically been a consistent cash crop for many in southcentral and eastern Pennsylvania.

Vegetables and fruits can also be high-value crops. But Paul said that the outlets for these locally produced items are limited.

Especially in Lebanon County and headed west into Hershey, Hummelstown and Harrisburg.

Sure, there is the summer farmers market in the parking lot of the Farm Show Complex. But that isn't what the produce auction is to be.

This is to be the place that serves as a conduit for local fresh, full-flavored produce to get into the homes and bellies of the people in the area. It's not to be a place where a rejected shipment of produce from California gets sidetracked as a last resort to get a return on the investment.

"I fell strongly that it'll work. That's why I'm making it," Horst said.

Though he didn't mention the market by name, years ago there had been a farmers market north of the city of Lebanon that had been similar to some of those still operating in Lancaster County. It was big and open air and smelled of apples and baked goods in the fall and was full of people most of the time.

Paul Horst stands next to the sign along Rt. 72, north of Lebanon city, at the entrance to his farmer's market, auction facility. Horst has used a part of his family farm to start up a center where the rural/farming grass roots producers can meet and do business with retail buyers or local bulk purchases.

It burned to the ground and wasn't rebuilt the same way.

Horst said he missed the old market place and after talking about it with some other people, decided he could build a place on his farm.

Horst started the farmers market in 1991. He sacrificed part of the 200-some acre farm his grandfather first started working in 1919, and with the help of his two teenaged sons, dug out and graded a flat area to construct the market.

Son Nathan, then 14, did most of the combining that year on the 184 tillable acres left on the farm. He also ran the pan, while younger brother Jeremy, then 12, ran a grader.

"Everybody has a job to do," Paul said, proud of his sons' abilities and eagerness to help. On Wednesday, his sons were helping to build a four-dock loading pad to the auction part of the facility.

Paul drives truck for New Penn, an occupation he grew into having been raised on the fruit and vegetable farm his grandfather J. Morris Horst started, his late father Ralph M. Horst (he used to work for the Farm and Home Administration locally) continued, and that he was born into.

Paul said he used to drive produce truck into markets in Philadelphia, New York and New Jersey.

"Years ago we hauled to Philadelphia, New York ... and we were at the mercy of the broker. You drop (the produce) off, and he'd send you a check. You didn't know who bought it.

"At an auction, a seller can know who the buyer is. You can't and the U.S. Department of Agriculture.

The gist of the news releases were to advise farmers to get vaccinations for all animals and ensure that the booster shot is given; avoid purchasing cattle, especially from unknown sources; establish an on-farm isolation (quarantine) area to hold symptomatic cattle and any new cattle; restrict the flow of people around cattle and require strict attention to personal hygene as far as on-farm biosecurity measures are concerned.

The practices reflect a serious condition, but not one that at this time requires government oversight, according to Dr. Max Van Buskirk Jr., director of the PDA Bureau of Animal Industry.

According to Van Buskirk, who has been involved with government efforts to control several disease outbreaks in Pennsylvania, from a public policy position, BVD 2 differs from such diseases as bovine tuberculosis because humans can get bovine tuberculosis, but can not catch BVD.

In a Wednesday telephone interview, Van Buskirk said there are several reasons public agencies are not in a position to mandate any specific controls for BVD.

According to the doctor, there has been no reason for a stronger governmental response because the disease is not a direct threat to human health; because it is a form of a common disease that is believed to be manageable with current vaccines, and careful veterinary and herd health practices; and because the cattle industry has not requested government help in controlling the disease.

"This is not a disease that industry has requested the department to regulate," Van Buskirk said. "Historically, the department doesn't arbitrarily regulate any disease unless it is a public health concern, or unless the industry can't manage without government assistance.

"BVD is a virus infection of cattle that has been around for a long, long time," he said. "There are USDA estimates that upwards of 90 percent of the adult cattle population has antibodies to BVD.

"So, because it's so common, and because there are some technical difficulties in diagnosing BVD and establishing simple criteria for either determinig a herd 'free,' or that a quarantine for BVD should be released, those are some of the reasons, that ... we haven't regulated."

But Van Buskirk said that the state is not turning its head to the situation.

"Of course what has happened is that a particularly nasty strain has emerged in recent years, and we may, depending on what happens, reconsider the advisablity of regulating the disease.

"Toward that end, although we haven't done anything in terms of a formal proposal of regulations, we have consulted industry groups and our counterparts in other states regarding the advisability in attempting to regulate in this area.

"To the best of my knowledge, there are no other states that regulate this disease," Van Buskirk said.

In the meantime, until the cattle industry and the animal-health industry get caught up with vaccinations, the situation is more wait-and-see, according to the doctor.

Information Available

The educational support on the disease has been in the form of news releases and advisories to the farm press, to veterinarians, and a letter from state Secretary Boyd Wolff to the Pennsylvania State Association of County Fairs.

Penn State Extension also has available some information that can help cattle owners establish sound biosecurity practices.

One such package of information is the "Pennsylvania Dairy Health and Biosecurity Manual," published by the Penn State College of Agricultural Sciences.

The information in the manual was compiled by Larry Hutchinson, DVM, who is a well-known PSU extension veterinarian; Tina Smith, assistant extension veterinarian; and Carolyn Burns, veterinary extension assistant.

The three-ring binder, hard cover manual provides a quick reference breakdown of information, including a checklist that includes giving the BVD vaccinations to calves when they are seven-months-old.

To get a copy, contact a local extension agent.

Will There Be A Show?

As far as the outlook for whether or not the incidence of BVD 2 will affect cattle shows, state Agriculture Secretary Wolff sent a letter, dated June 16, to the state fair board that advised the board members about BVD 2.

The letter noted that the secretary has advised herd owners to consult veterinarians about vaccinations and it noted that the department advised farmers to tighten biosecurity.

"And (Wolff's letter) strongly recommended that fairboards adopt livestock entry regulations that require BVD vaccinations for all bovines, with strict adherance to manufacturer's instructions for vaccines," according to William Lelik, with the state Department of Agricultural Press Office.

"(The letter) also noted symptoms; that animals exhibiting sypmtoms should be barred before comingling with other animals," Lelik said.

As of this week, Butler County Fair had cancelled its show and Clarion County has restricted its cattle show participation to entries from county residents, according to Rev. John Mignot, president of the Pennsylvania State Association of County Fairs.

Mignot said that he received the letter, but they can only advise the individual county fair boards about the situation.

"We're suggesting (to the county boards), before any cattle be admited, that (each) animal does have an original vaccination and booster 30 days afteward. But (the owner) must have a certificate," Mignot said, adding, "It's only a recommendation."

Through his contacts, Mignot said he has received word that shows at least may well be small.

"We are hearing, generally throughout, that most of the farmers are choosing not to exhibit their cattle this year. As you well know, they're not going to run the risk," Mignot said. "That seems to be what we're hearing."

In the meantime, there is no clearinghouse for updated fair information. Lancaster Farming intends to publish updates weekly, as fair personnel can provide. The recommendation for all shows, industry wide, is to call the organizers of the event and ask.

For a fairbaord, there appears to be no direct financial incentive not to close a show, except for a diminished attendance.

According to Larry Nieman, administration of the state Fair Fund Program, each established fair is eligible to receive state funds which reimburse the fairs for half the amount spent, up to $15,000, in the awarding of show premiums, which are cash awards.

The state has a listing of the premiums that it will support and the catagories and types of shows.

Nieman said that if a fairboard would opt to drop showing cattle for a year, it wouldn't affect their reimbursement for monetary outlays for other shows. In other words, if a fairboard spent $30,000 on show premiums, they are to be reimbursed $15,000 by the state fair fund, according to Nieman. If that amount drops $28,000, for example, the board will get $14,000, according to Nieman's explanation.

As far what is happening with the state's 4-H and FFA shows, Dale Olver, a dairy specialist with the Penn State University College of Agricultural Sciences Dairy Extension and 4-H program, said that each of the district shows are still considering what actions to take, beyond implementing the recommendations for requiring vaccinations, certificates and maintaining biosecurity measures.

"We haven't changed state (4-H and FFA showing) rules, but a lot of districts are requiring vaccinations," he said, adding that the required booster shots take 30 days to be given. The show season begins in some areas before then.

As far as show closings, he said, "I haven't heard of too many, but there are many discussing it. The early shows, (scheduled to be held) at the end of July, had the most discussions."

Again, he said the best way to find out if the show is to be held is to call the show managers.

"I think this is a time when people really need to find out what their risk is for going to shows," Olver said. "The vet can be very helpful in doing that."

Record Set At National Jersey Heifer Sale

REYNOLDSBURG, Ohio — Topping last year's average of $2,992, the 1994 edition of the National Jersey Heifer Sale posted an average of $3,353, a new record.

The sale was held June 20 in San Antonio, Texas, in conjunction with the annual meetings of The American Jersey Cattle Club and National All-Jersey Inc. This was the first sale ever to be held on the famous river walk on the San Antonio River.

The 48 heifers sold averaged $3,353.13 with the top price of $10,100 paid for the consignment of Kurt and Carol Alberti, Wendell, Idaho. AU Tildies Berretta Tincia-ET, a three-month-old daughter of Mason Boomer Sooner Berretta, will make her new home at Wirkus Jerseys, Edgar, Wis.

"Tincia" had the highest Parent Average Protein in the sale with a PA Protein of +77. "Tincia" has four brothers at various A.I. organizations, including 21st Century, United Breeders Service, Sire Power and Noba.

Salvation Brook Paramount, consigned by Duane and Christina Anderson of Salvation Jerseys, Milan, Miss. was the second-highest selling animal. H&B Jerseys, Crockett, Va. bid $7,000 for the 10-month-old daughter of Molly Brook Brass Major, PTI +364. "Paramount" is out of one of the first "Berretta" daughters to calve, Salvation Berretta Plush.

George Dorsey of Jersey Pride, Bozeman, Mont., was the volume buyer purchasing eight head at $22,150.

Eight percent of the gross sale price from animals sold in the National Heifer Sale is used to fund the Jersey Youth Programs. Co-chairmen of the event were Ralph Frerichs, LaGrange, TX, and Kris Koon, Brashear, TX. The sale was managed by Jersey Marketing Service, with Merlin Woodruff of Ohio as the auctioneer.

Doug Rohrer, with John Harnish riding along, works the combine that looks like a monster ready to devour the wheat and the camera. This photo was taken off south Lampeter Road, looking toward Rohrer's farm buildings along Bridge Road.

According to farm reports, most of Pennsylvania's barley is harvested, and wheat harvest is well underway. Oat conditions are generally good to excellent, but short stems are common, according to the the state crop and weather report. Corn growth is reported higher than normal on the average, but many areas are still looking for much needed rains at this time. Where moisture is adequate, the third cutting alfalfa is starting to sprout. But haymaking conditions and regrowth are quite variable across the state.

Extreme heat had reduced herbicide effectiveness in many areas. Pasture conditions were variable. Some farmers reported excessively wet pastures. Heat-stressed livestock and reduced milk production were common concerns. Photos by Everett Newswanger, managing editor.

Devino Heads Holstein Foundation

BRATTLEBORO, Vt. — Jason E. Devino has accepted the position of executive director of the Holstein Foundation at Brattleboro, VT.

Michigan breeder Duane Green, Foundation chairman, said, "We saw a need to restructure the administrative staff to meet the growing needs of the Foundation. Jason Devino has the qualifications to fulfill the newly-defined position. He begins July 10."

Devino has been active with Foundation programs for the past two years working with former development director Gwynne Millar who resigns her position in July.

A graduate of University of Vermont, Devino has been cited for a number of recognitions: community service, dairy activities and New England agricultural programs.

After college, Jason worked for Ayrshire Digest, Ayrshire Breeders' Association and Holstein Association of America.

The Holstein Association established the Foundation in 1989 witih a seedstock grant of $500,000. Its purpose was to set aside funds for future youth programs and dairy research. In 1993, money was raised by corporate and individuals to expand support for aspiring young dairy leaders and university research.

The restructuring will bring three positions into the Foundation to assist Devino: a development director, a program coordinator and an administrative specialist.

In development, a director will handle fund-raising using corporate funds and private donors. The program coordinator will direct attention to the summer intern program, distinguished juniors, dairy bowl competitions, national junior convention, Grand National Junior Show and the Young Dairy Leaders Institute.

The administrative specialist will give day-to-day support for business affairs including fundraising, estate planning, scholarships, meetings and leadership programs.

Devino will carry out policy directed by Foundation trustees under the leadership of Chairman Green of Elsie, WI.

Current trustees are: Vice President James Spreng; Secretary Obie Snider, PA; Marlin Hoff, MD; Donald Bennick, FL; Richard Brooks, CO; Dr. Robert Walton, WI; Tom Sawyer, CA; Maurice Mix, VT; Barbara Spoon, OK; Dr. David Smokler, TX and David Pierson, MN.

Get the CHARGE Advantage for...

- ALFALFA
- POTATOES
- TOBACCO
- VEGETABLE CROPS

The CHARGE Advantage

CHARGE Liquid Plant Food is a scientifically balanced NPK liquid foliar nutrient, rich in phosphate and containing humus for increased uptake of nutrients.

The 3 Elements of CHARGE + an Added Benefit

✓NITROGEN to promote fast growth and abundant foliage

✓PHOSPHATE to encourage seed and root development

✓POTASH which is essential for sugar and starch formation and to increase size and quality of fruit plus HUMUS, the added benefit for increased nutrient uptake

ALFALFA

Independent research and growers alike have attested to the benefits of CHARGE in increasing the yield on alfalfa. Growers who use CHARGE on their alfalfa have come to expect significant increases in protein level and decreases in Acid Detergent Fiber. CHARGE has been shown to make a difference in the healthy growth of alfalfa, especially during stressful conditions from weather and pests. CHARGE should be applied at 2 to 4 qts. per acre after dormancy and after each cutting when the crop shows 5 to 6 inches of growth. Get the CHARGE advantage!

POTATOES

Optimum time for applying CHARGE is at tuber initiation, followed by applications at mid and late season. Late applications should be combined with NUTRA-K Liquid Potassium to achieve bulking and increase specific gravity before harvest. CHARGE users have achieved bonus payments for potato crops with more potatoes in the desired premium size and for increased weight and yield. Apply 2 to 3 qts. of CHARGE per acre when plants are 4 to 6 inches high. Get the CHARGE advantage!

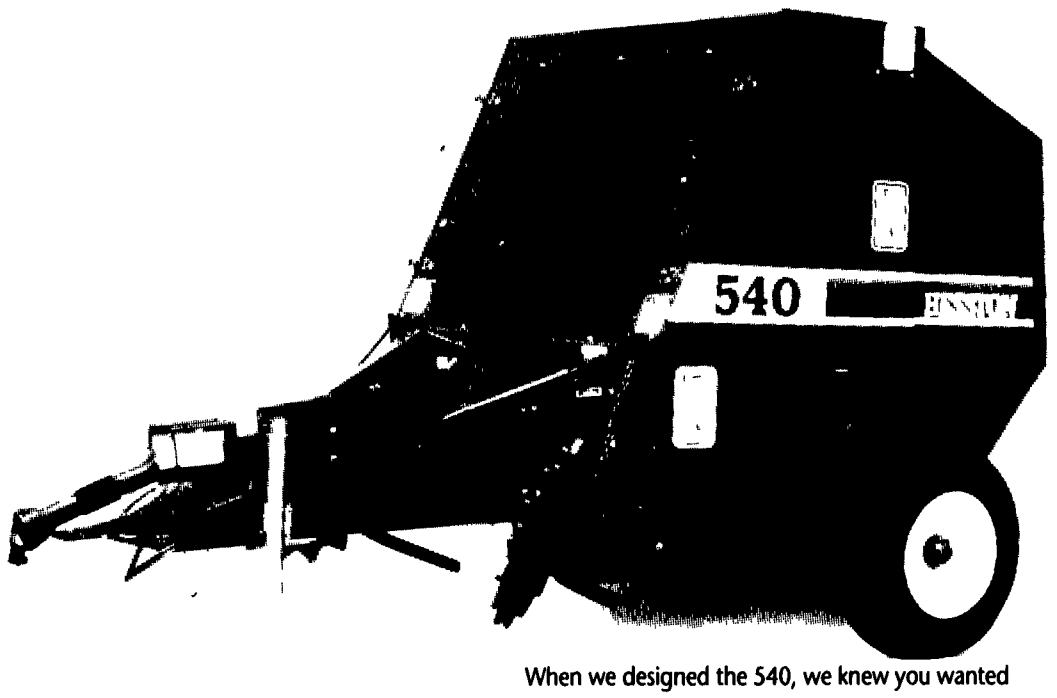
BIGGER BALES. WITHOUT A BIGGER TRACTOR.



When we designed the 540, we knew you wanted a higher capacity round baler with versatility and convenience. We also knew you liked your tractor.

Truth is, you can keep your present tractor. Because with the 540 attached, all you need is a minimum 45 PTO hp tractor. We built the 540 with all the features of a large baler but in a compact, low-profile design. The direct-feed, open-throat design makes for fast bale starts and easy operation, and the variable chamber makes bales from 30" to 51".

You'll be able to handle a wide variety of crops with great maneuverability. All with your current tractor.

So stop in at your AGCO/Hesston dealer listed here and ask about our flexible financing plans for the 540. Or our wide selection of other equipment, all backed by the AGCO Warranty Program. Hesston. It'll change the way you look at hay fields forever.

National All-Jersey Meets, Elect Officers

REYNOLDSBURG, Ohio — Almost 500 Jersey dairy farmers and guests gathered in San Antonio, TX for National All-Jersey Inc.'s (NAJ) 36th annual meeting and other related activities, June 18-20.

Richard Clauss, a dairy farmer from Hilmar, Calif., and NAJ president, shared with the membership how NAJ has changed its marketing efforts during the organizations 36-year history.

Clauss said, "I would probably not be in the dairy business today and certainly not a partner in Hillmar Cheese Co., the nation's most successful Jersey-breeder owned cheese plant, if not for National All-Jersey, Inc."

In his CEO report, Calvin Covington stated, "Some people may think progress toward the nationwide implementation of MCP is slow. However, when one considers how slowly changes take place in the dairy industry, MCP is moving ahead quickly.

"A little over six years ago, not a single federal order had MCP. Today, MCP is either in, or the stage has been set to implement it in, federal orders that market over 55 percent of all federal order milk. If the same progress can be made in the next six years that has been made in the previous six, NAJ will achieve its goal of nationwide MCP by the turn of the century."

In other NAJ business, Ted Luther, Mount Ulla, N.C., was elected president. He replaces Richard Clauss, who served as president for 10 years and was elected president of the American Jersey Cattle Association on June 20. Dan Bansen was elected vice president for NAJ.

Re-elected to four-year terms on the board of directors were Bill Barlass, Janesville, Wis., and Richard Riggs, Evansville, Ind. Jim Ahlem of Hilmar, was appointed to fill a vacancy on the board.

Other Board members are: Paul Chittenden, Schodack Landing, N.Y.; Richard Clauss, Texas; Chuck Luschinger, Syracuse, N.Y.; William Mason, Buhl, Idaho; Robert Stryk, Schulenburg, Texas; and John Palmer, Cornish, Maine. Calvin Covington continues as the executive secretary and Michael Brown as assistant general manager.

National All-Jersey Inc. is a national milk marketing organization associated with the American Jersey Cattle Association that assists its members in obtaining more equitable milk pricing. It is actively involved in the nationwide promotion of multiple component milk pricing and higher minimum solids-not-fat standards for fluid milk.

Field Days Set At BACS Farm

EPHRATA (Lancaster Co.) — Brubaker Agronomic Consulting Service, Inc. (BACS) invites the participation of both growers and agri-business colleagues to their first public field days to be held Wednesday, July 13, 1994 (growers only), and Thursday, July 14, 1994 (agri-business only) at the BACS Research Farm, located on the historical Hibshman Homestead in Ephrata.

On July 13, from 9:30 a.m.-2:00 p.m., growers will have the opportunity to meet with BACS agronomists as they conduct tours of various field plots including variety trials of corn grain, corn silage, soybeans and alfalfa; replicated pesticide trials and a fertility trial.

A free pork bar-b-que picnic lunch will be provided by Monsanto Chemical Company to all farmers attending. Mr. Jeff Vance, Monsanto Sales Representative, will also be available to answer questions on Monsanto's new product line and their innovative Round-Up Resistant soybeans.

Agri-business farm tours will be held on July 14, from 7:30 a.m.-10:30 a.m. and will include variety plots and the latest information on crop production products available. A country breakfast will be served throughout the morning.

Reservations are required for both events. Please call the BACS office, (717) 859-3276, to make your reservations now.

Jersey Membership Approves Name Change

REYNOLDSBURG, Ohio — The members of the national Jersey organization overwhelmingly approved a name change, from "club" to "association" at its 126th annual meeting, attended by nearly 500 Jersey dairy farmers and guests.

The meeting was held in San Antonio, Texas, June 18-20.

Members voted on several amendments to the organization's charter, constitution, and bylaws. Of the eligible voting members, 93 percent approved changing the name from The American Jersey Cattle Club to the American Jersey Cattle Association. The other amendments were approved by 97 percent or more of the membership. The major amendments voted on dealt with redistricting of director districts, membership, reincorporating in Ohio, and genetic recovery.

In his presidential address, retiring President Ray Schooley, Niangua, Mo., reviewed the important changes the organization addressed during his tenure. Those issues included the charter, constitution, and bylaw amendments, the appointment of a new executive secretary, and the first deficit since 1979.

In his first report as executive secretary, Calvin Covington stated that programs and services offered by the organization must help every person using them increase production, maintain efficiency, and improve markets for breeding stock and milk.

Covington also announced that effective Jan. 1, 1995, there would be a restructuring of registration fees. The restructuring will be a stair-step approach in that one fee will apply for the first 50 animals registered during the calendar year, a different fee for 50 to 199 registrations, and another fee for registrations beyond 200 if submitted on computer disk.

During the annual meeting, Richard Clauss, Hilmar, Calif., was elected to a one-year term as President. Joe Buckler, Lakeland, FL, and John Wilk, Raleigh, NC were elected to three-year terms on the Board of Directors. Brody Koon, Brashear, TX and John Palmer, Cornish, ME, were re-elected to three-year terms on the Board. Palmer was also elected Vice President. Other Directors are: James Chaney, Bowling Green, KY; David Jones, Yale, OK; Paul Chittenden, Schodack Landing, NY; Robert Howard, Tillamook, OR; Newell Mills, Fallon, NV; Michael Riggs, Denville, IN; Neal Schirm, Canal Winchester, OH; and D.L. Strandberg, Alma, WI. Calvin Covington continues as Executive Secretary.

The American Jersey Cattle Association is a dairy breed organization that maintains the pedigree records of Jersey cattle and provides programs and services that help increase the profitability of Jersey cattle.

Farm Work Can Be Dangerous If You're Parched

MARSHFIELD, Wis. — Often, farm and other outdoor work needs to be done no matter how hot it is. So in 90-degree heat, preventing dehydration is especially important.

"Farmers won't let animals overheat," said National Farm Medicine Center Medical Director Dean Stueland, M.D. "But sometimes they don't realize they need to take care of themselves, too. Preventing heat exhaustion isn't rocket science. But farmers get busy, neglect themselves, and problems result."

Marshfield Clinic's emergency medicine specialists have already seen several cases of heat exhaustion. Is isn't a minor problem. It often takes two to three days to recover from severe exhaustion, Stueland said.

Farmers and others working outdoors should keep fluids close at hand and drink small amounts, up to apint, frequently. Water isn't the best fluid replacement for those out in the heat for long periods, Stueland said. He recommends sports drinks that contain no more than 8 percent carbohydrates or pure fruit juice mixed with an equal volume of water. Avoid alcohol, carbonated beverages, and drinks that are high in caffeine. Thirst isn't the best gauge of when to drink — when the body loses large volumes of water, the thirst mechanism isn't always reliable.

Symptoms of dehydration include:

- Increased body temperature and abnormally elevated heart rate.
- Impaired performance, loss of energy, weakness, and increased fatigue.
- Nausea and vomiting.
- Headache and lightheadedness.
- Decreased urine output and dark-colored urine.

If symptoms of dehydration or heat exhaustion appear, farmers should take a rest in a shady, breezy spot and drink cool fluids, Stueland suggested. Applying ice or drinking extremely cold liquids can make the symptoms worse. Even after symptoms pass, farmers should drink plenty of fluids for a day or two. Children under 12 and adults over 65 are more at risk of heat exhaustion.

Certain activities can be dangerous in high heat. For example, people should take short shifts working the hay loft because ventilation is likely to be poor, Stue land said. If signs of heat exhaustion appear while farmers are using equipment, they should stop immediately before an accident occurs.

fool anybody," he said.

The situation can provide benefits to the grower and the buyers, according to Horst. From the buyer's perspective, he can get enough of known-origin produce and eliminate the risk of working with an unknown product.

For the producer, talking to buyers and watching the local market can help him tailor his growing efforts to meet real demand, eliminating a lot of the guess work and waste.

Horst said that from his own experience, he is attempting to provide a facility that he would have appreciated had he still been operating the family orchard and produce growing business.

"I grew up in the produce business. I've hauled truckloads into markets. I never liked that system. You never know really what's going to happen," he said.

Horst said he expects buyers to be grocery stores, restaurants, pizza shops, roadside stands, and bulk-buying family groups. Anyone is eligible to be a buyer.

Quantity sizes to be auctioned for a specific vegetable or fruit will depend on the buyers needs, and the amount of produce available. He said he doesn't want to eliminate anyone from getting some of the first of a crop, such as local vine-ripened tomatoes, sweet corn, etc.

The produce auction is to operate on a cash-only basis, unless someone desiring to write checks has a statement from the bank that will cover the check being written. That bank statement will be kept on file.

Paul said he is eager for the start of Thursday's auction, to see people coming together. The sights, the sounds, the smells that are part of a marketplace are hard to forget.

Americans Learn About Hungarian Ag

DENVER, Colo. — James Moench, a lobbying specialist from the North Dakota Farmers Union, and Marilyn Wentz, a communications and media relations specialist from National Farmers Union (NFU), are home after conducting a four-week intensive training program in Hungary. The program is a part of the NFU's Farmer-to-Farmer Program with Hungary which is funded by the U.S. Agency for International Development.

Hungary was once a leading producer of agricultural products for Soviet Block countries, with some 25 percent of its production bound for foreign markets. Then the Soviet Block fell and was replaced with independent democracies. The NFU Farmer-to-Farmer Program is aimed at helping Hungarian farmers and their farm organization make a successful transition from a state system of agriculture to a free market system.

"Hungary has gone through a lot of changes in the past five years and there is still a great deal of uncertainty among farmers," said Wentz. "But there is also a tremendous desire to succeed. The private Hungarian farmers are very creative about finding solutions to their production and marketing problems."

"While we were conducting this program in Hungary, voters went to the polls and elected the former communists back into power — a move that seems shocking to us here in the West," said Moench. "The new private farmers had been working to get credit and find new markets for their products under a government that was supportive of their efforts. The private farm sector is concerned that the new Socialist government will not support their efforts, or worse yet, that it will attempt to again collectivize Hungary's farms."

NFU has been linked with the Hungarian Farmers Circle (FC) for more than a year, first sending groups of farmers to work alongside Hungarian farmers for technical and marketing assistance. During the latest phase of cooperation between the two organizations, NFU staff has worked with FC members to help strengthen the Hungarian farm organization in the areas of lobbying, communications, and media relations.

"The Farmer-to-Farmer Program with NFU is very important to our farmers," said Huba Kozma, president of FC and a former member of the Hungarian Parliament. "We have appreciated receiving practical advice from the NFU representatives, as well as being encouraged to continue in our guest for a vibrant private agriculture sector."

"We emphasized that Hungarian farmers must find a Hungarian solution to their problems and that we were there only to share what had worked in our organization," said Wentz. "The concepts of citizens lobbying their elected representatives and of setting up a comprehensive, non-partisan media relations program were new for our Hungarian counterparts."

In addition to working with FC national staff and board members, the Americans presented two-day seminars to county and local FC leaders in four major centers around the country. "I feel we have had some concrete results already," said Moench. "I believe the leaders of the Hungarian organization have come to understand that they must work with whatever government is in power."

According to Wentz, the Hungarian farm organization has decided to start a national newsletter and will continue to get professional assistance from NFU.

The Americans said there were aspects of Hungarian agriculture that they admired. "The Hungarian producer, in general, has a much closer link to the consumer," said Wentz. "We saw producers selling their raw products, as well as processed goods in the open markets, the result being that the Hungarian farmers' share of the food dollar is much higher than that of the American farmer."

Hungary is still a very rural country, with 18-22 percent of its population being farmers.

A group of dealers, farm advisors, and extension personnel toured the John Zimmerman farm test plots as part of the New Holland Summer Tour sponsored by Ciba and FMC.

New Holland Summer Tour Held

NEW HOLLAND (Lancaster Co.)—Officials said the annual Ciba/FMC farm tour is good public relations for the ag products companies. But their real expressed desire is to have an educational event that lets people know "we are trying to develop safer and better ways to handle pesticides and herbicides," said Steve Fisher, FMC.

Tara Soper, Ciba, agrees. "We have label changes so they fit with the evironmental concerns," Soper said. "Use rates are as low as one ounce per acre. We have pagkages that are water soluable so there is no need for disposal, and exposure to the operator is eliminated."

Ciba's Senior Scientists Garry Schnappinger asserts a higher degree of safety than ever before. "We can zero in on the problem rather than make a blanket application," Schnappinger said. "The narrow spectrum gives a short residual to eliminate environmental concerns."

Jeff Stoltzfus, instructor, adult farmer program, Eastern Lancaster Co. School District, worked with the tour. And the Lancaster County Extension helped too.

Stoltzfus has followed Don Robinson at the school and is credited with "doing a fine job." "I want Jeff to get a lot of credit," Fisher said. "Robinson is a hard act to follow. Jeff is a quiet young man, but he does his job well."

Bill Curran, Penn State, conducted weed identification studies, and Bob Anderson, Lancaster County extension, showed nitrogen testing methods in corn plants by using an electronic meter on the leaves.

In addition to the test plots showing the corn and alfalfa herbicides and pesticides, there were length of control studies and "goof plots" to show what to look for if dealers get a call to help solve a problem.

Four school buses filled with 140 participants traveled from the park to John Zimmerman farm, east of Blue Ball. After the farm tour, lunch was served back at the park.

Beef Industry Holds First Ever Forum

VERNON ACHENBACH, JR.
Lancaster Farming Staff

NEW HOLLAND (Lancaster Co.) — A first-ever forum for cattle feeders to talk directly to packers about the industry, was held Wednesday at Yoder's Family Restaurant in New Holland.

Sponsored by the Pa. Cattle Industry Development Committee, a group organized through Pa. Beef Council contacts and funded with non-checkoff dollars provided by Pennsylvania beef industry businesses, the program was the first of its kind.

In the past, seminars have been sponsored by the extension service, lending institutions, or businesses with a vested interest in providing certain information.

This meeting was different. This was a meeting formed by the committee with the purpose of analyzing and developing a future for the beef cattle industry in Pennsylvania.

The name of the forum, "Feedlot Management Forum — The Pennsylvania Feedlot industry: Now and for the Future," may have been somewhat misleading.

The estimated 150 people who attended the forum were mostly producers and the rules of the forum were simple: ask questions.

The panel of speakers included Dr. Bill Henning, a Penn State Extension meats specialist; Tom Taylor, vice president of Taylor Packing Co.; Mike Silverberg, vice president of Moyer Packing Co.; professor H. Louis Moore, a PSU Extension livestock economist; and Logan McClelland, a Nebraska cattle feeder.

The program attempted to deal with the realities of the industry as far as from the packing companies' perspective and from the producers; and to analyze the future of production.

Dave Ivan, executive director of the Beef Council and staff liason fo the Pa. Cattle Industry Development Committee, said the forum was a crucial step to enhancing the commonwealth's cattle industry.

"This meeting brought together the top cattle feeders within the state to learn and discuss strategies necessary to move the industry foward. As a next step, the results of the survey will be mailed to the attendees, and workshops will be planned which address factors affecting profitability."

Apparently there is a great disparity between the rhetoric of producing beef for market and what concerns are real when it comes to making a product to market.

According to the packers, the situation is that 70 percent of the beef cattle that get slaughtered and cut for sale comes from out of state, mainly because producers in Pennsylvania don't have the quantity matched to demand.

The biggest thing Pennsylvania producers could do for themselves and the packers is to raise cattle for marketing all year around, rather than continue the seasonal surpluses and deficits of cattle availability.

Silverberg told the group that Pennsylvania producers hurt themselves because they overproduce cattle in the spring and underproduce for other times.

Especially with beef prices falling, and the limited profit margins, ignoring the supply-demand swings and continuing to operate status quo won't bring the best prices.

Dr. John Comerford, who performed a survey of those attending at the start of the meeting, told the group that those who intended to continue operating as usual will find themselves out of work.

Also, producers should stop bringing overweight animals.

What the packers need is young, well-muscled animals, Silverberg said.

He said that the packer operates on a very low margin, because of fixed prices, such as labor and facilities, and the flucuating prices of cattle.

The overhead for purchasing cattle represents at least 90 percent of the overhead in a packing operation, while more than 7 percent of the cost is fixed. That leaves about 3 percent maximum for profit margin and that ranges with the price of cattle and demand.

Too many cattle at the wrong time means discounting prices on otherwise quality meat.

Also, the packers said they didn't differeniate as to the breeding of animals, except for the specialty markets.

There have been some significant changes in marketing in the past five years, according to Silverberg. He said that five years ago, Moyer Packing had no export business. Today, 20 percent of the product from Moyer Packing goes to export. He said that Japan is the biggest buyer and expects a high quality, black-blood lined beef that's about 1,400 pounds liveweight.

The rest of the product from Moyer goes to chain stores through the East.

That is why the different weights of animals are needed. The local market doesn't want animals that big. If they are, they immediately get discounted.

Further, keeping animals too long on feed, how they are handled, marked, etc., can result in reduced prices.

While the beef industry has long suffered from a lack of consistency in product, it doesn't look like it will disappear soon. There is no industry-agreed test that can determine meat quality, such as tenderness, and the meat is sold more on looks and market demand for certain cuts.

With boxed beef cuts and trimmed cuts going to chain markets, there is less ability to identify from what type of cattle the meat came.

The bottom line is that packers get paid for the meat they deliver, as it looks and handles. Meat is muscle.

What the packers get paid for is the carcass and the co-products (another name for byproducts), such as the hide.

That's where the value lies, Henning told the group, in the value of the byproducts.

The future of the beef cattle industry is promising according to the speakers. Not only does Pennsylvania have two major packing companies, where other states have none, there is a growing world demand for beef.

"There are hundreds of thousands of millions of people who eat meat around the world, or who will eat beef," said Silverberg, saying he could use more Pennsylvania beef, but he needs it spread out through the year.

Henning said as much, saying that producers may want to consider treating beef production as a full-time operation.

Also discussions were held about the possibility of more contract farming to take place.

Silverberg said that his company does do some contract production, but he said that it is done on a case-by-case basis. However, he said that the company works with enough risk and isn't in a position to eliminate all producer risk.

Silverberg said there is a growing market for Holstein steers, but not for export. He said that because of the boxed beef industry and further refinement of certain cuts, the identity of the original animal breed is not as important for the domestic market.

The other speaker was Logan McClelland, a cattle feeder from Nebraska and president of the Nebraska Cattlemen's Association, it is very important to know the production costs in order to determine profitability.

"As cattle feeders we tend to focus on the price that we're receiving from packers as the determinant of whether we're going to make money," McClelland said. "As businessmen, it is imperative that we focus on our production costs — those factors which we can control — to determine cattle feeding profits."

There are to be more such forums in the future, though no specifics are yet determined.

Week-Long Trip Gives Life-Long Perspective

DAVID HIEBERT
Westmoreland Co. Correspondent

ELY, Minn. — How would you like to spend a week without all the comforts of home? But not just way from home, but in the Boundary Waters Canoe area which snuggles in the upper corner of Minnesota and flops over into lower Manitoba? As much as you like the amenities of civilization, a week away from the usual surroundings and services might be refreshing and give you a new perspective on our culture. At least it did me. And provided a memorable experience for me and my (then 12-year-old) son, James.

Making Contact And Getting Started

From others who had spent time in the wild, I knew about an organization called Wilderness Wind. Contact witih its board president, Virgil Breneman, Goshen, Indiana, lined us up with a group leaving the base camp in the later part of August. Virgil provided guidance and information from his years of experience backpacking and from his work with the Mennonite Camping Association. He would help us prepare for the trip and provide transportation from his home in Goshen.

We could hardly wait for our week on the water.

Preparation for the journey included anticipating conditions without our usual features of civilization; shelter, running water, power. We had to choose carefully: Whatever we wanted with us in the canoe had to fit in what Virgil called a Duluth bag: Each of us would get one bag.

After making the size choices, making sure we kept essentials dry was the biggest concern: The canoe might tip over or we might encounter rain. Just in case, everything would be wrapped in at least one layer of plastic: Zip-lock bags for the smaller items; the sleeping bag went into a plastic garbage bag. Our extra clothes were all wool — it would dry quickly, even under primitive contitions.

The leisure to watch a sunset: One of the special evenings during the week-long trip came as we took the entire evening to watch the sun slip slowly down the sky and slide silently past the horizon. Photo by David Hiebert.

A second concern was animals: During the short, northern feeding season, food attracts bear and mice. Make sure nothing in your gear smells like food, Virgil advised. A mouse could chew up a sleeping bag or be a unwelcome guest in the middle of the night.

In addition to the basics Virgil suggested, I included a few personal items in my pack — a camera, lenses, extra film and a note pad. With some anxiety, I chose one extra woolen shirt and then wondered: Would the pack be too heavy? Would it all fit in that mysterious Duluth bag? Would I be able to add some of James' load to mine, if needed?

In addition to the creature comforts question, there was a spiritual question: Would I be able to find a new appreciation for God and the creation?

In Goshen, Indiana, James and I met Virgil for the long drive to northern Minnesota. Ghere we also met some of the others who would be our companions in the wilderness: Bruce, Steve; Glenford and Jeremy (another father and son pair). Later, we would meet Cheryl, our Wilderness Wind guide, and Lorne, a Mennonite pastor from Manitoba.

For a canoe trip on the United States side of the Boundary Waters Canoe Area, we could have added one more for a maximum of 10 people in the group. Had we planned to cross over into Canada, our group was as large as allowed.

In Minnesota At Last

After the drive through Wisconsin's dairyland and the shipping port of Duluth, we arrived in one of the remote towns of the United States — Ely, Minnesota. With only one main road into the town, it is less than 20 miles from the Canadian border, and about 50 miles from Lake Superior.

We would, like thousands of others, launch our expedition through the gateway to the wilderness. Tim Lehman, founder of Wilderness Wind chuckled when I asked about the difference between his base camp service and the many others in town: "Price," he said.

When urged to explain more, Tim continued by saying that the Wilderness Wind base camp provides equipment at a much lower rate than the commercial establishments. But they don't provide just equipment. All trips are planned to provide a safe physical journey and a spiritual experience for each participant. The orientation before going on the water includes spiritual preparation and the guide for each group provides both spiritual and physical guidance for the journey.

A part of the first day of orientation, each person received some standard equipment: compass, stainless steel Sierra cup, spoon, water bottle and Duluth bag.

Community property (things we would all share) such as tents, food, first aid kits, cooking pots, paddles and canoes were also supplied by Wilderness Wind.

On The Water

When we launched on Monday morning, we unde.stood the state conservation people's concern about group size. Though permits for groups are issued on a limited basis several months in advance, we experienced traffic congestion as we attempted to launch our canoes. Three or four groups were also getting their start at the same Boundary Waters entrance that we had chosen.

The concentration of other canoeists led Cheryl to push us that first day — get as far as possible and put some space between us and the other groups. What she did not expect caused our first trouble: Rain.

As we were sorting out several things that first day, many sensations were rushing at me. Other than an occasional canocist, there were no signs of civilization.

How did we know where to go? The map and the compass helped us sort it out — a small clearing or a tent on a shore correlated to a campsite on the map. With the compass we could get a general direction. There were no street signs or house numbers. In fact the only sign we saw (later in the trip) pointed some of us in the wrong direction!

For me, other sorting out that had to happen was getting the canoe to go straight. Though I'd had a weekend course in canoeing and water safety, and some practice, the slippery botton canoe seemed to go its own way. The person in the rear of the canoe provided the steering element, the one ahead provided the most forward power. Virgil was helpful with paddling

Balancing a big load: The relatively small lakes made portages a part of each day's trips. Measured in rods (16.5 ft.) on the map, the longer ones gave us new appreciation for the heritage behind city names, like Portage la Prairie, Manitoba. hints. Before the end of the day, I felt better and I think my skill improved. Bruce, however, thought I was deliberately meandering with the canoe as a way to explore. By the end of the week, I could keep the canoe on a straight course.

Rain

In the midst of learning to paddle, getting adjusted to sitting in the bottom of the canoe, and sorting out where we were going, it started to rain. Some of us got our rain gear out, but I became concerned about James. He was getting wet, but would not put on the rain coat. As a fashion-conscious youngster, he considered it ugly.

The sometimes-on-sometimes-off sprinkles turned into a steady drizzle. About lunch-time we came to a portage and Cheryl strung up a tarp for some temporary shelter while we had lunch.

We paddled about 10 miles that first day in the rain. When Cheryl pointed to a camp site, we were ready to rest. As we unloaded, I was very tired but pleased that the waterproofing on my dumb hat had kept my head dry. As the intermittent rain continued while we set up camp, drying out and warming up became our first big task. During that time, James began shivering, and even admitted that he was cold. That spurred me on to get the fire going — for him and myself.

The underside of a slanting tree yielded some semi-day splinters to get a fire going. As some of the damp wood began burning, we were able to shake off the chills and get some food. Before settling in for some sleep, we clustered around the fire, told stories, and listened to the night sounds: far-off wolves and the closer loons.

As the morning sun burned down on that first campsite, we could hardly believe our despondency from the previous night. The sun on the warm rocks by the lake shore warmed and dried our wet fabrics. We were ready to move on again.

The Food

Protecting our food from wild animals — especially bear — presented our group with a unique challenge each time we came ashore to make camp. Our first task at each campsite was to find a limb or crossbar from a previous camper and hoist the food bags out of danger. Though on one level, it might sound like fun to see some wildlife, Cheryl assured us that we'd rather not see a bear going through our camp looking for food. That was the kind of excitement any trip could do without.

We shared food preparation, clean-up, and other camp duties. The trick came in preparing just the right amount of food. To keep the campsite clean and discourage marauding scavengers, we did not discard any food. Some items, like the gorp we snacked on each day after an hour or two on the water, could last for months if kept dry. Other food supplies, when prepared had to be eaten.

Some Observations

The trip at times became a test of our physical endurance. The word portage has new meaning after carrying a 60-pound canoe and 30-40 pound backpack through the 179 rod portage from Insula to Kiana Lake.

Our skill and endurance were also tested as we came out of the lee side of an island and faced a fresh freeze and white caps on the waves. Ahead, the other canoes were looking small. Did we really want to face this or wait until the wind relaxed its persistent push? Virgil, at the back of the canoe, waved me on, and we started some serious paddling. The wind pushed so hard that if we stopped paddling together, we would have gone backward. Some waves splashed over the sides but we paddled on. Twenty-five strokes on the left then twenty-five on the

On being a farm wife - And other hazards

Joyce Bupp

All cooks know that old cliche that a watched pot never boils.

And this gardener has long been convinced that a watched tomato never ripens.

There's no produce we personally wait for from the garden with more impatience than that first fresh, sweet, red-ripe, home-grown tomato. In an effort to hasten the home-grown tomato harvest, I've tried just about everything to jump-start Mother Nature's own ripening schedule. But to little avail.

I've started tomatoes in the greenhouse in January and found they ripen with fruit no faster than the April-started seedlings. I've covered them with frost-protection blankets. I've built plastic bag tents around young tomato plants, with containers of water tucked inside the "tents" to ward off chilly nights and encourage fruit set. I've even tried a supposedly cold-set, Arctic-type, early-ripening variety, only to have the old standard Early Girl plants beat 'em to the red-ripe finish line.

This year's effort was determined as ever, though years of losing the "ripe by first-week of July" race has left me wiser, if no less impatient for that first picking. The Early Girl plants looked super by early May and the row of black plastic went down in good time to warm the soil, despite the late, wet, cold spring.

Then, in a weird turn of first-time-this-ever-happened events, the field sprayer passing the garden enroute to the sweet corn next door accidentally discharged a slight misting of corn herbicide over a small corner of the garden.

It was the little section of garden where my half-dozen prized well-started, vigorous Early Girl plants snuggled down in their cozy hurry-up-the-ripening, plastic tents.

Luckily, just about every tomato seed I'd planted in the greenhouse starting flats had germinated. Within a few hours of the mishap, the earlier question of where this tomato seedling overrun was going to go was no longer an issue. Remaining Early Girl seedlings, considerably smaller than their larger siblings because they had germinated later, found homes in some spare space in the far, opposite corner of the garden.

Then it turned chilly. And, then it turned dry and desert-hot. And in between, I nearly cooked the tomato replants by trying to hasten them along under a frost-protection cover - which I forgot to remove until late afternoon one busy, sun-splashed day. With heartfelt apologies, I rushed in the garden bearing buckets of water to try coaxing the wilting tomato plants out of heat stroke.

Despite all my "help," the tomato plants have grown into thick bushes of stems and leaves, covered with fat, green tomatoes. Take note: green. None has yet shown the slightest inclination toward ripening to that beautiful red, juicy readiness. Once again, I'm an also-ran in the competitive, early-July, ripe-tomato race.

Sometimes, I guess we just try too hard to rush certain things that can't be rushed.

And if Mother Nature is trying to teach me patience, she's surely convinced by now that I'm an awfully slow learner about the fruitlessness of hurrying-up tomatoes.

Free Program On Feeding Family Right For Less

HONESDALE (Wayne Co.) — If you want your family to eat right but can't stretch the budget as far as you'd like, give the Wayne County Expanded Foods and Nutrition Education Program (EFNEP) a try. We have a series of free lessons to help you get the most from your food dollars.

The lessons offer information on food preparation, meal planning, food safety, shopping skills, and nutrition for all family members. Homemakers are taught in small groups or individually by Esther Doney, Wayne County's nutrition education adviser.

The Eating Right is Basic program also has a series for children that includes topics such as food preparation, food safety, snack choices, nutrition, and health and fitness. Children learn through 4-H clubs or groups led by volunteers. For more information on nutrition materials available for youth, contact Evie Vitali, youth nutrition agent.

EFNEP is administered by the U.S. Department of Agriculture, state cooperative extension, and county extension offices. Instead of free food or food stamps, the program offers information that develops your knowledge and skills in planning a healthful diet on a limited budget.

If you or your child would like to be a part of EFNEP, contact Evie or Esther at the Wayne County Extension office, (717) 253-5970 x 239 or stop by the office located in the basement of the original courthouse, Honesdale.

Week-Long Trip

right. A quick glance at the shore showed we were making progress, but the canoes ahead seemed smaller.

When we finally arrived on the other side of the lake, two canoes were ahead of us. We waited for the fourth, slightly out of breath, but with a feeling like we'd just passed a major test of our skill and endurance.

Looking Back

During this trip, I had been too busy looking and learning to specifically track our progress. Afterward, in reviewing our route on the map, we had dipped our paddles in at least 27 lakes. But the actual distance was only 35 miles.

The leisure to watch the changing scenery as we paddled or rested in a campsite gave me a new appreciation for the work God carries on each day. I came back assured that God has a long-term perspective on us. And I'm glad to be part of the creation.

THE MAGIC OF LAUGHTER

I enjoy telling funny stories and playing tricks on others. There's nothing better than a good laugh. But sometimes, the laugh is on me!

Let me tell you a little story. In July 1992, Russell and I wewnt on a horse back camping trip into the wilderness in southern Montana. We didn't know any of the other 15 people on the trip.

After a day on the trail, we reached our base camp and supper time finally came. The camp cook enjoyed telling us about the old sheep herders who used to use this spot as a camp years ago. Legend has it that the herders always had a pot of stew going on the stove. Each day they would add a little more water and meat. During the months they were in the mountains, one of them lost his false teeth in the stew pot and they never realized it until they emptied the kettle when snowfall came. Now, years later, the old choppers are like a ghost in camp, they appear and disappear. I never gave the story another thought after it was told.

The second morning in camp, it seemed that everyone was coming to breakfast at the same time. When I thought about it later, this was highly unusual because the day before, they really straggled in. When Russell and I arrived at the makeshift dining tent, the cook and his helpers informed me that I was very special and that they wanted to actually serve me breakfast.

So I sat down and everyone else quickly took their places, all of us sitting on these skinny boxes in which the food had been transported on horseback. I was quite impressed when they set three pieces of delicious looking french toast down before me. Everyone started to eat. I'm particular when I eat french toast. I don't like it piled on top of one another. With my fork, I carefully began to lay out the pieces. Suddenly when I picked up the last piece I saw that horrible set of dirt-looking legendary false teeth pressed into my toast. As I screamed and fell backwards off my seat, the camp dogs came running and barking to the scene.

Everyone in camp had a great laugh at my expense. It turned out that the entire camp knew what was going to happen — even Russell. After spending two days with me, it seemed those strangers who quickly became friends, knew I enjoyed playing tricks on others and appreciated a good laugh on me instead.

LAUGH FOR HEALTH

How many times have you laughed so far today? Researchers suggest that the average American needs to laugh 15 or more times a day to be healthy. When we think of mental wellness, we usually think of stress management, holding ourselves together, coping with and enjoying life, exercise, and nutrition. Rarely do we think of laughter and humor as possible ways to deal with stress and change.

Dr. William Fry, a researcher in the psychology of laughter at Stanford University, says that 20 seconds of intense laughter can quickly double the heart rate of three to five minutes. This same accomplishment would take three minutes of strenuous rowing exercise! Studies show that muscles in the chest, neck, abdomen, shoulders, face and scalp get a beneficial workout and that other parts of the body are more relaxed during a laughing session.

Laughter exercises the lungs and breathing muscles and stimulates the circulatory system. While we are laughing, the chest, abdomen, and face get a workout. The entire cardiovascular system is benefited by increased oxygen in the blood. Some have called this internal jogging. It stimulates the endocrine system and causes secretion of hormones which stimulate your heart and breathing. Endorphins, our natural pain killers, are released. After laughter is over (if your have laughted extra hard) there is the feeling of turning to rubber.

Laughter is a stress reducer. When a person laughs, he or she briefly loses muscles tone. All the tense muscles of the body are relaxed.

We all experience stress, anxiety, and frustration. Many times we look at things negatively. However, we can be free from these negatives. We can take a bad situation and turn it into a positive one. That is, we can change our beliefs or perspectives about a situation.

If you believe that the world has been good, you would see it as good. If you believe that the world is a negative place to live, then it will be negative. A sense of humor is a sense of perspective. It keeps you from getting brittle in the face of change.

Lighten your attitudes about yourself and your anxieties will become lighter, too! Remember, laughter is contagious, as I found out with that old set of choppers. Don't worry or analyze why people laugh — just participate.

Herbs Can Bring Sweet Smell Of Success

HUNTINGDON (Huntingdon Co.) — Herbs — once used for everything from stomach ache remedies to air fresheners — have made a comeback. "Interest in herbs has increased rapidly in the past few years," said Keppy Arnoldsen, horticulture graduate student in Penn State's College of Agricultural Sciences.

Last year, Arnoldsen and Aime Voisin, a senior majoring in horticulture, completed an independent study project growing 67 herbs in an ornamental plot at Penn State's Trial Gardens. Their demonstration garden provided information used to compile a Penn State publication entitled "Herbs for the Home Gardener." This 68-page publication has 58 colored illustrations and information on 32 herbs, including common and scientific names, plant characteristics, hardiness, size, soil preference, propagation, pests and disease, bloom time, and color and uses for the herbs.

"Many commercial growers are finding it lucrative to sell herbs wholesale to garden centers and stores. There's also a large market in dried herbs for decorations, teas, cooking and other uses. You can make a career out of herbs," said Arnoldsen.

Voisin plans to do just that. "Herbs have such unusual textures, colors and scents. I got interested in them when I worked in a greenhouse after graduating from high school," she said. "I started buying books about herbs, and now I've decided to become a wholesaler and sell dried herb products.

It's one thing to read about herbs in a book, and it's another to grow them," said Voiosin. "We had some surprises in our independent study. Some plants turned out to be incredibly bushy and took up three times the space we thought they would. And I never realized that cilantro and coriander are really the same plant — one is the leaf and one is the seed."

"Herbs for the Home Gardener" is availabale for $8 from county cooperative extension offices or from the Publication Distribution Center, 112 Agricultural Administration Building, University Park, PA 16802.

Peachy Recipes For Summer Eating

How do you select a peachy peach?

Here are some tips:

• Ripe peaches have a creamy or golden undertone.

• The amount of rosy blush on the surface is a characteristic of the variety, not ripeness.

• Fragrance is also an indicator of ripeness.

• Select peaches that are slightly soft to firm and free from bruises. Avoid green colored peaches because they are unripe and will not become sweeter as the color changes.

To ripen firm peaches, store between 65-70 degrees with relative humidity of 95 percent. The amount of time required to ripen peaches varies depending on the peaches' firmness, but expect about 2 to 4 days.

Ripe peaches should be refrigerated in a single layer to prevent bruising and spoilage.

To peel peaches, dip in boiling water for 20 to 30 seconds. Immediately dip in cold water and skin will slide right off. Riper fruit needs less scalding time to loosen peels.

Peaches brown rapidly when exposed to air. To prevent this, soak halves or slices for 5 minutes in 1 quart water with 3 tablespoons lemon juice and two crushed 500-mg vitamin C tablets.

Approximately 3 to 4 peaches equals 1 pound, which equals 2 cups sliced peachs or 1½ cups of pulp or puree.

FRESH PEACH CRISP

Bottom:

8 or 9 fresh ripe peaches, sliced (may add some sugar and/or cornstarch/flour if real juicy)

Topping:

1 cup flour
1 cup granulated sugar
¼ teaspoon salt
½teaspoon cinnamon (optional)
½ cup butter

Put peaches in 8-inch by 8-inch by 2-inch square pan. Mix remaining ingredients as for pie crust until it resembles coarse cornmeal. Spread over peaches. Bake 45-50 minutes until topping is golden and peaches are tender. Serve with cream while warm.

PEACH DELICIOUS

One 13-ounce box of Jell-O cake mix
1½ cups of fresh peaches, thinly sliced
2 tablespoons sugar
1 teaspoon cinnamon
(Frozen or drained and canned peaches, sliced, may be used)
2 tablespoons sugar
¼ teaspoon grated lemon rind
1 cup sour cream

Grease a 9-inch by 12-inch baking pan. Prepare cake mix according to package directions. Spread batter in pan. Arrange peach slices in rows over cake mix. Mix sugar and cinnamon and sprinkle over peaches. Bake in 350-degree oven for about 30-35 minutes.

For glaze, blend sugar and lemon rind into sour cream. Spread evenly over cake. Return to oven for 3 to 4 minutes. Cool and cut into squares. May also top with whipped cream topping.

LAZY MAN'S PEACH PIE

1 stick butter
¾ cup milk
1 teaspoon baking powder
1 cup sugar
¾ cup flour
1 can or 2 cups peaches, sliced, juice included (but drained off)

Melt butter in casserole dish. Mix flour, sugar, and baking powder. Add milk and spread over butter. Pour peaches over this, leaving juice for last ingredient to be poured over all. Bake 40-45 minutes at 350 degrees.

PEACH COBBLER

1 gallon sliced peaches
2 cups sugar
1 stick butter
2 tablespoons nutmeg
2 baked pie shells

Cook peaches for 10 minutes with sugar butter. Add nutmeg. Turn off heat. Break in the two pie shells. Let sit a few minutes and serve. Serves 20.

Peach Custard Tart features a crispy crust, lowfat filling and slices of fresh, naturally sweet juicy peaches.

PEACH CUSTARD TART

36 vanilla wafers, crushed
3 tablespoons honey
½ cup sugar
6 tablespoons cornstarch
1 egg
1 egg white
2 cups nonfat milk
1 teaspoon grated orange peel
1 teaspoon vanilla
5 fresh peaches, divided

Mix crushed wafers with honey; press into bottom of 9-inch removable bottom tart pan. Bake at 375 degrees for 12 minutes or until crisp and it begins to brown.

Mix sugar and cornstarch in bowl; whisk in egg and egg white. Scald milk in medium saucepan; slowly whisk into egg mixture. Return to saucepan and cook over lowest heat, stirring constantly to prevent burning, until mixture thickens. As it thickens, use a whisk to keep smooth. Stir in orange peel and vanilla. Cool to lukewarm. Chop enough peach to measure 1 cup; add to custard filling. Turn into tart shell and chill. Before serving, slice remaining peaches and arrange on top. Makes 8 servings.

To prevent sliced peaches from discoloring, dip in mixture of 1 cup water and 1 tablespoon lemon juice.

Rebecca Bechtel, the 1993-1994 Tioga County Dairy Princess, wants to leave you with some great recipes to beat the summer's heat.

The best way to beat the heat is, she says, by using real dairy products. One of her favorites is eating ice cream. There are so many different flavors to choose from that it's no wonder it's America's #1 dessert. Another great, refreshing dairy product would be a nice cold glass of milk to quench your thirst. There are more dairy products you can find in the dairy case in your grocery store that will also help you survive the summer. Here are two tasty recipes that I'm sure you'll love as much as I do.

ICE CREAM CAKE

1 chocolate cake
2-3 oz. boxes instant chocolate pudding
1 cup milk
4 cups vanilla ice cream, softened
8 oz. la Creme whipped topping

Mix the Pudding, milk, and ice cream together until smooth. Spread over cake and top with whipped topping. Serves 6-8.

CHOCOLATE ICE CREAM DESSERT

2 cups vanilla wafer crumbs
½ cup butter
2 squares chocolate or 6 Tablespoons cocoa
1½ Tablespoons butter
2 cups powdered sugar
3 beaten egg yolks - 3 beaten egg whites
½ gallon vanilla ice cream

Butter a 12" x 14" pan. Sprinkle 1½ cups wafer crumbs over the bottom. Melt butter and chocolate together over low heat. Add beaten egg yolks and powdered sugar. Cook slowly for a few minutes. Remove from heat and fold in the egg whites. Spread batter over the wafer crumbs and cool. Slice ice cream 1 in. thick and lay evenly over the crumbs. Sprinkle remaining crumbs over ice cream and cover tightly with aluminum foil. Freeze until ready to serve. Serves 12 - 15.

Consuming Thoughts

Penn State Extension

Shedding a few pounds and slimming one's waistline often become priorities when warm weather arrives. But, reducing calorie intake should not mean eliminating dairy products.

Dairy products provide many of the nutrients you need each day. Some of these are low in calories, others are not.

Because dairy products are so refreshing and tasty, they have the reputation with some people as being high in calories. Actually, they have fewer or the same number of calories and more nutrients than many of the products used in their place.

For example, butter and margarine have exactly the same number of calories — 34 in one teaspoon. The importance difference to many cooks is, of course, the flavor.

A calorie comparison of half-and-half and liquid coffee whitener gives similar results. One tablespoon (15 grams) of real half-and-half, which is a blend of cream and milk offers 65 International Units (I.U.) of vitamin A.

One-half fluid ounce (also 15 grams) of frozen liquid coffee whitener contains the same amount of calories but only 13 (I.U.s) of vitamin A. All figures come from the United States Department of Agriculture.

Salads make up an important part of many summer menus. Raw vegetables, lettuce, and other greens are low in calories, but many weight and waist watchers often slip up when they add the dressing.

If you want to save on calories and at the same time have a fresh tasting topping for vegetables and fruit salads or a dressing for meat, egg and cheese, and pasta salads, try making some at home using sour cream and your own seasonings or a packaged dry milk.

Sour cream contains only 26 calories per tablespoon compared with mayonnaise-style "salad dressing" at 65. For those on more stringent kinds of weight-reduction diets, making dressing with low-fat or non-fat yogurt or sour cream can cut food energy intake even further while retaining the fresh taste of real dairy foods.

Low-fat yogurt and cottage cheese can form the protein foods; they cut calories while maintaining protein quality. For example, four ounces of creamed cottage cheese, which has 4.2 percent milkfat content, provides about the same amount of protein as two ounces of cooked lean ground beef or two large (two ounces each) hard-boiled eggs.

This amount of cottage cheese contains 117 calories; ground beef, 122; and eggs, 164. If you choose low-fat dairy products for some of your meals, you'll be buying a product just as nutritious, while providing less fat and fewer calories.

No matter what type of diet you choose — weight reduction, sports, and fitness-oriented for outdoor activities, or a basic meal plan, always include milk or milk products.

Whole milk contains 150 calories per eight ounces and is a "nutrient dense" food, providing many nutrients in that one serving.

Someone in your family might want to choose low-fat milk with 2 percent milkfat which has 120 calories per eight ounces; with 1 percent milkfat, 100 calories.

Again, for those on more stringent weight-reduction diets, skim milk with 85 calories per eight-ounce serving makes an excellent beverage choice. All of these milks have approximately the same nutrient profile as whole milk, which makes them good buys in terms of both dollars and diet.

When you're watching what you eat, foods and beverages such as soft drinks, that use up part of your calorie allotment but provides few nutrients, can be costly to your own diet plan.

Milk and other real dairy foods give you the energy for summer activities and many of the basic nutrients needed for good health, as well as helping you meet the goal of your diet plan.

Pa. German Quilts On Exhibit

HERSHEY (Dauphin Co.) — A dazzling array of colorful, Pennsylvania German quilts dating between 1850 and 1940 are featured in the Hershey Museum's current, special exhibition, "A Quilt Family Album."

The title of the exhibit is drawn from the unique origins of the collection; each quilt was carefully designed, stitched, and preserved by the women of one rural, Lebanon County Pennsylvania German family.

In addition to the information about the quilts, the exhibit explores the lives of these quiltmakers who were also farm wives responsible for much productive labor in the household, dairy and garden. Quiltmaking was only one of the myriad of important tasks which made up the daily, seasonal, and annual cycles of these rural women.

Never before exhibited, the quilts were selected from more than thirty, heirloom, bedcoverings belonging to the family of Mr. and Mrs. Richard Kenneth Rohland of Cleona. The quilts were passed down from generation to generation by members of Mrs. Arlene Bomberger Rohland's family. While the quilts survived and were carefully preserved, the untimely deaths of two women of the family were responsible for the loss of the stories about the quilts and their makers.

During the research phase of the exhibit, guest curator Patricia Keller, museum consultant, researcher, and former director of the Heritage Center of Lancaster County, painstakingly reconstructed portions of the family history and the stories about the quilts and their makers' lives. Eenealogical date and the quilts' own physical evidence suggests these bedcoverings were the work of women from one or more generations of the Wengert, Bomberger, Steinmetz, Ulrich, Kettering, and Light families of Lebanon County.

Included in the exhibit are turn-of-the-century photographs taken from glass plate negatives of the farm communities in North and South Annville Township areas in which the women quilted. A treadle sewing machine, quilting frame, and quilting templates and patterns are also included.

The exhibit can be viewed daily from 10 a.m. to 6 p.m. Admission to the museum is $4 for adults, $3.50 for senior citizens, and $1.75 for children 3 - 15. Group rates are available. For more information, call (717) 534-3439.

QUESTION — Edna Mortimer, Conestoga, would like a no-knead bread recipe.

Cumberland Sauce

1 cup red currant or apple jelly
¼ cup orange juice
¼ cup lemon juice
¼ cup red wine or apple juice
2 tablespoons honey
1 tablespoon cornstarch

Combine all ingredients in medium saucepan. Cook over medium heat until thickened, stirring often.

Cherry Almond Ham Glaze

12 ounces cherry preserves
¼ cup vinegar
2 tablespoons corn syrup
¼ teaspoon ground cinnamon
¼ teaspoon ground cloves
¼ teaspoon ground nutmeg
⅓ cup slivered almonds
3 tablespoons water

Combine all ingredients except almonds and water in a saucepan. Bring to a boil. Reduce heat. Simmer 2 minutes, stirring often. Stir in almonds. About 15 minutes before ham is done, spoon ¼ to ⅓ cup glaze over ham. Repeat if desired. Stir water into remaining glaze; heat throughly and serve with ham. Yield: about 1½ cups glaze.

ANSWER — Cindy Stahl, Elm, wanted recipes for several variations of shoo-fly pie, especially lemon, chocolate, and coconut shoo-fly pies. Thanks to Elizabeth Seibert, Fredericksburg, Floy Baker, Mohnton; and to Ethel Barnes, Manheim, for sending several recipe varieties of shoo-fly pie.

Lemon Shoo-Fly Pie

Crumbs:
3 cups flour
1 cup sugar
1 cup shortening
1 teaspoon baking soda

Mix flour, sugar, shortening, and baking soda together to make crumbs.

Filling:
Juice and rind of 2 lemons
1 egg, beaten
1 cup sugar
4 tablespoons flour

Mix together juice, egg, sugar, and flour. Beat in:
1½ cups hot water

Peachy Recipes

PEACH PUDDING

3 egg yolks
½ cup butter
2 cups granulated sugar

Cream together ingredients, then add:
1 cup milk
2½ cups flour
2 teaspoons baking powder

Beat egg white until fluffy, and add to batter. Then add vanilla.

Grease and flour 9-inch by 13-inch cake pan. Place peeled and sliced peaches on bottom of pan. Pour batter over top of peaches and bake at 375 degrees until brown (approximately 30 minutes).

Cathy Christ

Chocolate Shoo-Fly Pie

1⅓ cups chocolate syrup
1 teaspoon vanilla

Crumbs:
1 cup flour
½ cup sugar
⅓ cup shortening
¼ teaspoon baking soda

Make crumbs and set aside ½ cup of the crumbs add the remaining crumbs to the liquid mixture. Pour the liquid mixture into a 9-inch unbaked pie shell. Sprinkle the ½ cup of crumbs on top. Sprinkle a bit of cinnamon on top if desired. Bake at 375 degrees for 45 minutes.

Coconut Shoo-Fly Pie

1 cup flour
¾ cup dark brown sugar
1 cup syrup
1 cup hot water
1 tablespoon shortening
1 cup coconut
1 egg, slightly beaten
1 teaspoon baking soda
9-inch unbaked pie crust

Mix together flour, dark brown sugar, shortening and coconut to form crumbs. Reserve ½ cup of this mixture for topping.

In another bowl, mix egg, syrup, and hot water. Add to dry mixture. Dissolve baking soda in remaining ¼ cup hot water and add to mixture. Pour into unbaked pie shell. Sprinkle with remaining crumbs. Bake at 375 degrees for 35 minutes.

ANSWER — Shirley A. Womer, Hiddleburg, wanted a salsa recipe to can in small jelly jars for Christmas gifts. A Centre County reader also wanted a salsa recipe to use on sandwiches. Thanks to Laurie Donaldson, Stewartstown; Maureen Hutter, Latrobe; Mary Davis, Ebensburg; and others for sending recipes.

Salsa

12 tomatoes, skinned and broken apart

Chop:
4 green peppers
3 cloves garlic
3 medium onions
4 hot peppers

Add:
1 tablespoon salt
1 tablespoon basil
½ tablespoon cumin
½ cup vinegar

Salsa

7 pounds tomatoes, peeled and chopped
1-2 pounds chopped peppers, hot or hot and sweet combined
1 pound onions, chopped
1 cup vinegar OR ½ cup bottled lemon juice
1 tablespoon salt
½ teaspoon pepper

Drain some juice from tomatoes. Combine ingredients in a large kettle. Bring to a boil and simmer 10 minutes. Fill jars, leaving ½ -inch headspace. Adjust lids and process in hot water canner, for pints, 20 minutes.

Salsa Recipe

4 cups peeled, cored, chopped tomatoes
2 cups seeded, chopped green peppers
1 cup seeded, chopped hot peppers
¾ cup chopped onion
1½ teaspoon salt
2 cloves garlic, minced
1½ cups cider vinegar
Few pinches cilantro, optional

Combine all ingredients in large saucepan. Bring to a boil. Reduce heat and simmer 20 minutes. Pour hot into hot jars, leave ¼ -inch at top. Cap and boil in water bath for 30 minutes. Makes 6 half-pints.

(Turn to Page B9)

PEACH SPREAD

4 cups chopped (peeled and pitted) peaches
Two 12-ounce cans of concentrated white grape juice
1 box SureJell for low-sugar recipes
½ teaspoon butter

Mix peaches and grape juice concentrate in large kettle. Stir in SureJell gradually. Add butter. Bring to full rolling boil on high heat. Boil exactly 20 minutes, stirring constantly. Take off heat, stir and skim foam.

Ladle into sterilized jars and seal. Makes 4 cups.

PEACH CREAM CHEESE PIE

Three 9-inch baked pie crusts
1½ package (12 ounces) cream cheese, softened
1 can sweetened condensed milk
8-ounces of whipped cream topping
1 quart peaches, canned or fresh

Blend together cream cheese and milk until smooth. Fold in whipped cream topping. Spread a thin layer on bottoms of pie crusts. Arrange sliced, well-drained peaches on it. Top with remaining cream cheese mixture. If desired, garnish with peaches.

Mary Peachey
McAlisterville

PEACH COBBLER

1½ teaspoon cornstarch or Clear gel
¼ teaspoon ground nutmeg
½ cup brown sugar
½ cup water
4 cups peaches, sliced
1 tablespoon lemon juice
1 tablespoon butter
Biscuit dough*

Combine cornstarch, nutmeg, brown sugar, and water in a saucepan. Cook until thick. Add sliced peaches, lemon juice, and butter. Cook until peaches are hot (about 5 minutes). Pour mixture into a 8-inch round cake pan. Spoon biscuit dough into a 8-inch round cake pan. Spoon biscuit dough on top of hot peaches in six mounds. Bake in preheated 400 degree oven for 20 to 25 minutes.

*Biscuit dough:

Sift together 1 cup flour, 2 tablespoons sugar, 1½ teaspoon baking powder, and ¼ teaspoon salt. Cut in ¼ cup butter until mixture resembles coarse crumbs. Combine ¼ cup milk and 1 slightly beaten egg. Add all at once to dry crumbs and stir until just moist. Spoon on top of hot fruit filling.

PEACH-GLAZED SPARERIBS

3 pounds spareribs, separated
1 bay leaf
1 pound fresh peaches, peeled, pitted, and cut into chunks
1 tablespoon honey
¼ teaspoon minced ginger root
1 clove garlic, minced
½ teaspoon vinegar
Dash cayenne pepper

Place ribs in 5-quart pot with bay leaf and enough water to cover. Bring to a boil. Reduce heat and simmer 5 minutes. Drain spareribs and lay them on rack in a 14x10x2-inch roasting pan. Preheat oven to 350 degrees. Puree peaches in food processor until smooth. Transfer to a saucepan and bring to a boil. Stir in remaining ingredients. Roast ribs for 20 minutes. Brush with peach mixture and continue roasting for another 20 minutes, brushing frequently with peach mixture and turning ribs occasionally.

ANSWER — L. Rapp, Easton, wanted a recipe for Montgomery Pie with a lemon bottom not molasses. Thanks to Elizabeth Seibert, Fredericksburg, for sending a recipe.

Lemon Montgomery Pie

Syrup:
- ½ cup molasses
- ½ cup sugar
- 1 egg, beaten
- 2 tablespoons flour
- 1 cup water
- Juice and rind of 1 lemon

Cake batter:
- ⅔ cup sugar
- ¼ cup shortening
- 1 egg, beaten
- ½ teaspoon baking soda
- 1¼ cups flour
- ½ cup sour milk

Mix well. Pour syrup into 9-inch unbaked pie shell. Spread cake batter over syrup. Bake at 375 degrees for 30 to 40 minutes.

Paper Plates Make Good Fertilizer

BELTSVILLE, Md. — Toss on a compost pile some used paper plates from a cafeteria. Add old golf tees, leaves, newspapers, and chicken litter.

What comes from this mix is fertilizer that's ideal for growing spinach, corn, peppers and oats, said Donald D. Kaufman of the U.S. Department of Agriculture. He's seen the results while working as a visiting scientist at the Rodale Insitute Research Center's organic farm in Kutztown, Pa.

Kaufman says it make sense to build compost piles rather than trash piles that keep filling landfills. He and other researchers want to be sure that what's composted will degrade and be environmentally safe.

At the Rodale farm last summer, the scientista tried composting knives, forks and spoons made from a starch-based plastic substitute. They found the utensils wouldn't decompose fast enough. "But the golf tees of a starch-based plastic disappeared completely," he said.

A few items can be recycled twice, such as newspaper used once as bedding for Rodale's dairy cows and then as compost material, said Kaufman, a microbiologist for USDA's Agricultural Research Service.

He is the latest in a string of ARS scientists at Rodale, stretching back continuously for 13 years. Before being stationed at Rodale four days a week, Kaufman was research leader of the Soil-Microbial Systems Laboratory at the ARS Beltsville, Md., Agricultural Research Center.

Kids Enjoy Traveling On Wagon Train

LINDA WILLIAMS
Bedford Co. Correspondent

LIGONIER (Westmoreland Co.) — Everyone looks forward to summer vacation. That is especially true for Travis and Ashleigh Beal who are ages 10 and nine and live in Zelinger, and Luke Smithbower, 10, who lives in Loretto.

All three of these kids were a part of the 1994 Appalachian Wagon Train, which traveled from New Baltimore to Ligonier.

Travis and Luke rode on Appaloosas while Ashleigh's transportation was a Shetland pony.

There were just three of the 130 children who participated in this year's wagon train parade.

Everyone has a lot of fun on the parade and Travis, Ashleigh, and Luke enjoy making new friends as well as meeting up with the friends they made last year.

This was the 25th year for the wagon train to be held. Each year, the horses, covered wagons, and a few buggies travel 70 miles in Pennsylvania.

Twenty-five years ago, it began in New Baltimore and ended in Ligonier. This year, it followed that same route.

In addition to the fun, there is a lot of work involved with the train. Everyone has to help with the chores and Luke says, "I don't always like the food, but I'm hungry enough to eat it anyway."

Each night, the horses must be washed down, especially if the weather is hot, and brushed. And, of course, they must be fed. All that walking makes them very hungry. Each family carries its own horse feed along on the ride.

Because this is a pioneer ride, everyone must wear a Pioneer-type costume. Girls wear long dresses and bonnets, the boys wear fringes on their jeans, and coonskin or wide brimmed hats.

In every way possible, the wagon train copies the life of the original pioneers who traveled west in covered wagons to make a new life in a new land.

By imitating the lifestyle of the pioneers, Travis, Ashleigh and Luke learn how difficult it might have been to have traveled on horseback for months at a time.

On Monday, the train left New Baltimore and traveled 14.3 miles. Each day they traveled between 14.3 and 16 miles until their destination at Ligonier was reached.

In the evening, after thr ride is over for the day, everyone enjoys different kinds of entertainment.

On Sunday, there was a gospel quartet that sang. Monday's evening fun was a contest for the ugliest man, the nicest beard, the prettiest bonnet, the best young man's hat, and the best young lady's bonnet.

On Tuesday, everyone had a pig roast dinner and a square dance.

Wednesday night there were wagon train games and on Thursday, a big 25th anniversary celebration.

Friday night is talent night and anyone can participate by singing, dancing, or displaying some type of talent.

On Saturday, after a parade through Ligonier there is marshmallow toasting around a campfire.

Each year, the wagon train members carry a bag of mail presented to them at the beginning by the postmaster of that town.

It is to symbolize the mail that was often carried west by the wagon trains. Since there was no mail deliveries in the mid 1800s, friends and family who remained in the east had to send letters to their friends who had moved west in any way possible.

When California was admitted to the union in 1848, it tooks six weeks for the news to reach California.

Then, in 1860, the first Pony Express began. The very first Express run was from St. Joseph to Sacramento and took 10 and ½ days. President's Lincoln's inaugural address was delivered in a record-breaking Pony Express ride of seven days, 17 hours.

It was sometimes very lonely and difficult for those who had traveled west by wagon train not to be able to communicate with those they had left behind.

This is just one of the history lessons Travis, Ashleigh, and Luke learned in their week-long journey.

Natalie Welch Wears Somerset Dairy Princess Crown

GAY BROWNLEE
Somerset Co. Correspondent

SOMERSET (Somerset Co.) — Natalie Welch, 17, was selected Somerset County Dairy Princess in a pageant held at the Somerset Area High School. She succeeds Stephanie Singo.

Her parents are David and Connie Welch, Berlin.

Natalie managed to impersonate females from three age groups in her dairy skit by skillfully maneuvering her garments. And when she was finished, the audience knew why older women, expectant mothers, and teen-agers, need to drink their milk for continuing healthy bodies and minds.

"I think there needs to be a different image for dairy," she said later. "There is lots of promotion, but many teen-agers and older people still don't drink enough milk." They believe that dairy foods are harmful because they're told dairy products are high in fat and cholesterol.

At her job at Somerset McDonald's, Natalie observes the sale of milk drinks compared to soft drinks ordered by the customers. Unfortunately, soft drinks accompany the orders more often than do the dairy drinks, she says.

The eight-year member of the Milksquirts 4-H club is a senior at the Berlin-Brothersvalley High School and busy in the county junior Holstein club, county 4-H council, school and church activities.

Kelly Bittner was named the first alternate dairy princess and voted Miss Congeniality by her pageant peers.

A 1994 graduate of Berlin-Brothersvalley High School, Kelly is the daughter of Franklin and Betty Jo Bittner, Berlin.

Her time, until heading for the University of Pittsburgh at Johnstown this fall, is divided between working two jobs — with White Oak Veterinary Clinic and at Hoss's Steak and Sea House.

Also participating in the contest were Karen Rhoads, the daughter of Allen and Judith Rhoads, Stoystown, and Michelle McKinley, the daughter of Michael and Jackie McKinley, Stoystown.

The new Somerset County Dairy Maids, Michelle Shaffer and Gretchen Fox, were introduced by Erica Walker, whom they are succeeding. Erica and her alternate, Rikki Johnson, her alternate, announced numerous door prize winners.

Eight Little Misses had a pageant. They were Shannon McWilliams, Greta Moyer, Sharayah Scheffel, Hannah Scheffel, Jerika Yoder, Rebekah Fox, Amy Bocsy and Ashley Coddington.

Their debonair young escorts were Joel Yoder, David Bittner, Jarred Fox and Kevin Bittner.

Judges for the event were Pat Brant, Somerset County; Jan Lidwell, Cambria County; and Ray Diebold, Blair County.

Dairy pageant committee members are Angie Shober, Vicki Stahl, Brenda Slingluff, Tomalee Will, Diane Bittner, Melissa Fox, Susan Yoder, and Jill Bastian.

Kim Orris Represents $47.2 Million Industry In Cumberland

BETH MILLER
Cumberland Co. Correspondent

CARLISLE (Cumberland Co.) — When Kim Orris performs her new duties as Cumberland County's 1994 Dairy Princess, she can speak from the heart and from experience.

For one thing, she is the third generation of her family to work the Orris farm near Bloserville.

As dairy princess, she said she is looking forward to meeting a lot of people so she can tell people what dairy farmers to and about the important product their cows produce.

She did just that during the county dairy princess pageant. Orris prepared a speech that covered the history of the dairy animal. She also looked to the future and speculated on what the dairy industry of tomorrow might be like.

She knows plenty about the dairy industry of today since she helps every day on the two farms owned by her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Fred Orris.

Those two farms total about 100 acres each. In addition, the Orrises rent another 400 acres.

Kim's main daily chores are to chip in with the milking of the family's 54 Holsteins and helping in the fields. On top of that, she cares for her own 11 goats.

Her 14-year-old brother, Kevin, and 9-year-old sister, Kadie, both help on the farm as well.

Off the farm, Kim, who is a 1993 Big Spring High School graduate, is very interested in a variety of activities, including horseback riding, hunting, fishing, and cooking and sewing.

She put her sewing skills to good use when she made the gown in 4-H that she wore in the dairy princess pageant.

This summer, she will be going with other Cumberland County 4-H'ers on an exchange trip to Maine.

Other 4-H activities she has attended include State Days for Fashion Revue, Capitol Days, and the Texas 4-H exchange. She also is a 4-H day camp counselor and a 4-H ambassador.

She plans to attend Central Penn Business School to study computerized accounting.

Kim Orris is the 1994 Cumberland Co. Dairy Princess. Kim is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Orris, Carlisle.

As Cumberland County's dairy princess, she will be representing farmers who have 19,800 cows that produce 326 million pounds of milk annually that is worth $47.2 million.

Orris was crowned for her new job by 1993 Dairy Princess Diane Myers, the daughter of Richard and Ethel Myers of Boiling Springs.

Orris isn't the only young lady who will have a big role in promoting Cumberland County's dairy industry in the coming year.

She will be assisted in that job by three dairy maids: Becky Cornman, the daughter of Steve and Debbie Cornman of Boiling Springs; Heather Garman, the daughter of Dennis and Faye Garman of Carlisle; and LeAnne Haycock, the daughter of William and Clover Haycock of Shippensburg.

The dairy maids will assist Orris in visiting schools, promoting milk at fairs and dairy shows and doing dairy industry promotions at supermarkets, banks and shopping malls.

Three Dairy Maids were named (left-right) Heather Garman, Becky Cornman and LeAnne Haycock and these new Dairy Maids will assist the 1994 Dairy Princess in carrying out her duties.

Huntingdon Chooses Dairy Princess

GAIL STROCK
Mifflin Co. Correspondent

LINCOLN (Huntingdon Co.) — The tradition of a strong dairy promotion program in Huntingdon County continued on Saturday, June 11, when sponsors, supporters, parents and others gathered at the Lincoln Grange Hall to see Monica Goshorn accept the 1994-1995 Huntingdon County Dairy Princess crown and sash.

Kara Tussey, last year's dairy princess, passed the honors and responsibilities on to Goshorn, a 17-year-old senior at Southern Huntingdon High School. Goshorn is the daughter of John and Jennifer Goshorn of Blairs Mills. She is president of the Southernette 4-H club, student council secretary, junior class secretary, FFA Chapter secretary, and is involved in SADD, St. Mary's Catholic Church Youth Group, band, chorus, and Jr. Class play. On September 24 she will compete in the state pageant in Harrisburg.

Goshorn's sole competitor was Crystal Couch of Huntingdon. She is the 16-year-old daughter of Bill and Anne Couch and a junior at Huntingdon Area High School. She serves as president of the Stone Valley 4-H Club, and is involved in the Spanish Club, the Grange as a Junior member, her youth and Sunday school classes. Crystal enjoys cooking, flower gardening, playing softball, and working with 4-H animals.

Couch presented "The Cow Corner" skit and Goshorn told about "The Six Breeds of Dairy Cows".

Emcee James Palmer, an agricultural education instructor at the Huntingdon Area High School, introduced what many hope is a strong continuation of the dairy princess program in Huntingdon County — the Dairy Maid, Dairy Miss, and Li'l Dairy Miss participants.

The 13-15-year-old Dairy Maids are Stephanie Couch, Apryle Hoover, Sherri Hoover, Lawanda Kling, Amber Lemin, and Emily Metz. Huntingdon County's Dairy Miss' are 8-12-year-old Jenny Barnett, Ashley Carper, Kelly Clark, Lillian Couch, Jodi Heeter, Jodi Keith, and Melinda Kling. Serving as Li'l Dairy Miss' are 4-7-year-olds Stacie Keith and Stacy Lemin.

Kara Tussey, one of seven finalists at the State Pageant last year, presented her award-winning skit which features "Droplet", the life of a drop of milk from udder to consumption. Tussey won the state contest in Harrisburg with this skit. Tussey is a dairy and animal science student a Penn State and a distinguished junior member of the National Holstein Association.

In her farewell speech, Tussey said with the number of farmers declining to below 2%, it is easy to see how a lack of public knowledge about agriculture exists. Tussey said it is up to us to put forth the effort to educate, and that is exactly what a dairy princess does.

Couch and Goshorn presented their skits before three judges — dairy farmer Robert Gable of Newport, Perry County, and Dave and Kay Slusser of State College. Dave is general manager of DHIA and former dairy farmer and Kay is a former home economist.

Dairy Princess coordinator and vice-president of dairy promotion Shirley Heeter introduced the rest of the committee, co-coordinator Jennifer Goshorn, Cindy Lemin, and Brucette Metz. Tom Eberle serves as president of the Huntingdon County dairy Promotion Program along with secretary Maurice Heffner and treasurer Leslie McGargle.

Earlier in the evening, Huntingdon County Extension Agent Terry Maddox welcomed the crowd and said the dairy princess program serves several important purposes including:

- to promote the consumption and use of dairy produces,
- to create a better relationship between the urban and rural sectors,
- to have a one-on-one contact at the local level,
- to provide a competitive situation for participants with monetary rewards,
- to develop an educational program, and

The future of the Huntingdon County Dairy Princess Program looks promising as Dairy Maids, Dairy Miss' and Li'l Dairy Miss' line up for photos.

- to provide for the participants a chance to develop speaking skills and confidence while promoting the goodness of dairy products.

According to Maddox, the dairy promotion program began in 1956 by the Milk Dealers Association and included six regions in the state who sent contestants to compete for the title "Milk Maid". It continued that way for 11 years, disbanded for one or two years, then was reorganized by the Pennsylvania Holstein Association in 1968 on a county level.

Stacey Knepper provided piano music for the evening and the Dairy Promotion Committee sponsored the milk bar.

Denise Heidorn Accepts Bedford County Crown

LINDA WILLIAMS
Bedford Co. Correspopndent

BEDFORD (Bedford Co.) — Denise Heidorn, daughter of Rick and Marie Heidorn of Everett, has accepted the Bedford County Dairy Princess title.

The crowening was done at a special program held on Saturday evening, June 18, at the Northern Bedford County High School.

At 15, Denise will be too young to participate in state competition, but she is looking forward to a productive year serving as Bedford County's Dairy representative.

Denise's father is a herdsman for Rodney Hershberger, where he helps to milk 150 Holsteins.

A junior at Bedford High School, Denise is active in the National Honor Society, is a three-year member of the Pennsylvania Junior Academy of Science, serves on the Student Council, and is a member of the Environmental Team.

She is a member of the Bedford County 4-H Club, Friendly Moo Moo's 4-H Club, the Chestnut Ridge Horseman's Club, and volunteers at the Art Center.

Last summer, she was a Mountain Top Bible Camp junior counselor.

Denise likes all animals and has a Jersey cow, several sheep, and a riding horse. Last year, she won junior reserve champion with her Jersey cow.

The brown-eyed brunette says she agreed to be dairy princess because "I believe in the dairy industry and wanted to do something for it."

Last year, dairy princess Amy Mearkle presented 32 school programs, wrote 35 newspaper articles, did 79 radio/television appearances, and went on 29 store/mall promotions. She distributed 3,370 recipes and 3,160 other pieces of promotional materials and attended 17 non-farm meetings, 12 farm meetings, and 17 special events.

Amy, who was also first runner-up in the state, traveled a total of 4,386 miles.

She was assisted in her endeavors by Jennifer Brumbaugh, the Bedford County dairy miss.

Dairy maids accepting the honors for 1994 include Amber Clark and Lyneice Renee Chamberlain.

Ida's Notebook

Ida Risser

There are so many little things to do around our place that I do not get time to start any big jobs.

For one thing the weeds sprout up everywhere. When it is dry then by gardens look nice, but when it rains then I must start all over again with my trusty hoe. This year our watermelon and cantaloupe plants look very nice and are setting fruit. The peanuts are growing fine in a short row and I've never seen so many nasturtium flowers on plants.

My husband's rose bed needs attention as thistles continually spring up through the mulch. Then too I should replant more of my houseplants but they will wait until I get other things done — like wash a bunch of dirty work clothes. And, I find that sorting papers and letters is very time consuming.

As if I didn't have enough to do with picking raspberries now that the strawberries are over, we decided to go to an orchard and pick cherries. We found the low trees easy to pick and bought over 50 pounds which translated into 30 quarts that I preserved.

Our son, Philip, has a birthday soon and I've invited him and his family for dinner. Instead of a birthday cake, I expect to make a big cherry pie. He and our grandson are good eaters and I enjoy cooking for someone who empties their plate. For some reason our grandson has always liked my mashed potatoes so I think that I will make a bowlful to go with the roasted chicken. As it was quite dry my pea crop was short but I have enough left for a meal. Another favorite food is corn on the cob and I did freeze quite a bit last year. Cooking is just something else to keep me busy.

A ROTARY CUTTER FOR THE LARGEST CUTTING JOBS.

Especially recommended for medium duty mowing on large acreages, Bush Hog's 2620 Series Rotary Cutter gives you a full 20-foot cut... and blades overlap 6-inches to assure a clean, uniform job. Wings flex from 90° up to 22° down during operation, so work on uneven terrain is no problem. Spring-loaded axle assemblies provide shock absorption at each axle arm for added protection in rough cutting conditions.

Features include 540 or 1000 rpm heavy duty gearboxes, level lifting of center and wing units and a choice of round or straight blade holders.

NOT ALL FIELDS ARE PERFECTLY FLAT.

That's why the Bush Hog® model 2615 15-foot cutter's wings are designed to float along contours as severe as 90 degrees up or 22 degrees down while shredding stalks, clipping pastures or cutting along rights-of-ways, drainage ditches, terraces and fence rows. As it does so, an automatic height adjustment keeps the wings cutting at the same height as the center section. A framing system featuring closed box members allows us to make the 2615 pounds lighter without sacrificing any of the strength you've come to expect from a Bush Hog. And, less weight not only means less wear and tear on your tractor but it has also allowed us to cut the price.

Why pay more to get less — make a Bush Hog's success your success.

BUSH HOG®

FOR PASTURES, FOR ROADSIDES, FOR STALKS... HERE'S THE ROTARY CUTTER YOU NEED.

Bush Hog's medium duty 270 Series Rotary Cutters are excellent tools for the widest variety of land maintenance chores. And they're built tough, built to withstand rugged cutting in material up to 2-inches thick. Decks are 10 gauge steel, continuous welded and braced at all stress points.

Select from three models, in cutting widths of 5, 6 or 7-feet. A three-point hitch is standard, and for the 7-foot model an economical semi-mount hitch is available. Round bladeholders and laminated wheels are also standard on all models.

Come in today and learn more about Bush Hog's 270 Series Rotary Cutters.

AFFORDABLE.

The Bush Hog Razorback gives you plenty of performance — plus features for fast and better rotary cutting. Like a full 5-foot cutting width and a cutting capacity up to 1-inch diameter. Like the protection of a shear pin and oval blade pan as standard equipment. Like 11-ga. steel construction and a tapered rear deck for faster discharge. The Razorback is ideal for use with 18-30 HP tractors... and it's ideal for your pocketbook — because it's plenty affordable.

WHY BUSH HOG SQUEALERS MOW DOWN THE COMPETITION.

There are two basic reasons and quality is the first. Each Squealer model is equipped with Bush Hog's tough gearbox that carries a 2-year warranty. All models, except the 42-inch wide cutter feature oval blade pans, and the 60 and 72-inch wide models have an "in-line" shear bolt with ball bearing protection that can be replaced in a snap. An optional slip clutch is available.

The second reason for the Squealer's popularity is price. Select any of 5 models, 42 to 84-inches wide, and compare prices with the competition. With a true price/quality comparison, it's easy to see why Squealers mow down the competition.

Family Vacations

Isn't it time for a vacation? That's probably what you're all thinking, but when it comes right down to it, family vacations can be quite stressful. My extended family vacationed together in Wildwood, New Jersey, several weeks ago, and after being there for six hours, one of the mothers exclaimed, "Yep, it's started. We haven't been here even one day, and all our clothes are wet and everyone's sunburned." Fortunately, once we settled in, things improved.

As stressful as they can be, family vacations are important. Dolores Curran, author of Stress and the Healthy Family, studied families that deal well with stress. She found several common traits among these families. These families play together. And the parents with children report spending time with their children and enjoying it. So taking time to vacation and play as a family is actually a positive stress-coping strategy. When families play and laugh together, this communicates to themselves and others that, "We're a unit; we share a history and a future."

The goal is to get past the hair-pulling tension to the laughing together joy. The following planning principles may help. First of all, not all family vacations and family fun require a lot of equipment or a lot of money. Some don't even require much planning. As much as possible, involve all members of the family in both the planning and the vacation activities itself.

During the initial planning stage, ask each person to share two or three things that he or she really enjoys doing with the rest of the family. Compile a group list. Begin to ask questions like, "Where could we do those things? Which ones do most of agree on? How can we build this into our schedule to make sure we don't miss it?"

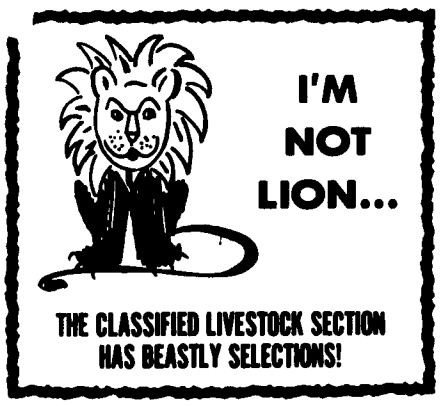
Using this process gives everyone ownership of the vacation. It also sets up an expectation of the vacation being a team/family project . . . not something that either the kids picked or the parents picked (and the rest have to live with it.) Why make planning a vacation a team project? This helps children build valuable skills that are prized in schools and will be prized as they enter the workforce. "Cooperating to achieve a common purpose" is a skill that they will use throughout their lives.

Make the preparations a family affair, too. Are there food preparations? Items to purchase? Packing to be done? Share the responsibilities. Cook together. Ask a school-age child to manage the list as you shop. Use the "divide and conquer" principle where the task is broken down into smaller jobs and each person takes several. This way one person doesn't shoulder the planningn and preparation burden alone.

If there's a disagreement at any time, ask both parties to state two good reasons for and against the choice or rule. After each has pointed out both positive and negative sides, invite them to rethink the choice. Is it really fair? The best option?

A family vacation can be wonderful, or it can be miserable. You make the difference by taking time to involve all family members in the decision making process, including some of each person's favorite activities, and then sharing the preparation work. It's not easy. In fact, it's probably not efficient either. But in the long run, you build important teamwork and stress-coping skills.

And then once the planning's over, enjoy the time away from your normal routine. If your family won't take a break until after crops are harvested this fall, clip these ideas and use them to plan a relaxing vacation on your time schedule as the season changes.



The harder you have to work inside the tractor, the less work you're going to get done outside. Laura Fitch Reigns In Tioga County

C.J. HOUGHTALING
Tioga Co. Correspondent

MANSFIELD (Tioga Co.) — Laura Fitch was all smiles and tears when the judges proclaimed her 1994 Tioga County Dairy Princess Monday, June 27.

Fitch is no stranger to the limelight. A dedicated advocate of the dairy industry and experienced milk promoter, the 17-year-old daughter of Elwin and Charlene Fitch of Roaring Branch paid her dues by serving as 1993 Dairy Princess Alternate.

In an entertaining skit performed before the judging, Fitch donned a cow costume and addressed the audience as "class" while she explained the importance of milk and dairy products, as well as what a cow needs concerning proper care to reach her optimum level of milk production.

Fitch attends Canton High School, where she is president of both the 4-H County Council and the Country Warriors 4-H Club. She also serves as Jr. Holstein Club treasurer, is a member of SADD (Students Against Drunk Driving), is an assistant coach and scorekeeper for Little League, is Foreign Language Club president, volleyball manager, and is a member of the Youth Education Association.

When she's not busy promoting milk, she helps out on her family's 259 acre farm, Four Wynds, which has a milking herd of 40 Holsteins.

Providing stiff competition for Fitch during the Princess Pageant was Cathleen Norman, whom judges named Dairy Princess Alternate. The daughter of Ernest and Dorothy Norman of Liberty, thus spunky young lady is also a veteran milk promoter. She served as a Dairy Maid in 1992 and is the 4-H County Council secretary.

During the Dairy Princess Pageant, Norman held the audience's joyful attention with her comedic skit in which she starred as "Mighty Milk." Dressed in tights and cape common to superheroes, Norman addressed the need for women, particularly, to drink milk to fight osteoporosis. Illustrating what happens to a body if it does not get enough of the calcium-enriched milk it needs, her balloon-like muscles burst with the prick of a pin.

A senior at Liberty High School, Norman is active in intramural volleyball, chorus, school musicals, and is captain of her cheerleading squad. Her hobbies are watching and playing sports, writing, singing, listening to music, working on 4-H projects, teaching younger kids, and meeting new people. In her spare time she helps on the family farm, Normandell, which has 500 acres and a milking herd of 60 Jerseys.

Assisting the dairy princess and her alternate this year in their milk promotion duties are two ambassadors, Tina Bailey and Kimberly Beth Kennedy.

Bailey is the 17-year-old daughter of William and Eva Bailey of Mansfield. A senior at Mansfield High School this fall, she plans to attend York College as an accountant major. She is a member of the National Honor Society, Future Farmers of America, Future Business Leaders of America, and the Peer Tutor Program at the Warren L. Miller Elementary School in Mansfield. When she is not working on Gordon Wood's farm, she likes to show cattle, read, go to fairs, shop, and hang out with friends. Her family owns the Colegrove Farm with 300 acres and milking herd of 90 Holsteins.

Kennedy is the 16-year-old daughter of Leroy and Sandra

Kennedy of Middlebury Center. A student at Wellsboro Area High School, she is in the band. As a 4-H member, she enjoys showing horses in open shows. Her hobbies are milking cows, riding horses, and taking care of calves. She lives on the family's Busted Fence Farm, which has 126 acres and mixed milking herd of 60 head.

Also helping the new Dairy Princess with her promotion program within the county during the coming year are dairy maids Lisa Fitch, Jennifer Susan Johnson, Ellen Norman, and Heather Marie Wood.

As a special guest at the Dairy Princess Pageant, Nadine Hauck, a member of the Dairy Promotion Board, gave a slide and video presentation explaining the Dairy Board's purpose. Deeming the 1993 milk advertising campaign, "It Shows," a success, Hauck said an average of 2.7 million people

Science, Technology Drive Industry Growth

GEORGETOWN, Del. — The structure of America's broiler chicken industry, in which poultry companies control breeding, hatching, growing the chickens, health programs, processing, feed production, and paying attention to consumer perceptions — or misconceptions — are major factors in helping chicken to maintain its reputation as a healthy, good-for-you meat that is reasonably prices and convenient to prepare.

That was the message conveyed at a food editors' breakfast on June 18 in Dover, Del. In attendance were about 40 representatives of regional and natonal news media covering the 46th annual Delmarva Chicken Festival and Delmarva Chicken Cooking Contest.

During the breakfast, they heard presentations by representatives of Delmarva Poultry Industry, Inc. (DPI), the trade association for the area's nearly $1.3 billion-a-year poultry industry and sponsor of the chicken cooking contest.

Keith E. Rinehart, a former DPI president, spoke to the group on "Food Safety Issues." Rinchart is vice president for technical services witih Perdue Farms, Inc., at Salisbury, Md. He predicted that it may take another generation for U.S. consumers to accept irradiated chicken, even though the Food and Drug Administration declared a few years ago that irradiation could be used in poultry processing.

In the meantime, chicken processing plants are instituting procedures that continue to reduce bacterial spread. These procedures include science-based inspection, chlorinated water for rinsing chicken carcasses, and developing systems to identify critioal control points in plants and to take corrective actions to prevent bacterial spread.

Tissue sampling from birds before they leave the farm for the processing plant is one way companies can continue to prevent drug residues from being in chicken products. Rinehart noted that most chicken processors, in the Delmarva area at least, have voluntarily complied with United States Department of Agriculture (USDA) nutritional labeling and safe-handling label requirements. He pointed out, however, that some USDA data bases for food nutrients are out-of-date, so this could cause confusion for consumers.

Bill Satterfield, DPI executive director, spoke to the food editors on "Technological Advances." He declared that "the poultry industry is one of the most technologically advanced segments of American agriculture."

Satterfield cited statistics for Delmarva that compared the years 1941 and 1993. The statistics show that, in 52 years, the the number of broilers produced has increased more than tenfold. Young chickens are marketed at much heavier weights in half the time previously required, and with considerably less feed.

This amazing increase, driven by innovative application of science and technology, has been accompanied by an even more amazing increase in U.S. per capita consumption. In 1941, the per capita consumption was just 2.8 pounds. Last year it ws 68.3 pounds, and it is forecast to be 73.4 pounds next year.

Genetics and feed formulation are key factors in producing superior chickens. The emphasis in science and technology, as always, is on finding answers to current challenges. Nipple drinkers in chicken houses, tunnel ventilation chicken houses, vector vaccines, DNA probe-testing, and in-ovo vaccination are recent innovations that are producing or are expected to produce healthier chickens.

An enzyme called phytase holds promise of allowing chickens to better utilize the phosphorus in their feed. This could mean less phosphorus in soils where chicken manure is applied.

Satterfield noted that his organization has provided more than $600,000 to university researchers in the last 30 years. DPI also sponsors educational meetings each year, including the internationally recognized National Meeting on Poultry Health and Processing, to share new scientific and technological research.

heard the ads. "The 1994 campaign, which is already under way, continues the theme, stressing the message that milk makes you feel and look good," she said.

During the holiday season, Hauck said a character, "Aunt Emma," will be used to promote real dairy products, with recipes provided.

Other promotional events taking place throughout the state include cow milking contests, participating in the Prom Promise by supplying milk beverages at proms, and taste-tests comparing hot chocolate made with milk as opposed to hot chocolate made with water.

Judges for the Dairy Princess Pageant were WHGL-FM radio personality Kenny Lane of Troy, Lycoming County Dairy Promotion Program director Becky Steppe, and Jenny Teeter, a farm wife from Milan.

You Ask ? ? ? ? ? ? ? ? ? ? You Answer

In response to readers' questions, this column is for readers who have questions but don't know who to ask for the answers. In the past, many readers sent non-cooking requests to Cook's Question Corner, a cooking column on page B 8.

"You Ask — You Answer" is for non-cooking questions. The concept is the same: When a reader sends in a question, it will be printed in the paper. Readers who know the answer are asked to respond by mailing the answer, which will then be printed in the paper.

Questions and answers to this column should be addressed to You Ask — You Answer, Lou Ann Good, P.O. Box 609, Ephrata, PA 17522.

QUESTION — A. Nolt of New Holland would like to know the words to the complete poem that was recited in the 1920s when her father-in-law went to school. The poem contains these lines: The carpenter's house is falling down. The preacher's kids are the worse in town.... Since this request appeared, Theresa Litecky, Eastampton, N.J., and several others have written to say they remember parts of this poem and can hardly wait to see the complete poem. Any readers who remember the complete poem, please send it immediately.

QUESTION — Romaine B. Answell, Sumerdale, would like to know who manufactured the Webalco electric skillet.

QUESTION — Charles E. Wright, Duncannon, purchased a 13-inch parlor stove made of iron with the following marks: On the front spark inside is written Gray Iron Casting Co., Mt. Joy, Pa. On the inside top door 75-11; on the poker 7517.The doors, drafts, etc., would like a full-sized stove. Is this company still in business?

QUESTION — A reader from Thorton writes that families of Canadian geese have taken residence in their pond. How can the geese be encouraged to leave the pond?

QUESTION — Barb Gayman would like more explicit instructions for a question she had asked previously. She asked what to do about food sticking to the plastic trays of her food dehydrator. A reader suggested that she line the trays with waxed paper. Barb did and the paper stuck so tight, is was not possible to remove it and resulted in unedible fruit. Another reader suggested she use rancid spray, but she is concerned that it will get rancid. Any other suggestions?

QUESTION — A reader would like to know if someone has a grain scale that can be bought to weigh saffron or gunpowder.

QUESTION — Walter Hertzog, King of Prussia, asks who to get rid of bamboo in his yard that is running shoots everywhere. He also asks where to purchase clump bamboo that doesn't run.

QUESTION — Mary Sasscer, Upper Mailboro, Md., would like to know where to purchase a used treadle scroll saw for use in demonstrating at craft shows.

QUESTION — Anna Newswanger, 185 S. Pool Forge Rd., Narvon, PA 17555, would like to purchase the book "Ada and the Wild Duck," by Edith Brecht. Please state price when answering.

QUESTION — D. Newsom, Cooperstown, N.Y., would like to know where to find kegs for Saint Bernards to wear around their necks. He needs to real kegs, not miniature knick knacks, that live Saint Bernards wear.

Chicken History Has Feminine Mystique

GEORGETOWN, Del. — Today's commercial poultry industry can be viewed as an equal-opportunity enterprise, with both men and women involved at most levels of production, processing, marketing, and management.

But in grandmother's day and many centuries beyond, when chickens and eggs were raised initially for home consumption, poultry production was viewed primarily as a job for women and children. So it's not surprising that a feminine mystique pervades the history and lore of chickens, both worldwide and on the Delmarva Peninsula.

People knowledgeable about Delmarva agricultural lore are aware that one woman, the late Mrs. Wilmer Steele of Ocean View, Del., is credited with founding the commercial broiler industry that began in Delaware and spread throughout the nation. Visitors to the Delaware Agricultural Museum in Dover on June 18 had the opportunity to watch a professional actress portray Steele working in her original chicken house, which is now located in the museum.

The re-enactment was associated witih the Delmarva Chicken Festival, at its 46th annual run June 17-18 at nearby Delaware State University. The festival was sponsored by Delmarva Poultry Industry, Inc., the trade association for the area's nearly $1.3 billion-a-year broiler industry.

Also on display were Delaware Blue Hen Chickens, official state bird of the First State for the past 55 years. Actually, the legend of the Blue Hen Chicken dates back nearly 220 years, when soldiers of the Delaware Regiment established their reputation as Delaware Blue Hen "fightint gamecocks."

Whether they actually carried Blue Hen Chickens with them on the battlefield is a controversial issue among historians. Knowledgeable chicken fanciers will tell you that it is the hen who passes on fighting traits to her male offspring in the world of gamebirds. So, back in the days when cockfighting was legal, a hen with champion male offspring was a valuable commodity.

The poultry industry exhibit, coordinated and mannd by poultry personnel from the University of Delaware and University of Maryland, also included two movies depicting the history of Delmarva's poultry industry. One showed highlights of the first National Chicken Cooking Contest held in 1949 in Salisbury, Md. and the other, "Chicken Goes to War," traced the early days of the local poultry industry.

A scaled-version model showed visitors some of the new technoloty in today's modern chicken houses and compared production practices witih practices of past years.

Locust Grove Auction To Feature Art Sale

SMOKETOWN (Lancaster Co.) — A large and varied collection of art will highlight the 20th annual Chicken Barbecue and Country Auction at Locust Grove Mennonite School, Smoketown. The barbecue takes place Friday, July 15, from 11 a.m. to 7 p.m. The auction begins at 9 a.m. Saturday, July 16, and continues throughout the morning and afternoon. The proceeds will go toward the general fund at Locust Grove.

Seventy pieces of art, most of them limited edition prints, will be sold over the auction block beginning at 12 noon Saturday. Many well-known artists will be represented, including Thomas Hermansader, Jeff Martin, Suk Shuglie, Lynn Yancha, Julie Swartz, Richard Bollinger, Dan Christ, P. Buckley Moss, Susie Riehl, Myrtle Tremblay, Andy Smith, and Elizabeth MacDonald. The art will be on display in a gallery at Locust Grove Friday, July 15, from 2 until 8 p.m.

In addition to art, the auction will feature the sale of quilts, crafts, Winross trucks, homemade food, and lawn, garden, and household goods. Certificates sold Saturday afternoon will entitle the buyer to dinners, lodging, vacations, gifts, golfing, entertainment, and special services.

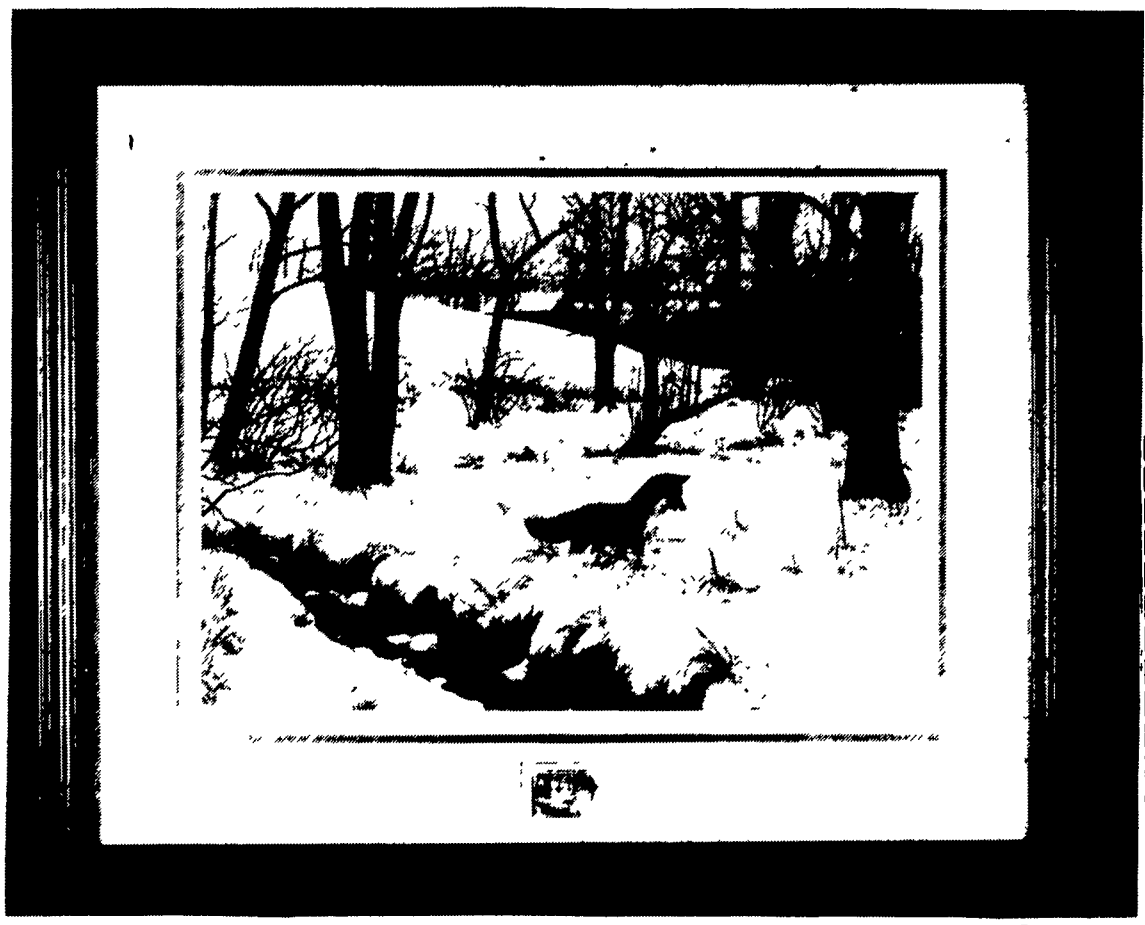
Among the special items to be auctioned are a wood carving by Abe Rissler of East Earl; a large dollhouse with porch, balcony, and five lighted rooms by Ben Brubaker of Lancaster; a wooden historic ship model by Atglen resident William Salsbury; and a fine cane made of 59 different woods by Jim Jack Hickam of Bristol, TN.

The items and services are donated by hundreds of businesses, churches, and individuals on behalf of the school. A "silent auction" of selected items Friday evening from 6 to 8 p.m. is planned for those who prefer that style of bidding.

New this year is a car wash Saturday morning from 9 a.m. until 12 noon.

Children will be able to participate in a Children's Fun Festival Friday from 4 to 7 p.m. and Saturday from 10 a.m. to 2 p.m. Activities will include pony rides (Friday only), hayrides, a moonwalk, face painting, tossing games, feed the llama, and a chance to design your own T-shirt.

Locust Grove Mennonite School is located at 2257 Old Philadelphia Pike (Route 340), four miles east of Lancaster. The school, now in its 54th year of operation, provides an accredited Christian education for 445 students in kindergarten through grade eight. For more information please call the school at (717) 394-7107.



This limited edition print by Dan Christ, "1989 Pennsylvania Conservation Stamp Print," will be among the hundreds of items sold at the Locust Grove Country Auction July 16.

Franklin County Dairy Princess Plays Violin To Tell Milk Story

CHAMBERSBURG (Franklin Co.) — Larissa Mellott, with a program that included her playing her violin, was chosen as Franklin County's 1994 Dairy Princess during the county's 27th annual Dairy Princess Pageant.

The daughter of Gregory and Rhonda Mellott of St. Thomas, the James Buchanan High School senior was one of three contestants in the event at the Lighthouse Restaurant.

Mellott was chosen after performing a skit in which she played "Old MacDonald's Farm" on her violin. She sang about how the old farmer had pigs, chickens, sheep, and the most productive animals, cows Brownie, Meg and Ellie.

She sang also about what products the cows' milk produced for the consumer, milk, butter, yogurt, ice cream, products that as Mellott put it, "keep you moo-ving."

When asked to answer the pageant question, How to explain a dairy princess's job to someone who had never heard of a dairy princess, Mellott said she would reply that, "The dairy princess is the person who promotes the dairy industry; promotes the farmers' products; and tells people how important the industry is to everyone."

She said her own goal as the new dairy princess is to "promote milk as an important part of the diet and include it in everyone's daily diet."

Milk and the dairy industry will play a big role in her own future as well, she said. Mellott said she intends to go to college and major in veterinary medicine and embryo transfer.

In addition to her activities with her school's concert band, Mellott is involved in 4-H horse and pony activities and is an FFA member.

She also shows dairy cows in events at the Shippensburg and Franklin County fairs and the South Central Show. Last year, she won a grand champion animal title at the Franklin County Fair.

Her family milks 65 cows, Brown Swiss and Holsteins, on 109 acres. She owns 28 cows and heifers, of which half are owner-bred.

The first runner-up in the pageant was Beth Meyers, the daughter of Mark and Lyndell Meyers of Chambersburg and a senior in the Greencastle-Antrim School District.

For her presentation, Meyers dressed up as Beth the Bossy Clown who came to a birthday party to tell all the children the im-

Dairy Princess Does More Than Talk About It

VERNON ACHENBACH JR.
Lancaster Farming Staff

CORNWALL (Lebanon Co.) — Stacy Krall is the 1994-95 Lebanon County dairy princess, a position she fills after a year as the county dairy maid.

But she almost had to turn down the chance at doing dairy promotion this year.

Krall, 16, daughter of dairy farmers Glen and Linda Krall, of Cornwall, has a very busy schedule.

In addition to her farm chores and home responsibilities, she is involved with the county livestock club, dairy club, Cedar Crest FFA, is on the parliamentary procedure team, and is active with the Midway Church Senior High Class.

It is this last organization, her church, that is keeping her especially busy this year.

From July 9 to July 17, Stacy said she is planning to travel with her church group to Kentucky to do volunteer work building homes for people. She is scheduled to return to Lebanon County from home building on July 18.

July 19 and 20 is the Southeast FFA District Dairy Show, at the Lebanon Area Fairgrounds. And then, from July 26 to July 31, she is scheduled to be in Colorado attending her church's National Youth Conference.

This is where she said things started getting shaky with accepting the responsibility of being the Lebanon County dairy princess. Because she wasn't sure she could be home in time for the Lebanon County Fair, at which she intends to show two hogs and two registered Holstein heifers,

Being dairy princess means that she would have to be at the fair, which she doesn't want to miss.

But if she would have had to drive out to Colorado for the church's youth convention, as has been originally planned, she would not have been able to drive home in time for the fair.

And, if that would have been the case, she was prepared to have waited a year before presenting herself as a candidate for county dairy princess.

However, since the church group going to Colorado has decided to fly instead of drive, Stacy will be back in Lebanon in time for the fair.

In the meantime, she has been attending the state school for dairy princesses at Lycoming College, in Williamsport, for the program's several-day seminar on skills that can help promote the dairy industry.

Stacy lives on a small, but fertile dairy farm on the southern edge of a limestone belt which courses the length of the Lebanon Valley. The farm is in the shadow of the former Cornwall Iron Ore Mines and Glen and Linda unfortunately have found themselves at the mercy of local efforts to install community sewage and water.

While portions of their property have been taken through eminent domain and almost 4,000 feet of the farm's prime cropland is being bisected with a public sewage line to serve fewer than 10 homes, the Kralls have said they intend to continue to dairy farm.

LEADERSHIP AT WORK

Stacy tries on her new dairy princess tiara.

Last year, the couple was involved in a short-lived battle to keep a significant portion of their farm from being rezoned to residential. Though no one had contacted the Kralls about their intentions with the farm, local municipal officials had proposed changing the farm zoning, which would have changed the value of the property and raised taxes on the dairy couple.

With the community wastewater project going through their property, the Kralls do have the option of cashing in on the investment of local and state funds to install these community services the Kralls don't want and turn the dairy farm into a "house farm." However, they said they don't intend to take that route.

In the meantime, they milk 80 Holsteins out of a southern-facing, tie-stall bank barn that is situated at the base of a large, steep, but rounded hill.

In fact, the hill is what Stacy used to help develop an affinity for skiing. Something that she gets to do sometimes at a relatively close public skiing facility in Berks County.

And several years ago, the hill was a source of amusement for the Krall family. At night, when the cows were left out, a couple of Stacy's cows, especially one, she said, would come around the back of the house to be close to Stacy's bedroom window and would answer when Stacy called.

A modern, fenced manure storage pit was constructed several years ago and a southern-facing, large, Virginia-style heifer facility is in the final stages of completion. Several heifer pens are currently being used.

There's another interesting feature to the farm where Stacy lives.

The Krall farm is located between two prominent agricultural facilities in Lebanon County — the Lebanon Area Fairgrounds to the northeast, and the Quentin Riding Club to the west.

Standing at the farm, it can almost seem as though two different activities, at opposite ends of the agricultural spectrum, are calling: one being the lure of liesure, the other the desire to excel in production and living skills.

While Stacy said riding horse is one of her favorite hobbies, she said she has no interest in the fancy riding skills, though she said she found it interesting.

She said she better enjoys her cows and the activities which keep her busy. And now, at 16, being able to drive should enable her to attend more functions without having to depend on her parents or others to provide transportation.

Stacy and her brother Jason are fairly well known among the local agricultural community, especially for their record of wins at the Southeastern Regional 4-H Market Hog Derby. Either one, the other, or both, have had a champion in the event.

The contest, supported through the Penn State Extension Service, provides an opportunity for youth to compete with raising market hogs, using the same scoring system and incentives as the National Pork Producers Council endorses and commercial producers use.

Stacy said that while she enjoys her dairy cattle more, raising the market hogs has provided more money and has allowed her to use the money raising hogs to buy Holstein calves.

In fact, one of hers, Rayola A-Mist Mars Shasta, a member of the milking string, is almost a pet to Stacy. She can walk into a pasture field and Shasta will walk up to her out of the herd and follow commands. That helps when showing in the ring, but it also helps having cows with pleasant dispositions to work with, she said.

Her chores around the farm include a range of activities. Because both her parents work the farm, Stacy has taken over many of the household chores, such as making family meals, taking lunch out to the field when the family can't come in from haying.

She said a typical day is awaking at 5:30 a.m., milking cows, feeding calves, letting the cows out, making breakfast, doing housework, scraping the stables down, doing more housework, and then making lunch, etc..

Both her mother and father work as a team on the farm, along with some hired help. Her brother Jason is also a steady and dependable worker and helps with fieldwork and barn work.

But she is now also a dairy princess and she said she enjoys helping to promote milk, though she said she still is nervous about doing promotions, until the event starts getting underway.

"I think of what I'm going to do," she said, "how I can present my message to people."

She said her most favorite promotions as a dairy maid was going to schools to visit classrooms. She said the classroom promotions used activities that involved the class, such as making ice cream, pudding, or butter.

"That's always fun, watching the kids," she said, adding that she has spoken before classes of grade 1, 2, 3 and sometimes kindergarten students. "I enjoy the older kids better, because they have better attention and are more enthusiastic."

As far as making the transition from dairy maid to dairy princess, she said, "I like it better (being a dairy princess). I get to do more things, going out talking to people, telling them about the dairy industry."

The theme of this sixth annual event is "Our Indian Heritage." Teepee and pre-1840's structures will be on display as well as Indian artifacts. black powder displays, and tomahawk throw.

Tuscarora Valley Heritage Days To Be Held

EAST WATERFORD (Juniata Co.) — Although the actual Heritage celebration will start Friday, July 22, the kickoff day for Tuscarora Valley Heritage Days is Thursday, when a benefit sale will be held.

Donated or consigned items (20 percent commission) will be accepted from 10 a.m. Food stands will be open.

BBW chicken will be available at 4 p.m. on Thursday and Friday and from 10:30 a.m. throughout the day on Saturday and Sunday. Breakfast will be available Saturday and Sunday from 7 a.m. -10 a.m.

The theme of this sixth annual event is "Our Indian Heritage." Teepee and pre-1840s structures will be on display as well as Indian artifacts, black powder displays, and tomahawk throw. Phone (717) 734-3663 if you wish to display Indian artifacts.

Displays of old-time crafts, tools, or machinery are welcome. Flea and craft markets will also be there, but the main attraction as always will be the countless antique tractors and steam-propelled equipment that will be on display. They will be on parade on the grounds at 11 a.m., 4 p.m. and 7 p.m. on Saturday and at 1 p.m. on Sunday.

New this year: horseshoe tournament on Saturday. Sign up by 9 a.m. Music by Sharon Goodlling on Saturday night and by Susie Rowles Saturday from 1 p.m.-4 p.m. Pedal tractor pulls are on Saturday and Sunday 2 p.m. Square dancing will be on Saturday 8 p.m. to midnight. Sunday worship service will be at 8:30 a.m. with Rev. Dennis Thompson as speaker, followed by "One in the Spirit" gospel singing group.

Take Route 75 south from Port Royal exit of 22/322, or Route 75 north from Willow Hill exit of Pennsylvania Turnpike.

Displays of old-time crafts, tools, or machinery are welcome. Flea and craft markets will also be there, but the main attraction as always will be the countless antique tractors and steam-propelled equipment that will be on display.

Scholarships Available

HARMONY, N.J. — Teens in grades 7 through 12 are eligible to receive full or partial scholarships to the New Jersey 4-H Conservation School to be held here July 31-August 5.

The conservation school program is coordinated by Rutgers Cooperative Extension and is a residential program for youth interested in environmental issues. The week-long program focuses on waste management alternatives, water quality issues, and conservation of natural resources.

Highlights of the week include tours to manufacturing facilities, the state trout hatchery, the county's energy from refuse facility, and a day-long canoe trip on the Delaware River. In addition to the educational tours, teens gain self esteem and group skills participating in a rock-climbing program and group activities.

The following scholarships are available:

- Warren County residents - two scholarships from the Warren County Federation of Sportsmen Clubs.
- New Jersey residents - two scholarships from the NJ Federation of Sportsmen.
- Bergen County residents - two scholarships from the Bergen Co. Federation of Sportsmen.
- Union County residents - two scholarships from Ogden Martin.
- Central Jersey residents - two scholarships from Central Jersey Chapter of Trout Unlimited.

Scholarshiops will be awarded on the basis of financial need, scholastic aptitude, and interest in the program. For more information about scholarships or the New Jersey 4-H Conservation School, please call (908) 475-6502 or write to Carol Ward, Warren County 4-H Agent, Rutgers Cooperative Extension of Warren County, 165 County Road 519 South, Belvidere, NJ 07823-1949.

She won the Earl Strine Memorial Award for the best presentation.

Mellott, who will go to Penn State University in the fall, is a seven-year 4-H member. She was on the 1992 Dairy Bowl Team that won the state contest that year and then placed sixth in the national contest.

The second runner-up in the pageant was Amy Dulebohn, the daughter of Joe and Betty Dulebohn of Greencastle.

In her presentation she played a second grader who was getting ready for bed and was trying to decide which stuffed animal she wanted — the polar bear that drinks soda or Chloe the cow, which she got after she visited Uncle Joe's farm. She went on to explain that she chose the because cows produce milk and outlined the advantages of milk over soda.

Dulebohn will be a sophomore at Wilson College. She plans to graduate with a degree in dairy science.

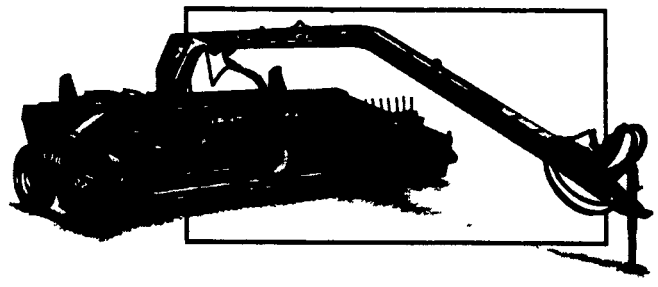
GEHL

CUT 'N TURN



Gehl swing-frame mower conditioners are designed to cut your biggest hayfields down to size. Gehl swing-frames give you the capacity and maneuverability of a self-propelled mower conditioner at a pull-type price. Gehl also makes conventional sickle-bar models as well as disc mower conditioners.

Gehl's swing-frame mower conditioners feature:

- Full-width conditioning rolls with intermittent ribs.
- Total hydraulic drive for smooth operation.
- Center-pivot design for excellent maneuverability.
- Three-point flotation support protects the cutterbar.
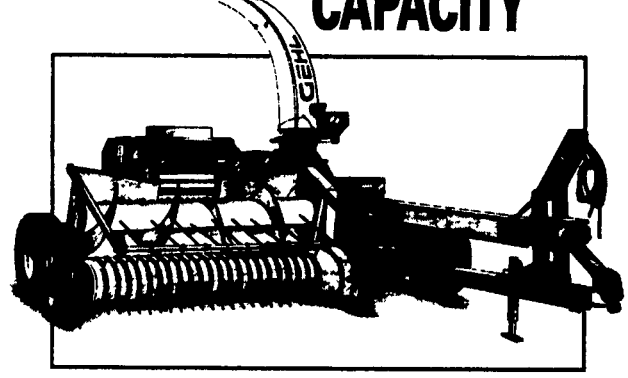
- Easily adjustable for full-width swaths or high-standing windrows.

UNMATCHED CAPACITY



Gehl forage harvesters get the job done faster with these performance features:

- Exclusive Auto-Max Load-Sensing System – Increase capacity by up to 20% Lets you operate at top capacity without the fear of downtime due to overloading
- Metal-Stop Metal Detector – Prevents machine damage and hardware disease
- In-head Hydraulic Knife Sharpener – Lets you sharpen knives in the field
- Patented One-Sided Cutterbar Adjustment – Makes adjusting the cutterbar quick and easy
- Three Models To Choose From – Including the largest capacity pull type forage harvester on the market

REAL ESTATE

10.63 acres of land. Approx 3 acres in lawn. The balance is woodland. Improved with a historic two-story brick Mansion House which dates to just after 1800 and was part of the buildings of one William Sechrist, and included 250 acres and a Grist Mill. The Mansion House, having 3,266 sq. ft. was lovingly updated, restored and added-to by "Lou" and "Tammy" Schroder, beginning in 1982, preserving much of the original woodwork and trim. Dwelling contains a center hall with open stairway. Hall opens onto the kitchen, laundry room/office, living room with stone fireplace, formal dining room and spa/workout room with in-ground spa and dry and steam saunas on first floor. Second floor has 3 bedrooms and bath, plus a master suite with large sitting room, bedroom, clothes room and bath with bidet, and adjacent deck. Additions include a large two-story wing, plus a satellite dish which is controlled from the master suite. The added two-story wing has a three car garage with automatic openers on the first floor. The second floor contains a 1241 sq. ft. apartment with two bedrooms, bath, kitchen, dining area and living room. Separate heat and electricity, which are paid by the tenant. The apartment currently brings in $4,800.00 annually.

INSPECT: For private showing, phone (717) 246-0415. Open House, Sunday, July 10 & 17 from 1 to 4 P.M.

TERMS: A non-refundable down payment of 10% of the gavel price is required on day of auction in cash or guaranteed funds. Balance down in-full on-or-before October 6, 1994 at closing.

Goat Field Day Set

MANHEIM (Lancaster Co.) — Windy Hill Goat Dairy (Jacob Fisher's) will be the site of the Lancaster County Goat Field Day on Saturday, July 16, from 1 p.m.-4 p.m.

The program topic is "I Just Goat A Goat. Now What Do I Do?" Discussions will include information on goat care, including feeding, health, and housing. Demonstrations will be provided on dehorning, hoof trimming, and administering boluses.

Also, goat information, milk marketing, making goat cheeses, hay quality, and food and fellowship will also be included at the field day.

Speakers include Nancy Winning, veterinarian; Denise Goss, Red Gate Farm, Palmyra; Jacob Fisher, Windy Hill Goat Dairy; and Glenn Shirk, extension agent.

Producers should note that a local milk marketing potential is developing in the New Holland area. According to a release from the Lancaster extension office, a local cheese processor wants to purchase goat milk locally and work with producers who are interested.

"We can explore the interest of those attending Field Day and arrange for a future meeting to explore this in greater detail," noted Glenn Shirk, Lancaster extension agent.

Producers should bring chairs, food or snacks (including goat foods and recipes for sharing with others), and samples of hay for discussion purposes.

For more information, contact Shirk at the extension office, (717) 394-6851.

SUSQUEHANNA RIVER BASIN COMMISSION PROPOSED REGULATION CHANGES TO IMPACT POULTRY FARMERS

The Susquehanna River Basin Commission (SRBC) was formed in 1971 to regulate water use in the Susquehanna River Basin. Four commissioners oversee the operations of the SRBC. One commissioner each is appointed by the states of Maryland, New York, and Pennsylvania and a fourth commissioner is appointed by the federal government.

The goal of the SRBC is to manage the water supply to insure all users have access to the water they need and to insure a minimum level of flow in the rivers and streams in the basin. The SRBC is especially concerned about consumptive uses of water where water is consumed in an activity and no longer available to be returned to the water supply in the basin. Agricultural consumptive uses include irrigation and consumption by livestock.

Although consumptive use regulations were in effect since formation of the SRBC in 1971, agricultural uses were largely ignored prior to 1991. Partly in response to the drought of 1991, the SRBC began to seek ways to bring agricultural operations into compliance with the consumptive use regulations.

In 1992, an agricultural advisory committee was formed by the SRBC. This committee developed some recommendations which were presented to the commissioners in 1993. The commissioners rejected both the agricultural committees' recommendations and a separate proposal developed by the SRBC staff members. Since that time the SRBC staff have developed regulation changes which are designed to increase agricultural compliance.

Under these new regulations, any consumptive user of 10,000 gallons per day will be required to register with the SRBC. Any user of 20,000 gallons per day would potentially be subject to water use fees, application fees, and annual monitoring fees. A poultry operation with 290,000 layers or 590,000 broilers would use approximately 20,000 gallons per day.

If an operation consumes between 20,000 and 100,000 gallons per day, the operator could be exempt from application and monitoring fees if the operator applies for a general use permit. This would require payment of a water use fee of seven cents per 1,000 gallons consumed. For a dairy which uses 20,000 gallons per day, this would total $511 per year.

This water use fee is one half the rate paid by other water users. If an operator consuming 20,000 gallons per day chooses to apply for a permit, the operation would be subject to an initial application fee of $750, and an annual monitoring fee of $100, and would either choose to pay the water use fee of seven cents per thousand gallons or develop an alternative water supply to be used during low flow periods which occur during dry weather.

A number of public hearings have been held to receive public comment on the proposed regulation changes. A final hearing will be held on July 14 at 1:30 p.m. at the Tidewater Inn, 101 E. Dover St., Easton, Maryland. Written comments will be received until August 1.

If you would like to submit written comments, send them to Richard A. Cairo, General Counsel/Secretary, Susquehanna River Basin Commission, 1721 N. Front St., Harrisburg, PA 17102-2391.

Beekeepers Swarm To Lancaster For Conference

UNIVERSITY PARK (Centre Co.) — When you bite into a ripe, juicy apple, you probably don't give much thought to bees. But maybe you should. Without bees, fruits and vegetables would be less plentiful and more expensive.

You can learn more about bees and how they affect our lives by visiting the Willow Valley Family Resort in Lancaster, July 13-15. That's the site of the 1994 Eastern Apiculture Society (EAS) conference. The annual event is expected to draw as many as 500 commercial and hobby beekeepers from as far away as Canada and the Carolinas.

"Honey bees pollinate about $20 billion worth of crops in the United States each year," said Maryann Frazier, EAS president and extension entomologist in Penn State's College of Agricultural Sciences.

"About one-third of the food you eat is produced with the aid of honey bees," she said. "Pennsylvania apples, for instance, are about 95 percent dependent on honey bees for pollination.

"In addition, about 250 million pounds of honey worth $200 million are produced in the United States annually."

Although the EAS conference is intended primarily for beekeepers, who must pay a registration fee to attend, free activities are planned for the public.

"On Thursday and Friday, we willhave a honey show that's open to the public," Frazier said. "Visitors can sample different types of honey and see some of the many uses of beeswax."

The public also can see a presentation called "Dancing' with the Bees," by Cliff Wright-Sunflower, a beekeeper known for his innovative school educational programs. The audience will learn how a honey bee colony functions by participating as members of a working hive in this entertaining and educational program, July 14 at 11 a.m.

Sessions designed for registered conference participants will address issues and opportunities that affect bees and beekeepers. One presentation will cover apitherapy, or the use of bee venom to treat physical ailments.

"There's a lot of interest in apitherapy for the treatment of diseases such as multiple sclerosis and arthritis," said Frazier.

Workshops and seminars also will cover Africanized bees, parasitic mites, honey quality assurance and other topics. For more information, contact Maryann Frazier at (814) 865-4621 or Joe Duffy at (717) 885-1681.

Animal Welfare Student Group Active At Penn State

UNIVERSITY PARK (Centre Co.) — When one group of Penn State students gets together, it isn't to party or talk about the latest music or clothes. This group focuses on the best ways to promote animal welfare and the continued success of animal agriculture.

Their goal is to educate students and the general public on issues pertinent to the welfare, care, and use of animals in farming systems and in agricultural, veterinary, and biomedical research. Other discussions focus on topics such as wildlife conservation and animal use and issues in international agriculture.

These students are members of Students for the Responsible Use of Animals, (SRUA), a Penn State club sponsored by the Department of Dairy and Animal Science and affiliated with Pennsylvanians for the Responsible Use of Animals (PRUA). The organization began as an undergraduate student discussion group in 1989. Although most SRUA members are enrolled in the College of Agricultural Sciences, students from other colleges participate as well.

Organizing and staffing the Farm Animal Learning Center at the Pennsylvania Farm Show is a major annual activity for SRUA. This year's Learning Center featured six species of live animals, including sheep, pigs, calves, chicks, goats, and a pony. The program's educational effort centered around comparative digestive systems and feeds for farm animals, including by-product materials from agriculture and other industries. Children and adults alike enjoyed viewing a preserved rumen, learning about by-products, and feeling the lanolin on sheep's wool.

SRUA members also tour various farm and laboratory facilities. Recently, they visited New Bolton Center and Wistar Institute, as well as Hoard's Dairyman Farm in Wisconsin, Hooved Animal Humane Society in Illinois, and a veal farm in conjunction with the American Veterinary Medical Association's Animal Welfare Forum. Other activities include organizing animal by-product and care guideline displays and leading tours of Penn State's farm animal facilities for elementary school students.

Education of the public, especially children, is a primary goal of the group. To this end, SRUA has published seven Welcome to a Farm brochures covering sheep, pig, dairy, beef, chicken, veal, and horse production. They also have developed three Let's Learn About pamphlets on goat, rabbit, and bee production, and plan to publish others on dairy products, eggs, international use of animals, and other topics. In addition, the club publishes a quarterly newsletter, Pennsylvania Kids Care, concerning important contemporary topics in animal agriculture. These materials are available to teachers and others through county extension offices or by contacting SRUA directly.

Meetings held throughout the academic year provide opportunities for the students to discuss animal welfare issues with experts and critics. These discussions are often held jointly with other student organizations having a shared interest in animals.

Current SRUA officers are Elizabeth Garver, president (York County); Jodie Everly, past president (Butler County); Matt Espenshade, vice president (Lancaster County); Matt Stachmus, secretary (Blair County); Karen Fogle, Agricultural Student Council representative and publicity chairperson (Cambria County); and Shawn Jones, Agricultural Student Council representative (Blair County). Brenda Coe, Lowell Wilson, and Stanley Curtis serve as advisers for the SRUA.

This July SRUA members will attend joint meetings of the American Society of Animal Science and American Dairy Science Association in Minneapolis to discuss their goals and activities and to encourage the organization of similar groups at other universities.

For more information, contact SRUA, The Pennsylvania State University, 324 Henning Building, University Park, PA 16802, (814) 863-7738 or (814) 863-3659.

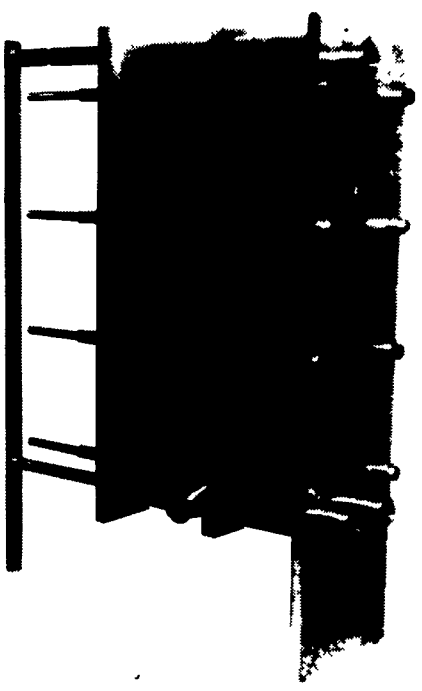
...It means quality milk.



Being cool is more than just an attitude or a state of mind. It's a necessity, especially when it comes to quality milk. The Surge Plate Kooler redefines cool. By using well water alone or combined with ice water, the Plate Kooler provides instant milk cooling.

Features and Benefits:

- ❑ Quick cooling reduces the risk of bacteria growth, resulting in higher qualitv milk and higher profits
- ❑ Pre-cooled milk means the milk tanks use less horsepower to cool milk, reducing energy costs.

Adding a Kool Way Chiller to your pre- cooling system increases your benefits by:

- ❑ Using 20 to 30 percent less horsepower to lower milk temperature to as low as 36° F, further lowering energy costs.
- ❑ Virtually eliminating tank cooling by using chilled water, instantly lowering milk's temperature to storage temperat

Salmonella Video, Software Premier

WAYNE, N.J. — "Salmonella Prevention," a new video for pork producers from American Cyanamid Company, explores causes, effects and prevention guidelines for this growing disease. Experts estimate that 60 to 70 percent of U.S. swine herds are affected by Salmonella cholerasuis, a systemic, bacterial disease that may cause severe respiratory problems, even death. Pigs that survive an outbreak are often stunted and poor-doing. Yearly losses to pork producers are estimated at $100 million.

In this 7½ -minute video, two veterinarians and a top swine producer discuss why the disease occurs, how it works and how to prevent and control it. For a free copy of the new "Salmonella Prevention" video, call toll-free (800) 426-2924.

Agway Names Vice Presidents

SYRACUSE, N.Y. — Agway's board of directors elected three new vice presidents at its board meeting recently.

Kevin S. Fuess is vice president, risk and environmental quality, responsible for the risk management and environmental quality areas of Agway. He has been director of risk and environmental quality since 1988. A native of central New York and a graduate of Clarkson University, Fuess joined Agway Petroleum Corporation in 1972 where he served in a number of management positions. He attended the Graduate Institute of Cooperative Leadership at the university of Missouri and participated in marketing and financial management studies at Columbia University.

Stephen H. Hoefer is vice president of public affairs. A native of Syracuse and graduate of St. John Fisher College in Rochester, N.Y., Hoefer holds a master's degree in public administration from the Maxwell School at Syracuse University. He joined Agway in 1984 as director of public affairs and government relations. Hoefer is active in many national and state organizations. He is chairman of the Empire State Council of Agricultural Organizations and chairman of the Government Affairs Council of the Business Council of New York State. He serves on the government affairs and Environmental Policy Committees of the National Council of Farmer Cooperatives and the Food and Agriculture Committee of the U.S. Chamber of Commerce.

Robert D. Sears is vice president, member relations, responsible for membership activities and security sales of the farm supply cooperative. A native of central New York, he was graduated from Cornell University and joined Agway as a management trainee in 1962. He held a number of management positions, including director of feed services and director of business development for the food group at Agway before becoming director of member relations in 1992. He serves as vice president of the board of directors of the Northeast Cooperative Council and is on the Education Committee of the National Council of Farmer Cooperatives.

Barn Cleaners, Chain Built For Long Haul

FORT ATKINSON, Wis. — For powerful, strong, and long-lasting barn cleaners and chain, farmers look to Van Dale, a manufacturer of farmstead equipment.

Van Dale manufactures three barn cleaner models to suit individual needs. The Model 300 is its most affordable design, yet offers the power required to pull up to 330 feet of chain. Just as important, the Model 300 is also fast. It will clean up to 20-feet-per-minute with a flat-link chain, and up to 25-feet-per-minute with Hook-Link™ chain. The Model 300's easy pulling drive is available with 2 to 3 H.P. motor to match chain length.

Van Dale's Model 500 and Model 750 barn cleaners have added power and strength. The Model 500 is equipped with a spur gear drive unit that features 35,000 P.S.I. minimum-strength cast iron gears and AISI 1045 steel pinions. It can handle up to 350 feet of chain with 3 H.P., and 550 feet of chain with 5 H.P. The Model 750's ductile cast iron main gears are rated at 100,000 P.S.I. minimum tensile strength. The Model 750 handles up to 700 feet of chain with a 7½ H.P. motor for cleaning really long barns.

For more information about Van Dale Model 300, 500 or 750 barn cleaners, or about Van Dale Hook-Link or Flat-Link chains, please contact Dean Hanke, Van Dale, 801 Janesville Avenue, Fort Atkinson, WI 53538, (414) 563-5521.

Dekalb Tests Insect-Resistant Corn

DEKALB, Ill. — Dekalb Genetics corporation is conducting field trials this summer for hybrids resistant to damage from the European corn borer (ECB) and a new post-emergence herbicide for corn.

"Dekalb researchers developed the new ECB hybrids by inserting a gene for a natural insecticide into the corn plant cell," said Dr. Tom Rice, senior vice president of research. "The plant produces a protein which is lethal to the corn borer larva. The gene for the protein comes from a common soil microorganism, Bacillus thuringiensis, used by home gardeners for 30 years to fight caterpillars."

Nearly all corn acres are susceptible to ECB though only a fraction of those acres are actually treated every year, said Rice. Damage ranges from undetectable levels to major losses of up to $500 million per year.

Local Pork Producer Named Contest Runner-Up

EXTON (Chester Co.) — Elizabethtown pork producer H.G. Stauffer was recently named runner-up in the RespiSure® Success Stories Contest sponsored by SmithKline Beecham Animal Health.

Stauffer's short essay on how RespiSure® mycoplasmal pneumonia vaccine helps him prevent respiratory disease and increase profits in his hog operation was among nine runner-ups chosen from essays submitted by producers from across the country. Each runner-up received a $100 cash prize.

"Respi'Sure is a leading vaccine in the battle against mycoplasmal pneumonia, a primary cause of chronic pneumonia in the United States," said Jim Alvare, Territory Manager for SmithKline Beecham.

By sponsoring the RespiSure Success Stories Contest, SmithKline Beecham hopes to stimulate discussion about the effects of respiratory diseases and how pork producers can reduce the economic impact of those diseases through sound herd health and management.

Equine Art Auction

QUENTIN (Lebanon Co.) — The Pennsylvania Arabian Horse Association in conjunction with the 35th Annual Eastern Arabian Horse Show/East Coast championships, August 5-7 at the Quentin Riding Club, has announced the first Equine Art Auction to benefit The Four Diamonds Fund at the Hershey Medical Center.

The auction will feature original paintings, limited editon signed and number prints, sketches, and other items. Works by nationally known artists Michelle Spalding, Pam Talley Stoneburner, Shari Akers, among others, will be featured.

The "silent" auction will go on throughout the Eastern Arabian Horse Show. With more than 600 horses from 23 states and two Canadian provinces, it is one of the biggest Arabian horse shows in the country.

There is no admission charge and parking is free. There is even a free stick horse contest on Saturday evening, August 6 at 6:30 p.m. with ribbons and prizes to all entries.

The Quentin Riding Club is located just three miles south of Lebanon on Route 72 and is accessible from the Pennsylvania Turnpike, Routes 322, 422, 81, and 83.

For more information, call (717) 949-3102.

Tri-State Breeder Names Manager

MORGANTOWN (Berks Co.) — Dwight Stoltzfus, Morgantown, has been named a district sales manager with Tri-State Breeders, Baraboo and Westby, Wis.

Stoltzfus will cover eastern Pennsylvania and be responsible for direct service semen sales and semen delivery as well as providing A.I. supplies and advice about sires.

Stoltzfus is a graduate of Pennsylvania State University, where he received a bachelor's degree in agricultural business and journalism. While in college, he was chairperson of the Penn State Nittany Lion Fall Classic and co-editor of the Penn State Dairyman. He also served as a finalist for the Pennsylvania Holstein Association Distinguished Junior Member and is publicity chairperson for the 1995 National Junior Holstein Convention.

Learn Causes Of Poor Plant Health

UNIVERSITY PARK (Centre Co.) — If you have bad luck growing garden or landscape plants, you may think you simply lack the proverbial "green thumb."

But if you know the causes of poor plant health, you can take steps to avoid or correct them, said an expert in Penn State's College of Agricultural Sciences.

"Diseases are only one cause of poor plant growth, said Dr. Gary Moorman, associate professor of plant pathology. "When diagnosing plant problems, all the possible causes of poor or abnormal growth must be considered."

Several factors can cause poor seed germination. "If you don't get good seed emergence, soil conditions may be too wet or too dry, or temperatures may be too hot or cold," said Moorman.

"When temperature and moisture are good, poor germination can result from soil compaction, planting at the wrong depth, applying too much fertilizer close to the seed, or planting old seed.

"If seedlings emerge and appear normal but don't grow, this may be caused by inadequate lilght, insufficient nutrients or cool temperatures," Moorman said. "Swollen, twisted or distorted seedlings may be the result of mite feeding injury or herbicides in the soil. Excessive fertilizer or pesticide spraying can cause leaf tip burn."

With established plants, some conditions can cause a variety of symptoms, said Moorman. "For instance, low fertility or a nutrient deficiency can cause leaves to grow poorly, become brittle, turn yellow or display a mosaic pattern of light and dark green."

Symptoms of overfertilization include yellow, wilted or fallen leaves, dead leaf tips and margins, dead stem tips, and limp, dark-colored roots.

Some plant health problems can result from the use of pesticides. "Sometimes our efforts to protect plants from pests actually harm the plants," said Moorman. "It's important to apply pesticides properly, for the plant's health and your own."

Some signs of pesticide injury are dead or yellow spots or flecks on leaves, a mosaic pattern of dark and light green on leaves, dead leaf tips or margins, fallen leaves, and dead stem tips.

"Be sure that the pesticide you're using is intended for the plants and pests you're dealing with," Moorman said. "And always read and follow all directions and safety precautions on the label."

Proper amounts of water also are important to plant health. Overwatering can cause yellow, wilted or fallen leaves, rotted stems at the soil line and limp, and dark-colored roots. Underwatering may lead to dead leaf tips and margins, wilted leaves, and dead stem tips.

Big-Jim Unloader...The Unloader of the Future...Available Today.
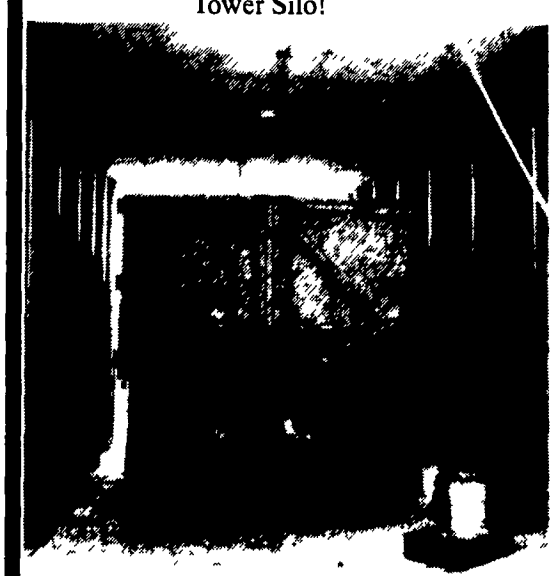
Think of Storing 5,000 Tons in One Tower Silo!



Drive your truck or mixer-wagon under the 12' high floor for fast and efficient delivery of your wilted hay or silage. Eliminate conveyors from silos to mixer.

"IT'S A WHOLE NEW WORLD OUT THERE!"

Tower silos that can hold 4,000 tons of forage!!! This is one of the first major changes in the silo industry since the 1950's when farmers went from 12' and 14' diameter silos to 20' and 24' diameter silos. The industry met the challenge. And Now, Sollenberger Silos Corp. is stepping up to meet the challenges of the '90's and beyond. The larger dairies need storage units that will hold 2,000 tons and more, and be able to deliver the feed without spending "Hours Per Day." The poured concrete tower silo is the silo to store the feed, and the Big-Jim Distributor/Unloader is the system to deliver the feed. Today's business-oriented dairymen realize that "Forage Quality is often the single most important factor affecting their profit," and as a result they are searching for ways to store the feed, and deliver it to the cow in the best condition possible. "The tower silo may very well be the best investment that a dairy farmer can make!!"

Store your feed in a poured concrete silo, let gravity do the packing, and deliver the feed directly into your truck or mixer. "Save $20,000 or more per year on machinery and labor costs to store and deliver your feed, compared to bunker silos."

The tower silo may cost more, but labor, machinery, and feed quality savings will pay the difference in 3 years or less. "The Blizzard of '93 and the severe winter of '94 greatly increases your appreciation of the concrete tower silo."

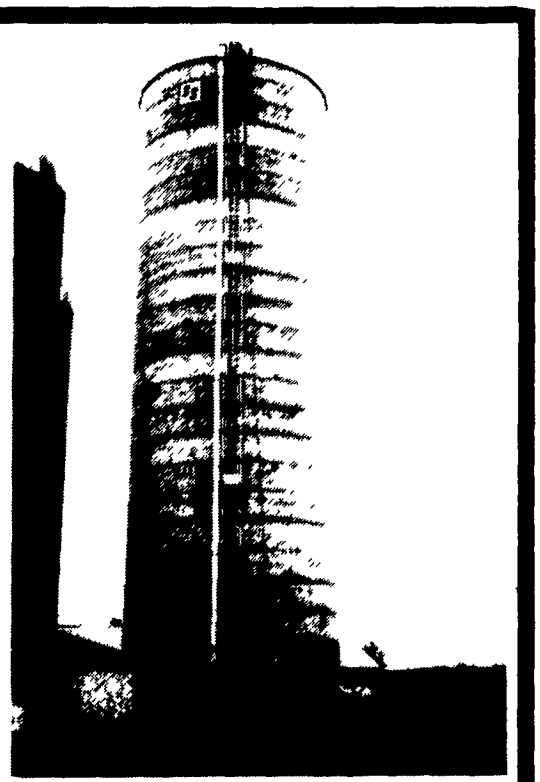
Bob Francis (717) 264-9588



JUST COMPLETED...This 30'x100' poured concrete silo with drive-thru for loading directly into your mixer wagon or truck-mounted mixer. The Big-Jim System will deliver over 1000 lbs. per minute of corn silage. Just think...you don't need 6 silos and 6 unloaders to store this much feed...and better yet, you do not have to store your valuable feed on the ground and try to protect it with plastic and used tires!!!

You may pay less for some dairy farm equipment... but it can cost you more!

Equipment cost is not the only cost of cooling milk

In the long run, total operating costs of a Mueller milk-cooling system are generally substantially less than those of "bargain-brand" milk-cooling equipment.

Example	Mueller	Competition
Cost of equipment	$31,000	$28,000
Cost of electricity @ .08 kW for 12,000 lbs milk/day for 10 years	$17,550	$22,850
Total operating cost for ten years	$48,550	$50,850
Savings	$ 2,300

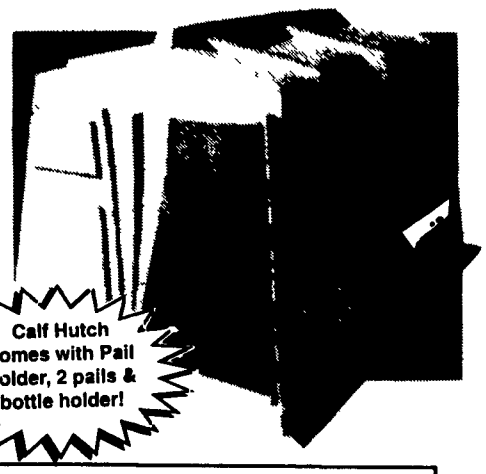
SUPREME CALF HUTCH

J&D MOLDED HIGH DENSITY-POLYETHYLENE CALF HUTCH

J&D Calf Hutches will keep calves drier in the winter, they will stay warmer and start eating at an earlier age. During the warm summer months you can use the standard, adjustable air vent to control the climate in the Calf Hutch. Your calves will be healthier and will grow faster. You may add an out door fence area to the hut.



Calf Hutch comes with Pail holder, 2 pails & bottle holder!

INTRODUCING...

SWEETCAKE 16NU

FEED SUPPLEMENT BLOCKS FOR THE LIVESTOCK INDUSTRY

Sweetcake Advantages

- Aids in making the best use of your available forage
- Promotes a more even herd consumption, with 24-hour availability to all cattle
- Reduces labor to save you money and give you more time to make important management decisions
- Supplies much-needed vitamins and minerals that forage lacks to help your cattle perform to their genetic potential
- Supplies fat in most formulations to enhance energy intake

For Dairy

- Replacement heifers that grow out soundly and economically
- Body condition on dry cows so they can return to lactation, producing at the maximum potential
- Healthier herds, with essential trace minerals that help prevent metritis, retained placenta and other health problems
- Prompt re-breeding, thanks to essential nutrients

For Beef

- Stronger, healthier calves at birth
- Heavier Calves at weaning
- Cows that cycle better for improved conception rates
- Cows that milk better to raise a better calf
- A higher percentage of early births
- A higher percentage of cows breeding back
- Bulls which are in better condition to cover your cows

- AVAILABLE IN 250 LB. SIZE -

Registered Highland Cattle

- Discover the breed that still retains special traits acquired from its ancestors of Scotland.
- Great foragers, clearing most pest plants common to poor pastures
- Thrive in cold, damp climates
- Produce excellent lean beef in adverse conditions where other cattle would fail
- Docile and Hearty
- Calve easily due to small birth weights—something of interest to dairy people for servicing first-calf heifers
- Brucellosis, TB, BVD free herd and inoculated against rabies

LLAMAS LLAMAS LLAMAS

If you've been considering starting in llamas, or having a llama for a pet, why not stop in to see our herd.

Our young males start at $500, our weanling females at $2,500, our pregnant females at $3,500. A deposit will hold any of our crias (baby llamas) for you.

We prefer selling off the farm, rather than subjecting our animals to the stress of auctions.

All of our llamas are registered with the International Llama Registry. Some of the finest wool and blood lines can be found in our herd, including Otter Creek Harold.

All llamas can be halter led, and are gently trained by teenagers.

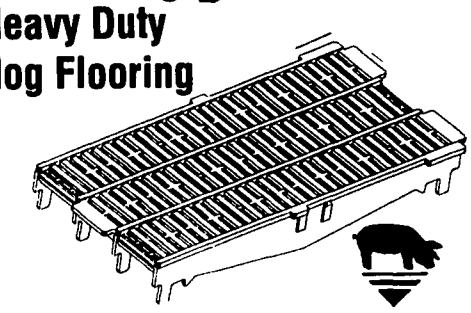
REPLACING HOG FLOORING? CONSIDERING NEW CONSTRUCTION? ☑ CHECK OUT Polygrate™
Heavy Duty Hog Flooring



Time Tested and Proven
This style of POLYGRATE was first introduced in 1981. Over the years Faroex has continued to refine this product. POLYGRATE is one of only a few "World Class" floors that has stood this test of time.

Outstanding Traction
POLYGRATE'S unique "high-low" finger design provides outstanding traction for pigs of all sizes, while enhancing safety and comfort.
- ◆ POLYGRATE'S rounded corners minimize injuries. The edges are beveled providing a smoother, safer surface that promotes comfort, too.

What Does This All Add Up To?
- ◆ More piglets survive until weaning
- ◆ Less splay/spraddle leg problems
- ◆ Heavier piglets at weaning
- ◆ Better conditioned sows at weaning

PUT MORE MILK IN YOUR BULK TANK WITH BREWERS WET GRAINS FROM MIRACLE

Trucked fresh right to your farm, brewers wet grains from Miracle Feeds can provide an excellent source of rumen by-pass protein. This by-pass protein is more efficiently digested and absorbed in the cow's small intestine. Helps your average cows produce more, makes your top producers even more efficient.

Now you can add McNess vitamin and mineral premixes to your Miracle rations through the accuracy of free computerized ration balancing. For more information, call toll-free 800-888-0230.

Have you tried toasted grains?

Consider these advantages over traditional roasting methods:

- Consistent by-pass proteins and low moisture levels.
- Improved energy density of your rations.
- Excellent quality control.
- Exchange programs with feed mills.
- Economical storage, rolling and grinding available.
- We also buy corn and soybeans

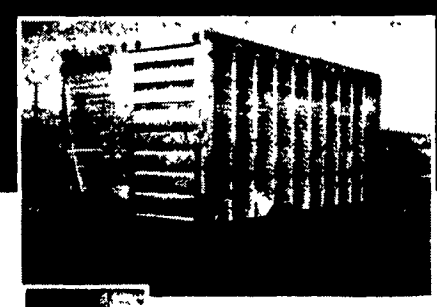
Agriculture Moves on EBY Bodies



M.H. Eby custom-builds aluminum truck bodies for the agri-transportation market. Nobody offers more sizes and options in:

- LIVESTOCK BODIES - Lengths to 32', choice of heights and widths.
- GRAIN BODIES - Lengths to 24'; landscape and general purpose dumps to 12'.
- FLATBED BODIES - Lengths to 32', choice of 5 widths.

For greater payload capacity, Eby's aluminum design is equal in strength to steel and up to 40% lighter. Our corrosion-resistant components never need painting. That means minimum maintenance, improved appearance and higher resale value.

Eby products have superior standard features. And we offer custom options for virtually any application. Agriculture is your business- building bodies to haul it is ours.

Let EBY custom build one for you.

FOR SALE
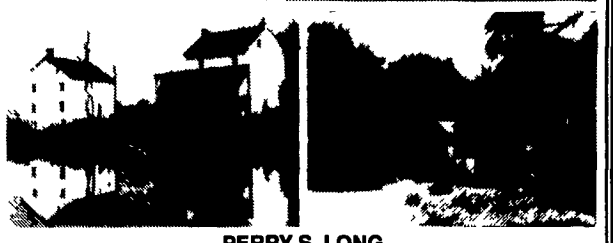
DREAMFIELD MANOR 960 Acre Farm/Estate
Excellent For Vineyard

Located in Berks, Lehigh and Montgomery Counties, PA

A rare opportunity to own a beautiful private valley. Formerly the world class Masten Potato Farm, the land consists of level to gently rolling fields, a beautiful stream valley and large pond. This farm was examined by a well known Vitacultural Consultant. The air drainage and the majority of the soils were found to be excellent for grape production. The buildings feature an exceptional circa 1730 Stone Manor House with six bedrooms and four huge fireplaces with an elegant yet quaint entryway to the Manor House grounds, passing between the gate house and the stone bank barn and over two stone bridges to the Manor House. There is also a large Federal brick farm house. In total there are eight farm houses six of which are stone, two large stone bank barns and grain storage for 70,000 bushels. This farm has excellent potential for a winery/vineyard, an equestrian estate or potato farm. Call for a brochure on this and our other fine farms and estates.



Could be divided into many smaller farms.

Farmers Urge An Overhaul Of Health Care System

WASHINGTON D.C. — Farmers participating in a conference call with First Lady Hillary Rodham Clinton urged the administration to swiftly and comprehensively reform the nation's health care system.

Three of the seven farmers who shared their stories and concerns regarding health care reform with the First Lady were members of the National Farmers Union (NFU). They include Glen Strnad, Munden, Kan.; Ruben Hummell, Mott, N.D. and Ralph Johnson, Bloomfield, Iowa. NFU President Leland Swenson joined the conference call from the White House.

"I'm old enough to retire, but not old enough to get health care," said Strnad, who is in his early sixties. He told the First Lady that he and his wife dropped their health insurance in 1990 when monthly premiums hit $600. Strnad said this same policy would now cost them $1,400.

Access is necessary, said Mrs. Clinton. Everyone has access to a Mercedes Benz, but most of us can't afford one, she said.

Hummell thanked the First Lady for taking a stand on health care reform, saying, it's time Congress stops talking and acts. "I see no reason people in our country should be paying five times what other countries pay for health care," he said.

Mrs. Clinton criticized the "scare tactics" being used by special interest groups to confuse citizens about the need for health care reform. She acknowledged that the insurance lobby continues to be affective with members of the U.S. Congress.

Johnson told of health insurance premiums for he and his wife rising from $2000 annually in 1983 to $12,000 in 1992. "We had to drop to a lower level (of coverage). In 1994, if we had the same insurance, it would cost us $13,876," he said. Johnson also said he believes it is unfair that farmers cannot deduct the full cost of their insurance premiums for their income tax like other businesses and commended the President's plan for this provision.

Another farmer talked about how his lender instructed him to drop his health care insurance — holding that it was a luxury, rather than a necessity.

The First Lady asked the farm leaders participating in the conference call to "support" the goal of guaranteed insurance for every American at an affordable cost."

Health care has become a financial drain for agricultural producers. Many families' health care premiums meet or exceed the average income earned by farm families from farming.

A recent study comparing health care costs for an average Kansas wheat producing family shows that in 1993, a farmer had to sell 3663 bushels of wheat to purchase health insurance and pay out-of-pocket costs. The 1993 level compares with an equivalent of 678 bushels in 1982 and 355 bushels in 1964.

National Farmers Union has advocated universal health care coverage for half a century. The following includes the key policy points adopted by delegates to NFU's annual convention in March 1994.

- NFU supports a plan that provides preventive and long-term health care.
- NFU endorses 100-percent federal income tax deductibility of health care premiums paid by the self-employed.
- NFU believes that simplicity and streamlining will enable resources to be directed toward patient care, rather than administrative costs.
- NFU holds that the new health care plan must address discriminatory pricing policies and rural access to prescription drugs and pharmacy services.

Clinics Offered

HUNTINGDON (Huntingdon Co.) — Agronomic field diagnostic clinics will be held at the Penn State Agronomy Farm at Rockspring on July 21 and July 26.

The program offers hands-on diagnostic training in crop production, soil fertility, and pest management. Penn State specialists will cover key agronomic topics with ample opportunity for one-on-one discussion.

The July 21 clilnic is targeted toward agricultural industry personnel. Farmers are invited to attend the July 26 session. Either group may attend either clinic if the planned date is inconvenient. The programs begin at 9 a.m. and conclude by 4:30 p.m.

Cost of registration is $25, which includes lunch and support materials. Registration deadlines are July 11 for the ag industry clinic and July 18 for the farmeroreinted session. Register by phone at (814) 865-8301. Pesticide certification credits will be available.

What Should I Do After Caterpillars Have Eaten Leaves?

DR. ROBERT HANSEN
Bradford County Extension

As you stand by the side of the road and look out over the leafless trees in your woodlot, you probably ask yourself, "What should I do now?"

I want to give you a couple of do's and don'ts. First and foremost, do not panic! Just because your trees have no leaves does not mean they are dead or that they are all going to die. If you are approached by a timber harvester who says, "You had better cut these trees before they die; and I can do that for you," it would be in your best interests to ignore him or her.

The second thing you do is wait. Trees that have been defoliated once will generally survive. They will put out new leaves for the remainder of the summer. The leaves will be smaller but they can generally do the job. Wait about a month and see just which trees releaf and which ones don't. A stand of trees that has not been defoliated more than once over the past two seasons may possibly suffer only about 10 percent mortality. If the trees were defoliated the previous season, that percentage may increase dramatically.

Thirdly, if a significant number of your trees do not leaf out again this season, do not panic! Dead trees can be salvaged and sold for a profit. Again, do not deal with the first timber harvester that approaches you. Instead, contact a reputable professional forester. (A professional forester has a four-year degree in forestry or a two-year degree in forestry with adequate field experience.) He or she can help put together a timber sale and determine if there are other stressed trees that may not be dead but might need to be removed as well. To find a professional forester that works in your area, call your local Bureau of Forestry service forester or your county extension office. They can provide you with a list of foresters in your area.

Finally, prepare for next year. Penn State Cooperative Extension and the Pennsylvania Bureau of Forestry will hold informational meetings in the winter and early spring about the pest outlook, as well as prepare news articles for newspapers and other media. These organizations can also supply you with additional information about caring for your woodlot.

Be informed about your woods. Learn all you can. This will better help you be prepared for the future.

10 Low-, No-Cost Conservation Practices In Use

GETTYSBURG (Adams Co.) — Everyone benefits from soil and nutrient conservation practices. Both the environment and the farmer can win from implementing best management practices (BMPs).

However, with the economic conditions faced by the agricultural community, the implementation of some BMPs may not be financially possible for many farmers.

Nevertheless, there still exists a large arsenal of low-cost, and even no-cost, BMPs available to farmers. The following BMPs not only benefit the farmer and the environment, but they also improve public perception of farming, as well.

1. Buffer strips: Although this BMP does take some land out of annual crop production, leaving buffer strips along streams and roads can pay for themselves in soil and nutrient savings. A 10-12-foot buffer strip of permanent grass along streams, road ditches and road banks is very effective as keeping soil and nutrients from leaving the field. It can also keep one in good graces with PennDOT and local roadmasters who won't have to clean out road side ditches quite as often.

2. Contour strips: Nothing looks quite as picturesque as a field laid out in contour strips. Not only does it look nice, but contour strips do an outstanding job of breaking up long hillsides with alternating strips of row crops and hay or small grain crops. These strips hold back water and, consequently, any soil or nutrients suspended in it.

3. Contour farming: Some fields may not be suited for contour strips, or may not need to be stripped. For these fields, planting the crops across the slope will greatly improve soil retention.

4. Plowship waterways: It never fails. Every year it will happen. Gutters and gullies in those small drainage swales. Again the problem of crossing and/or closing them exists. Simply letting those swales in grass can often solve all that. Pulling up the plows and discs and turning off the spray equipment through these areas will allow the swales to remain vegetated. The grass can then simply be mowed or cut for hay.

5. Constructed waterways and terraces: In many of the larger drainage swales, a plowskip waterway may not be sufficient. These will require a constructed grass-lined waterway. That sounds like it costs money, right? Well, those costs can definitely be lowered if the farmer does the work. Many times the waterway can be constructed with farm equipment. A tractor and moldboard plow can do the job. Terraces, yet another fine conservation practice, can also be built with a plow. If you would like more flexibility with rotations, tillage, and/or residue management, consider this technique when developing or revising conservation plans.

6. Crop rotation: Continuous row crops are becoming a thing of the past. Many farmers have realized the added benefits of including small grains and hay crops in their farming rotation. Crop rotation increases the effectiveness of a pesticide and herbicide program, improves soil tilth, and helps in balancing nutrients. It is also one of the most beneficial BMPs included in conservation plans to keep soil erosion at a minimum. To lessen the need for costly constructed BMPs, consider incorporating crop rotation to meet the needs of a conservation plan.

7. Residue management: Many people refer to this practice as "dirty farming." Although this may not look very pretty, keeping the residue from the fall harvest on the top of the ground over the winter provides an excellent mulch to lessen the impact of rain and lower soil erosion. It also retains soil moisture and saves time and money by eliminating fall tillage.

8. Nutrient management: Studies continue to prove that nutrient management is the most cost effective means of preventing surface and groundwater pollution. It can also mean great savings for farmers. Accounting for all the nutrients applied to a crop from fertilizers, manures, sludges, and compost will prevent the over application of nutrients. For proper nutrient management two pieces of information are needed: 1) what the crop needs and 2) the amount of nutrients applied. Soil testing and manure, sludge or compost analysis will provide this information. Balancing the crop needs to the nutrients applied will lessen the potential of nutrient run-off and leaching into groundwater. Note: By regularly soil testing and accounting for nitrogen credits from legumes and soybeans, grain farmers who apply no manures can reap benefits from nutrient management as well.

9. Spot treatment of herbicides and pesticides: Although this BMP is not a soil or nutrient conservation practice, it sure can conserve money for the farmer. Scouting fields and applying chemicals only to those areas that need it, will lessen the amount used and will, consequently, lessen the likelihood of surface and/or ground water contamination.

10. Field road maintenance: Poorly sited or badly maintained field roads can often be a major contributor to soil erosion. To lessen erosion in field roads, plan their placement carefully. Avoid poorly drained areas, steep highly erodible areas, and put them on the contour as much as possible. Avoid permanent roads when possible. This will prevent the same area from being exposed year after year. Whether permanent or temporary, always watch for gully formation in field roads and repair them as needed. Also consider stoning the field entrances to lessen the amount of soil deposited on the roads.

As public concern escalates, soil and nutrient conservation and environmentally sound farming practices will continue to be highly demanded of the agricultural community. BMPs such as those discussed here can help farmers meet that demand with very little financial burden and then we all will truly win.

For more information about these and other BMPs, contact your local conservation district or the Soil Conservation Service.

Corn An Oil Well

ST. LOUIS, Mo. — From endangered germplasm to enhanced ethanol, cutting-edge science promoting "corn as an oil well for industrial products" will be highlighted in the popular poster session of Corn Utilization Conference V (CUC V) on June 8-10 at the Hyatt Regency at Union Station in St. Louis.

Sponsored by the National Corn Growers Association (NCGA), CUC V will bring together for the fifth time since 1987 several hundred scientists from U.S. and foreign universities, corporations, research institutions, and government laboratories.

The poster session is always one of the highlights of the conference, notes session chair Mike Tumbleson, professor of the veterinary biosciences at the University of Illinois, Urbana.

"Attendance is high and interest is keen because this session allows researchers and entrepreneurs to present to their peers schematics and samples of their latest processes and products," said Tumbleson.

Among the most exciting topics to be featured are:

• A streamlined, cost-effective process for producing calcium magnesium acetate (CMA), a corn-derived, environmentally-preferred alternative to rock salt as a road de-icer (University of Illinois).

• A revistation and improvement in the extraction of levulinic acid — "a forgotten chemical giant" — from corn, levulinic acid has potential uses as resin, plasticizer, constituent of hydraulic brake fluid, animal feed, coatings and as a solid antifreeze (University of Nebraska-Lincoln).

• A genetically engineered yeast which speeds and reduces the cost of ethanol production by fermenting both glucose and xylose simultaneously (Purdue University).

• Improvement in the extrusion process of biomass-filled degradable polyethylene films which combine speed and consistency (University of Missouri-Columbia).

• A simple process in which corn-derived glucaric acid is transformed into "hydroxylated nylons," synthetic polymers with a range of properties and potential uses (University of Alabama).

• The sustained release of atrazine from cornstarch and biodegradable polymer blends to both maintain weed control and reduce non-point source pollution (University of Kansas).

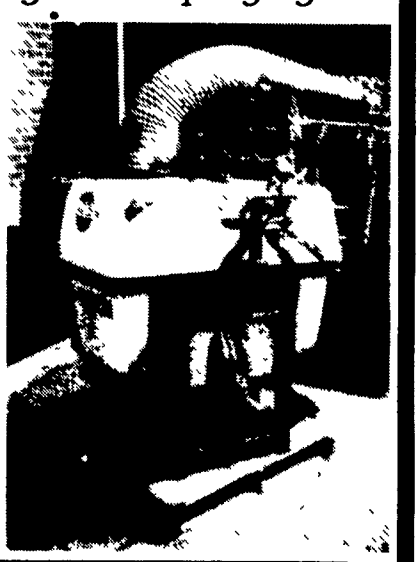
LP PNEUMATIC HARDI MISTBLOWERS

Cannon models for sweet corn or vegetable spraying



The unique pneumatic system uses hydraulic nozzles combined with high air speed. Atomization takes place when the air blast meets the liquid from the nozzle. This ensures uniform coverage of the complete canopy even when spraying at very low volumes.

The cannon-type blower will spray to a maximum of 65' horizontally or 40'-50' vertically. This is especially suitable for spraying in narrow row crops where driving manouverability is limited.

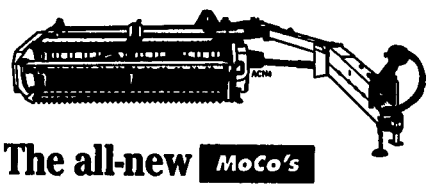
NOBODY DOES HAY BETTER



The all-new MoCo's

- An all-new three-point suspension system provides unmatched flotation
- Redesigned guards and a 5-bar reel help the all-new sickle bar machine cut better – and six inches wider – than anything in it's class.
- Two new rotary disk models feature the all-new, John Deere-built modular cutterbar. It's stronger than anything else on the market.
- An exclusive Power-Cushion helps prevent the driveline from bottoming out during tight turns.

Invites You To Attend The Following Events And See The Monosem Precision Planter

Field Day Set for July 20

As announced in last month's newsletter, the biannual Pennsylvania Vegetable and Small Fruit Field Day will be held on Wednesday, July 20, 1994 at the Horticulture Research Farm located at the Russell E. Larson Research Center at Rock Springs. The Horticulture Farm is located on Route 45, west of Pine Grove Mills and east of Spruce Creek. The Field Day will begin at 8:00 am with registration and refreshments followed by tours of vegetable and small fruit research plots from 9:15 am until 12:15 pm. Lunch will be served from 12:15 to 1:30. The afternoon will feature machinery and field demonstrations and for those wishing, revisting of field plots for closer observations. The field day will end at 5:00 pm.

In addition, there will be 12 to 18 exhibitors from industry and extension near the main office complex open all day.

DICKEY-john® HARVEST-HAND™
Portable Grain Moisture Tester

Harvest-Hand measures the moisture content of your grain automatically. It weighs the sample and automatically compensates for grain temperature. Just turn the unit ON, select the desired grain, and slowly pour your grain into the test cell. The measurement cycle begins automatically when the proper weight of grain has entered the cell. Read the direct temperature-compensated moisture content when display stops flashing.

Direct readings for these 12 grains:

1. corn	7. sunflowers
2. soybeans	8. canola
3. wheat	9. rice
4. milo	10. popcorn
5. oats	11. millet
6. barley	12. rye

Best Buys in Used Equipment

Now is the best time to buy a Hoober Reconditioned Axial Flow Combine!

Don Carper Says,

Five Reasons Why To Buy Now!

1. Hoober Reconditioned Combines go to the field and work because they have been repaired by Hoober's Combine Service Specialists.
2. All Hoober Reconditioned Combines carry a Hoober Warranty for the 1994 combine year.
3. There is a large selection of late model Axial Flow Combines from which to choose - many with LOW HOURS.
4. Axial Flow Combines put higher quality grain in the tank than conventional combines.
5. Hoober's Parts Department stocks combine parts - so if you need parts, we have 'em.

TODAY'S MAHONING OUTDOOR FURNACE WILL HEAT YOUR HOME, BARN, POOL, BUSINESS, GREENHOUSE, & DOMESTIC DRINKING WATER TOO!

Safe • Efficient • Durable

CLEAN. All dirt, dust, fuel and fire is outside.No chance of chimney fire or flue fire ELIMINATES AIR POLLUTION IN THE HOME. Smoke, fuel odors and other causes of allergies are outside the home.

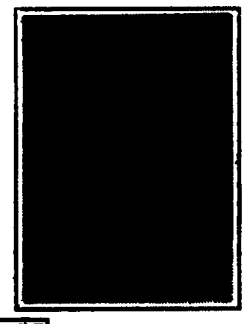
SAFE FOR MOBILE HOMES. Eliminates danger that other furnaces contained in a mobile home can cause.

NO DANGER OR EXPLOSION. This is a zero pressure furnace.

ENCLOSED COMPONENTS. The circulation pumps and electrical connections are enclosed in an insulated cabinet on the back of the Mahoning Outdoor Furnace.

ADAPTABLE. Install our furnace in any forced air heating or hot water system

All Mahoning Units Come Installed with Grates Including An External Shaker Handle



★ The only outdoor furnace made with a Catalytic Combustor. ★

Mahoning Catalytic Combustor Will Help In the Following Ways:

1. Burn one cord of wood which equals 166 gallons of oil.
2. Your fuel source becomes enormous inexhaustible and poses few risks to public safety.
3. Over all efficiency of 85%, which means the heat no longer goes up the chimney!
4. You get more heat from a log compared to the non-cat furnace.
5. More burn time - less reloading time!
6. Zap 90% of pollutants, made from fire source.
7. Saves you a lot of money!
8. User friendly, emits no smoke!

All Mahoning Multi-Fuels Can Burn Coal, Wood, Oil, Propane, Natural Gas

Proudly Built in Clearfield County, Pennsylvania

If we could build a better Robin, we would! AND WE DID!

Try the new Robin! (Formerly Wisc-Robin) Same quality features they always had but now with Overhead Valves and all the latest technology. All this plus a much lower price (Due to more direct marketing) makes it today's best engine buy.

REDESIGNED WITH GREATER VISIBILITY.

Climb into the big ComforTECH cab on the GLEANER® rotary combine and you'll see a clear difference instantly. More glass on all three sides gives you greater visibility of the field, the incoming crop and the entire header operation. And now, three of four models* offer an engine choice. Pick a high torque rise Cummins diesel or a low maintenance air-cooled Deutz — both loaded with power to spare. Plus, every GLEANER is backed by a strong AGCO warranty and superior parts service. Check out the GLEANER rotary at your local AGCO GLEANER dealer today. And ask about flexible AGCO financing.

GARRETT IS BIG ON AG TURBOS

PLOW BIG SAVINGS ON GENUINE GARRETT TURBOS

Don't miss this opportunity to plow some big savings on Genuine Garrett Factory Remanufactured turbochargers. Your Authorized Garrett Distributor Penn Diesel Service should have a turbocharger or cartridge that fits your tractor, combine, or other farm equipment. If it's a turbocharged Ag engine, there's most likely a Garrett turbo on it. Look at the following list of OE's. There's a reason why they specify Garrett turbochargers for their engines

- Allis Chalmers
- Deutz Allis
- Fiat Allis
- Ford
- International Harvester
- J I Case
- John Deere
- Massey Ferguson

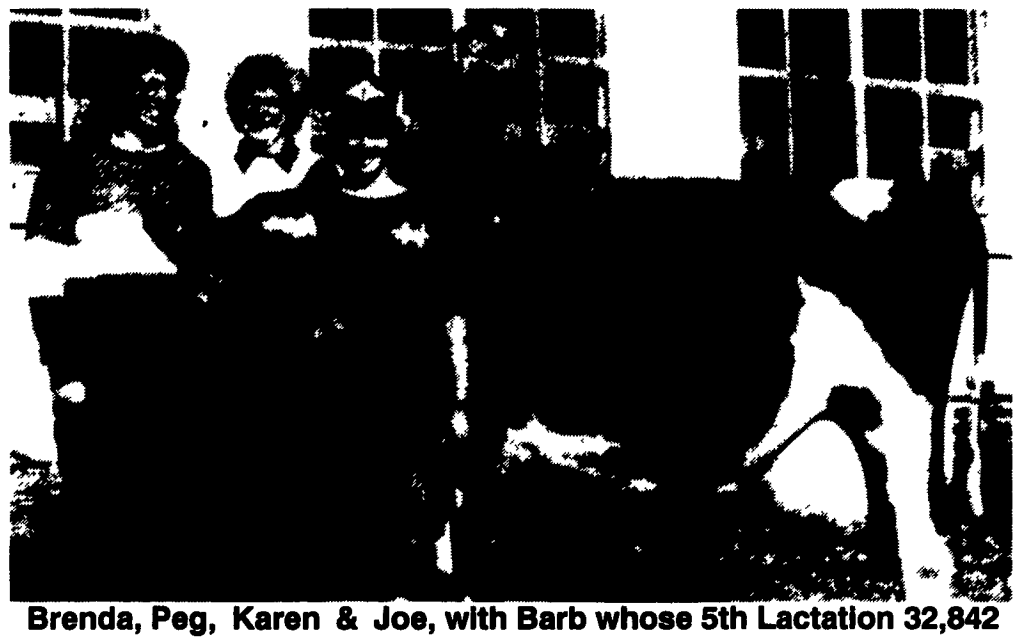
MILEY FARM



Brenda, Peg, Karen & Joe, with Barb whose 5th Lactation 32,842 & 6th Lac. 31,977 are 305 day records.

High Production Is Always The Result Of Many Key Ingredients. Joe and Peg Miley Acknowledge That Their #1 Key Has Been Four Daughters, Whose Combined Efforts Display "The Family Farm" At Its Best.

Joe, Peg and Daughter Brenda Work Full-time, While Karen and Linda Milk Part-time Since Moving Away. Daughter, Judy, Helps With Hay Cropping, and Her Children Danny and Wendy Assist by Feeding Calves. Andy Colver Provides Part-time Hired Help.

Their Lebanon Co. Farm Has Been In The Family For 70 Yrs. And Housed A Dairy Herd For The Past 33 Years. They Currently Farm 200 Acres, Of Which 140 Are Rented. Their 68 Milking Cows Have Been Fed Purina's "Maxi-Tech" And "Ultimate Ext" Since July 1991; Since Then The Herd Average Increased From 19,904 to 22,498. Mileys purchase their Purina products thru Umberger's Mill of Fontana, PA and John McCormick provides their feed programing services.
